British medics 'fed up' with NHS, leaving

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of British doctors say they want to emigrate to the United States and other countries because of worsening conditions in the state-run National Health Service.

The Hospital Consultants and Specialists Association says at least 300 of the 2,500 specialists it polled in the NHS are "seriously considering" leaving Britain. The specialists are the medical elite of the NHS, founded in 1948 to give free medical care to rich and poor alike.

The British Medical Association (BMA), which represents 25,000 family doctors, said 622 of its members had inquired about foreign posts in the first six months of this year — more than the total in the whole of 1973 and 1974. Association officials said about one-third of doctors who inquire actually go.

The U.S. Educational Commission for Foreign Medical Graduates said it tested 1,800 doctors in southern England alone in July and hundreds more in northern cities. British doctors must pass the commission's examinations before they can practice in the United States.

BMA Secretary Dr. Derek Stevenson said there were now about 800 vacancies for consultants — brain surgeons, heart and cancer specialists and the like — in the NHS. The association said 11 of the 200 senior radiotherapists have quit in the last year and more plan to do so.

One is Dr. Harold Ward, 49-year-old consultant with the United Birmingham Teaching Hospitals. He is joining the Southwestern Medical School in Dallas as professor of radiation oncology at more than $50,000 a year — double what he earns in Britain.

"The NHS is collapsing and the situation is going to get worse," he said. "It is underfinanced and overadministrated. The shortage of staff and research facilities are crippling."

Prof. Eric Easton, a senior government medical adviser and a top radiotherapist, commented. "The situation is terrifying now. I have no doubt that the standards of care for cancer patients are now being very seriously threatened."

Some 200 doctors have quit Britain every year for the last decade as the NHS slid into crisis. They were lured by the big money in the United States and Europe. Junior hospital doctors in the NHS, for example, earn about $5,250 a year — a third of what their American counterparts make.

Disillusionment with the NHS has mushroomed in the last two years.

The service is in deep trouble because of shortages of money, equipment and trained staff, complex political pressures and a top-heavy administration. Doctors complain of poor pay, crippling work schedules and political control.

The crisis has been made more acute in recent months by the government's purge of private medicine from the state system, a move that locked the powerful consultants in a bitter feud with the administration.

World's fair for Ontario in 1981?

Hirohito on way to L.A.

PLAINFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Emperor Hirohito, once considered a god in his native Japan, toasted America's most powerful mayor, visited a farm family and played with a piglet on a day-long visit to the nation's heartland.

The 74-year-old monarch and Empress Nagako arrived in Chicago on Tuesday, with Secret Service agents and about 1,000 police officers on guard duty.

The royal couple left Chicago shortly after 10 a.m. EDT for Los Angeles as they continued their 15-day tour of the United States that began Sept. 30. They will visit San Francisco and Honolulu before returning to Japan on Monday.

Two men were arrested for carrying concealed weapons during the Chicago visit, but officials said neither man posed any threat to the emperor and his wife.

After a colorful parade featuring horsemen and bands along Lake Michigan, Hirohito told a luncheon that Chicago and the Midwest hold an "important role as a world center of economic activities."

The emperor, the first Japanese monarch ever to visit the United States, exchanged toasts with Mayor Richard J. Daley at the luncheon.

Sponsors seek OMS site; council OKs 'in-depth' study

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

The Ontario City Council Tuesday night heard a proposal from a group of Los Angeles businessmen to build a multimillion dollar world's fair at the Ontario Motor Speedway. The council agreed to go into the proposal "in depth" at an adjourned meeting at the Ontario Public Library at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Expo 81 is headed by famed World War II pilot, Gen. James Doolittle. It was represented at the meeting by president Richard M. Pittenger, vice president Bill Welsh, radio and television announcer, and Richard E. Hodge, legal representative.

The exposition would be held to celebrate the 200th birthday of Los Angeles, Pittenger told the council.

"We have looked at property throughout the Los Angeles area," he said, "and we feel the Ontario site is the one we want. We would love to have you people cooperate with us. We expect to satisfy OMS bondholders and citizens of Ontario and to put on the best exposition anywhere in the world. We have cleared the Ontario site with Washington."

If Ontario approves the plans, the matter must go to the U.S. Department of Commerce, which would then ask the President to get Congress to pass a bill naming the exposition site. The plan must then be approved by the Bureau of International Expositions in Paris.

Pittenger told council members Expo 81 has been studying the site and related problems for 18 months.

"We have done an excellent job in setting up a basis," he said. "We haven't gone into this thing helter-skelter. We have some of the finest people in this area. We know we're qualified and we ask your help."

Mayor Paul Treadway expressed the council's general willingness to look into the matter further.

"Our facility could stand more activity," he said. "We're interested in jobs in the area and related industries and in the future ownership of the speedway."

Prior to the council meeting it had been revealed that the plans for Expo 81 include purchasing the speedway and, when the fair ends, turning it into a federally sponsored trade school.

"The proposal concerns the speedway board and the bondholders," Treadway told Pittenger. "It is incumbent upon us to get their approval of your proposal. We have to encourage further exploration. What will revert back to the city? How will the fair affect racing activities?"

Pittenger said that because the project is "under the federal government," Expo 81 could not make any guarantees or commitments at the present.

George H. Mim Mack, president of the Ontario Motor Speedway Corporation, said, "The speedway board is willing and anxious to help the council in this matter. I think it's in the interests of the bondholders. We are anxious to work with Expo 81 and stand ready to cooperate. There are great benefits to be derived. We must understand the full ramifications of the program. We are ready, willing and able to cooperate."

Councilman Gustavo Ramos Jr. said, "There are a lot of unanswered questions. The city has bent over backward to get OMS off the ground. We must consider this proposal seriously."

Expo 81 plans to purchase OMS, then sell revenue bonds to finance fair construction, according to a letter from Pittenger to Ontario City Attorney Samuel Crowe Sept. 30. The 1981 world's fair would cost an estimated $10 million to construct.

Another Ford veto is overridden

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, defeated in his battle with Congress over child nutritional programs, is having a higher percentage of his vetoes overridden than any chief executive since Andrew Johnson served in the White House more than a century ago.

Tuesday's decisive Senate and House votes to enact a $2.75-billion nutrition bill over the President's objections marked the seventh time in 14 months that Congress has overridden a Ford veto.

The House tally of 397 to 18 was 120 more than the needed two-thirds, and the 79 to 13 Sendate vote was 17 more than necessary, with Republicans breaking ranks to contribute heavily to the tally.

Since becoming president, Ford has vetoed 39 bills. The seven successful overrides give the heavily Democratic Congress a score of 18 per cent. Woodrow Wilson, overridden on six of 44 vetoes, is next highest in the post-Johnson era with about 14 per cent.

Unless Ford and Congress can agree on spending cuts, Ford may get a chance to veto a lot more bills. Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., says Ford is adamant on cutting spending. He quoted Ford as promising that "if he has to veto 100 bills to hold down spending, he'll do it."

Johnson, a Republican, vetoed 29 bills during his presidency from 1865 to 1869. Congress overrode him 15 times, a score of more than 50 per cent and by far the worst presidential performance in the nation's history.

Since then, virtually all presidential vetoes have stuck. One reason is that in most cases, Congress and the White House have been controlled by the same party.

By comparison, Congress overrode 12 of President Harry S Truman's 250 vetoes, or about 5 per cent. Truman was a Democrat.

Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt, who served a record 12 years in the presidency, vetoed a record total of bills — 635. Congress overrode him only nine times, or about 1 per cent of the time.

Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower vetoed 181 bills in eight years, and Congress only overrode him twice, also about 1 per cent.

Democrats John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson vetoed 21 and 30 measures respectively between 1961 and 1969 without ever losing.

Richard M. Nixon, battling Democratic congresses, vetoed 43 bills in 5½ years and lost five times or about 12 per cent of his vetoes.

Terrorist attack blamed

Police mistakenly kill 5 in Barcelona

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Terrorists attacked a Barcelona police headquarters early today, sparking a gunbattle in which police fire killed three innocent civilians in a passing car and two of their own officers, police said.

Two other persons, including one policeman, were seriously wounded in Spain's bloodiest day of violence this year.

The attack raised the death toll to eight policemen and four civilians in seven days of political violence since Spain was plunged into crisis at home and abroad by the executions of five young terrorists Sept. 27.

Police said the latest deaths, in the working class district of La Verneda, came after a group of gunmen drove past the police barracks firing with submachine guns.

Police guards, untouched by the bullets, returned fire and in error riddled a second car, killing a couple and their 22-year-old son and seriously wounding a fourth person in the car, police said. The civilians were reported returning home from a wake for a friend.

Continuing to fire, police hit three policemen returning from a night call. Two died instantly, and a third was seriously wounded, police said.

Authorities said later the killing of the two policemen was due "to lack of visibility at the time and the interposition of vehicles" — the patrol car and the automobile of the civilian victims.

Barcelona, on the northeast Mediterranean coast, is the chief city of Catalonia Province, which has been a center of separatism for centuries and was the site of Socialist and anarchist insurrections beginning in the 19th century. Catalonia had a short-lived autonomous government before and during the 1936-39 civil war.

Barcelona is a stronghold of the urban guerrilla organization FRAP — the Patriotic Revolutionary Anti-Fascist Front — which lost three militants to firing squads Sept. 27. The three had been convicted of killing policemen.

Four days after the executions, FRAP commandos were blamed for killing three policemen in Madrid, bloodying celebrations marking the 39th anniversary of Gen. Francisco Franco's rise to power in Spain.

Two Basque separatists also convicted of killing policemen were executed in addition to the three FRAP militants Sept. 27.

On Sunday, terrorists in the northern Basque country killed three civil guardsmen by blowing up their jeep in apparent retaliation for the executions of the five terrorists. Hours later, gunmen killed the owner of a Basque bar in reprisal.

On Monday, Franco's son-in-law, Dr. Cristobal Martinez-Bordiu, 52, was punched in the nose by Dutch tourists angry over the executions. He was hospitalized with facial injuries.

Rightists, meanwhile, continued a drive to whip up support for Franco and his crackdown on terrorism, calling a mass rally tonight in Valencia, 200 miles south of Barcelona.

Carelessness baffles reporter

Ford security plan found on lawn

ELKINS, W.Va. (AP) — A six-page security plan for President Ford's visit to Elkins last Saturday was found on the lawn of the Randolph County Courthouse three hours before the President's arrival.

The plan, found by this reporter prior to the security-conscious presidential visit, pinpointed places along Ford's route where he would probably alight from his bullet-proof car.

In fact, the President did stop at each of the three spots detailed on the plan.

The locations of four two-man West Virginia State Police sniper teams, assignments of all state and city police along the parade route, escape routes to be used by the presidential limousine in case of emergency and security plans for areas behind buildings along the parade route were also listed in the plan.

It included the assignments of state conservation officers and detailed the number of men involved in each assignment.

When an attempt was made to return the plan to a Secret Service agent assigned to the press credential room, the agent glanced at the material and said it was not important.

The reporter later showed the papers to Pappy Noel, a staff assistant to the President, and told him where they were found. Noel and other White House aides examined the plan and said they were alarmed at the apparent carelessness involved in its loss.

The aides kept the material turned over by the reporter.

Noel said the plan was distributed to state and local law enforcement officers during a briefing the morning of the President's arrival.

"We are aware of the reporting of the incident and we are investigating the matter," a Secret Service spokesman said in Washington early today. He declined further comment.

Employes to meet with city on wage deadlock

Negotiators for the Pomona City Employes Association and the city will meet Friday in an effort to break the deadlock over wage increases.

Representatives for the employe association, which represents approximately 300 employes in all departments of the city, have charged that the city negotiators have deliberately stalled the negotiations, which were declared at an impasse in July.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce, however, denied any deliberate stalling tactics have been used by the city. He explained the negotiations have been slowed primarily due to the protracted negotiations with the Pomona Police Association and previous commitments on the part of the city's chief negotiator, attorney David Miller.

According to Gonce, the city has offered the employes a five per cent increase retroactive to July 1, and a six per cent increase effective July 1, 1976, in a two-year package.

Barbara Stapleton, president of the association, said Tuesday that that offer has never been officially extended to the association, but that association representatives will be prepared to discuss a two-year agreement at Friday's meet-and-confer session.

"That offer has never been taken to the association members because we do not feel it has ever been officially made," she said.

She added that the proposal may not be acceptable to employes in light of the higher increases just approved for police (a total of seven per cent this year and seven per cent next year), and the small increases gained by employes during the last several years.

The association's chief negotiator, John Adams of the California League of City Employe Associations, said that since 1972 Pomona firemen have received increases totaling 21.3 per cent, policemen 18.76 per cent plus this year's settlement, while the city's miscellaneous employes have received only 13.38 per cent.

"We've attempted to take a reasonable nonmilitant posture during the negotiations and all we have received from the city is a slap in the face," he said.

Most of the association members have now joined the Service Employes International Union Local 660, AFL-CIO, and a recent advertisement by the association indicated that a strike was a possibility.

In response, all employes were expected today to receive letters from Gonce indicating the illegality of strikes by public employes.

The letter also outlines the city's proposal for a five per cent increase this year, six per cent next year, an optional health plan and deferred compensation program, and an additional holiday.

The letter warns that if a strike occurs, participating employes could be permanently replaced or be penalized through loss of retroactivity on the first salary increase.

It does not appear, however, that a strike is being seriously considered by employes at this time, said one employe, who asked not to be identified.

If no agreement is reached at Friday's negotiating session, which begins at 10 a.m., an advisory arbitration hearing is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 25, at 9 a.m.

Health center is offering immunizations—no charge

Immunizations against dangerous communicable diseases will be given free of charge tonight from 5 to 7 at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona.

The public may be immunized against measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough. Tuberculosis skin tests and flu immunizations are not being given at this clinic.

Dr. Annabel J. Teneng, chief physician at the health center, recommends proper immunizations for all ages from children to adults. She said adults should obtain diphtheria and tetanus immunizations every 10 years.

Adolescents need to be protected against measles, diphtheria and polio. Younger children should be immunized against measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

Adults are also encouraged to attend the high blood pressure clinic which is held at the same time. Persons under the care of a private physician or members of a health care group are asked not to attend this free blood pressure clinic.

Children and adolescents must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. Individuals are requested to bring all previous immunizations records to the clinic.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 623-6811, extension 528.

Six colleges will share in Penney grant

Six area colleges will receive a part of a $2,300 corporate grant from J. C. Penney Co., to Independent Colleges of Southern California, according to W. J. Paprock, manager of the J. C. Penney store in Montclair.

The grant is one of 39 grants to similar organizations across the United States which total $71,700.

Local colleges receiving funds are La Verne College, Claremont Graduate School, Claremont Men's College, Pitzer College, Scripps College and Pomona College.

The international retailing company has given corporate support to 57 independent institutions since the middle of the 1960s as a supplement to local support from individual J. C. Penney stores.

"The Penney Co. is convinced of the importance of higher education to our American way of life," Paprock said.

Pomona planners to study housing for senior citizens

The Pomona Planning Commission tonight will be asked to approve an environmental impact report, conditional use permit and variances to permit construction of a 180-unit senior citizens housing complex at 755 W. Palomares Ave.

Planners delayed a decision from their previous meeting so a further study could be made on parking requirements within the complex and also for more information on the amount of rent to be charged.

The housing complex is planned to include 138 one-bedroom apartments, 32 "efficiency" apartments and 10 two-bedroom apartments. It is proposed to be constructed on a five-acre site bounded by San Francisco, Palomares, Gibbs and Pearl streets.

In another matter, the commission is expected to consider adoption of the residential, economic development and circulation and transportation elements of the city's new master plan.

Suggestions in the 84-page report were made by residents during a series of workshops held earlier this year. Some recommendations include that residents should become more "neighborly," rely more on bicycles for short trips, and determine early when a neighborhood starts to deteriorate so corrective actions can be taken.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Group to hear regional chief

Vicente "Benny" Sablan, regional president, will address the Pomona Valley Fleet Reserve Association tonight at 6:30 in the American Legion Hall, 13130 Central Ave., Chino.

A spaghetti dinner will precede Sablan's speech.

Sablan, of San Diego Branch 84, will be making his first official visit to the local area since returning from the National Fleet Reserve Association convention, and is expected to report on that meeting.

Mayonnaise Lady back on the job

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — The Mayonnaise Lady is back on the job in the campus cafeteria. But this time she's doing hamburgers.

Doris Judd, now 61, was retired by the University of California at Davis after two courts found she had been unjustly fired for failing to spread the mayonnaise to the edges of sandwiches, being slow with the sauerkraut, and other reasons.

The last court decision said Mrs. Judd had been promoted to head the sandwich department in what "seems to have been a deliberate invocation of the Peter Principle," done with the hope that she would provide her superiors with ample reasons to discharge her."

But during the 2½-year court battle, someone else got the mayonnaise job.

She now works the grill, and during a noon rush recently she cooked 12 dozen hamburgers, a couple dozen grilled cheese sandwiches and a few patty melts.

Asked what the cafeteria managers thought of her work, Mrs. Judd said, "I haven't had any favorable comments or unfavorable comments either. I am doing my darndest to keep people happy."

Mrs. Judd's nickname came from the California State Employes Association, which backed her in the legal fight.

New fighting in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The cease-fire between Lebanon's warring Christian and Moslem factions broke down today as fierce fighting with mortars and automatic weapons erupted in Beirut.

Heavy casualties were reported in northern, eastern and southern suburbs, most businesses closed behind steel shutters, and the state radio broadcast an appeal from security forces to "stop the massacre."

A dusk to dawn curfew, lifted last week, was reimposed, and there were repeated broadcast appeals for blood donations.

Witnesses said one mortar round exploded next to a bakery where housewives were lined up in a rush for bread, wounding 36 persons, and that another round exploded near a hospital in Moslem district, leaving several dead and wounded.

Portugal army unit rebels

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — An alert by all military units in northern Portugal was called off today and senior officers said they were trying to convince a mutinous artillery regiment in Oporto "with words, that they are misguided."

The 650 heavily armed mutineers at the Serra do Pilar regiment ran a red banner up a flagpole Tuesday and demanded dismissal of the region's new military commander, Gen. Antonio Pires Veloso. Oporto, Portugal's second largest city, is 175 miles north of the capital.

They also demanded an end to what they called purges of leftists from the barracks and the reopening of a leftist-dominated military driver training center which was closed last Saturday on Veloso's orders.

The revolt was seen as the most serious challenge yet to the government's efforts to restore military discipline sapped by Communist infiltrators. On Monday,

Public employe strikes back

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Delegates to the AFL-CIO's national convention here have voted to ask Congress to pass legislation guaranteeing the right to strike for public employes.

In its final session Tuesday, the convention overrode an effort by Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, to call for compulsory arbitration as a strike alternative in disputes involving police and fire fighters.

Several large cities have had police and fire fighters' strikes this year.

Wurf's proposal was shouted down after AFL-CIO President George Meany said, "I hope I never see the day that the AFL-CIO, sitting in convention, will ask Congress to impose compulsory arbitration on anybody, anywhere, anytime."

Martha's illness termed serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — A doctor treating Martha Mitchell says she is hospitalized for a serious bone marrow disease, but that "I anticipate the immediate future favorable."

Dr. Thomas E. O'Brien said Tuesday night that the estranged wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has "a type of malignancy" that "is not a cancer in the strict sense of the word."

O'Brien declined to name the ailment, but he said, "If you asked me whether it was multiple myeloma, I wouldn't deny it." There was at least one published report that Mrs. Mitchell is suffering from myeloma, which has been described as a rare form of bone cancer.

The doctor said the disease involves abnormal bone marrow cells and affects the blood and calcium. He said, "It's like cancer, a fatal disease, but some people recover, right?"

AMONG THE YOUNG

President Ford went to Knoxville, Tenn., Tuesday to attend a White House regional conference. His only appearance in crowds came at the secure Air National Guard area at McGhee-Tyson Airport, where he shook hands with young admirers.

Ford lectures about budget; solon opposes corporation tax break

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, having urged a new tax-cut plan tied to curbs in federal spending, rejected a Republican governor's request for more federal funds and gave him a blunt lecture on balanced budgets.

Ford, who announced plans earlier this week for what he said was "the biggest single tax cut in our history," met Tuesday with seven Appalachian state governors in Knoxville, Tenn., and immediately was confronted with a plea for funds.

West Virginia Gov. Arch Moore told Ford more federal money is needed to keep Appalachian highway projects on schedule. Ford wryly recalled that most of the governors in the room had agreed with a Southern Governors Conference resolution calling for a constitutional amendment requiring balanced federal budgets.

Ford said, "Fellows, we can't have it both ways."

He said the government faces federal deficits in the current fiscal year of up to $70 billion, adding, "If you have back-to-back deficits of $70 billion, you're going to have more and more and more troubles in trying to finance your own state and municipal governments."

As the President was touting his new tax cut and spending curb proposal, his proposal was meeting with dour comments from Congress.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., called Ford's plan "an impossible one."

A Ways and Means subcommittee chairman, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, criticized Ford's proposals to reduce corporate taxes and released figures showing that 142 major corporations paid less than half the standard corporate tax rate of 48 per cent last year. Vanik said eight companies paid no taxes while 18 others paid at a rate of 10 per cent or less.

Ford proposed enactment of $28 billion in permanent tax cuts for 1976 if Congress will agree to an identical cut in federal spending. He would require establishment of a $395 billion spending ceiling.

Criticizing the Ford plan for $7 billion in corporate tax relief, Vanik said, "If U.S. corporations are already paying little or nothing in federal income taxes, it makes no sense to give them tax relief in an effort to stimulate investment capital."

Vanik said his studies disclosed that "while the 142 companies paid more than $14.4 billion in taxes and other fees to foreign governments, they paid only $10.3 billion to the U.S. Treasury in federal income taxes."

L.V. police arrest tire thief suspect

A man wearing horn-rimmed glasses flashing a pocket knife attempted to attack a woman Tuesday night in the parking lot behind United Sporting Goods in the MONTCLAIR Plaza, police reported.

Police said the woman reported the man attempted to force her into a car but she managed to get away.

She described the attacker as a Caucasian, 20 to 30 years old, 5 feet 8, with medium brown hair and a mustache. He was wearing a navy blue shirt, a white over blue tie and white pants. He held a three to four inch folding pocket knife.

La Verne police today said they caught a local young man in the act of stealing the wheels and tires off a parked car and booked him on suspicion of grand theft.

The suspect, Randy Scott Weddle, 18, 3290 Venton Ave., La Verne, was seen removing the wheels from a car parked at White and Villa avenues shortly after 4 a.m., officers said. The car, belonging to Barry Rogers of La Verne, had been jacked up.

Officer John Ortega said Weddle tried to drive away but was stopped and arrested a couple of blocks away.

Food stamp program attacked by Buckley

WASHINGTON (AP) — The present condition of the federal food stamp program is "a dire threat to the American treasury and an affront to every American who labors unaided to feed his family without government assistance," Sen. James L. Buckley, C-R-N.Y., said today.

Buckley told a Senate subcommittee that a bill he has sponsored to tighten controls on the program "would set clear and simple standards for participation in the program and so would end present confusion among both those who qualify for food stamps and those who fail to do so."

The bill also has been sponsored in the House by Minority Whip Robert H. Michel of Illinois. It has almost 100 conservative cosponsors between the two chambers.

Murder verdict asked for spectator at killing

A West Valley Superior Court jury Tuesday was instructed to decide the guilt or innocence of a 62-year-old Upland Realtor accused of taking part in the September 1974 murder of an Ontario man.

Deputy Dist. Atty Louis Glazier in his closing arguments said from the evidence presented during the trial the defendant Samuel Guardalibene could only be guilty of first degree murder, even if he did not pull the trigger of the rifle that killed Joseph Allen Gomez, 27, of Ontario. Glazier maintained that Guardalibene saw Thomas Telford pointing a rifle at Gomez in the Ontario city dump, and knew beforehand that Telford was going to kill the victim.

Glazier said Guardalibene did not try to stop Telford from shooting Gomez and, immediately after the fatal shot was fired, rushed to attempt to bury and hide the body.

John Kennedy, Guardalibene's attorney, told the jury that the night of the murder Guardalibene had no idea that Gomez was to be killed. Kennedy said his client was innocent and only erred in not reporting Gomez's death. Kennedy brought up testimony from a witness in the trial, Ron Marshall, who said that the defendant never threatened him after the slaying and offered to aid him, his girlfriend, Mary Pacheco, Telford, and Jeanette Adelman in leaving the area. Guardalibene said on the stand that he did not tell police about the killing because of his love for Miss Adelman who told the group they were all equally guilty of the crime.

Too much education stifles students, ex-U.S. aide says

WASHINGTON (AP) — American schools provide more formal education than a student needs, and high school or college should be shortened by a year or more, says a former U.S. commissioner of education.

Harold Howe II, who held the top education post from 1965 to 1968, also said Tuesday that adults should be allowed a year or more of education later in life.

Speaking at a four-day conference sponsored by the Washington Journalism Center, Howe, now a vice president of the Ford Foundation, said that 16 years of U.S. education — starting at age 6 and ending at 21 — is a luxury no other country has.

"People get fed up with classrooms after being in them for 16 years," he said, adding that it would be preferable for adults to be allowed a year of formal education at government expense when they are more mature and in a better position to appreciate it.

Howe also said he suspects television is responsible for the decline in national test scores among students.

"No one knows why the scores are going down," he said. "But we're now seeing a generation that has been watching television throughout its lifetime."

He added that many children watch TV four to six hours a day while children from lower income families watch even more.

Howe predicted that when schools are asked where the fault of lower test scores lie, they will respond with a "back-to-basics" movement and by becoming more strict.

"They'll regiment kids and force learning down their throats," he said. "And kids will do what they've always done — throw it up."

In other comments, Howe said he thinks the women's movement will have a growing impact on the nation's schools.

"Some think it's a fad and will disappear," he said. "I disagree. I think it's a major movement in American society. It's a large scale enterprise that will affect textbooks, guidance and staffing in the schools, particularly at upper levels — principals and superintendents. The models kids usually see now are men."

Lift controls on airlines, Ford urges

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford asked Congress today to increase competition among scheduled airlines by giving them more freedom to raise and lower fares and by enabling them to start service on routes they currently cannot serve.

"The overriding objective of the proposed legislation is to ensure that we have the most efficient airline system in the world and the American public is provided the best possible service at the lowest possible cost," Ford said in a message to Congress.

The proposed legislation, in the works for more than a year, would severely limit the authority of the Civil Aeronautics Board to regulate airline fares.

It would allow air carriers to raise their rates no more than 10 per cent in the first year after the bill is passed. Airlines seeking a higher increase would be subject to the lengthy CAB hearings on whether such a hike was justified.

Congress tightening rein on monitors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional resolution approving assignment of American monitors in the Sinai also includes two provisos designed to limit any U.S. military involvement in the Middle East.

The resolution, expected to be approved by the House and the Senate this week, specifies that congressional approval of the monitors "does not signify approval of the Congress of any other agreement, understanding or commitment made by the executive branch."

It also would require the Americans to be withdrawn immediately if new hostilities occur between Israel and Egypt or if Congress determines them to be in peril. The monitors would operate surveillance stations in the Sinai to watch for any violations of the Egyptian-Israeli truce.

Debate began in both chambers today after Tuesday's 10 to 2 vote by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approving the resolution. The House International Relations Committee gave overwhelming approval last week.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who mediated the Sinai accord in August, told the Senate panel Tuesday the stationing of technicians in the Sinai is "an investment in peace" in the Middle East.

He said "it is a role we accepted reluctantly at the request of both sides — and only when it was clear that there would be no agreement without it."

Kissinger sa ! four related documents outlining American assurances to Israel and Egypt are not part of the Sinai accord. While some of their provisions are considered binding, Kissinger said most are "binding statements of American diplomatic practice. Except for those related to oil, there are none not in the area of diplomatic practice," he said.

The agreement with Israel commits the United States to furnish oil to Israel in event of any embargo following the Israeli surrender of the Abu Rudeis oilfield to Egypt as part of the Sinai withdrawal.

Kissinger, questioned about assurances to consult with Israel on what action "diplomatic or otherwise" the United States might take in the event Israel's security is threatened by a major power, responded emphatically that "nothing in any commitment of the United States involves the use of the armed forces."

The U.S. commitment to Israel "does not go beyond the requirement to consult," he declared.

Reagan, many Demos gear for N.H. test

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the 1976 presidential campaign heats up, voters in New Hampshire, where the first primaries will be held, may soon be getting some new candidates to look over.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will put a tentative toe in the water today with the unveiling of a state campaign organization in an expected challenge to President Ford in the Feb. 24 Republican primary.

The public phase of Reagan's New Hampshire campaign is to be launched at a news conference in Concord, N.H. Former New Hampsihire Gov. Hugh Gregg, a moderate, is to be named chairman of the Reagan effort.

But a former top Ford campaign aide quit recently warning that unless operations are stepped up, Ford risks playing catch-up to Reagan.

Democrats, who will vote the same day, have no one to play catch-up to, but they may see some added competition in the Granite State trial heat in the next few weeks.

Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh apparently will join the growing number of hopefuls who plan to enter the primary. And Sargent Shriver is also considering entering the fray, sources said.

Of the six announced Democratic candidates, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma, Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter have said they would run in the New Hampshire primary.

Two others have said they might run - former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp.

NEW PROSECUTOR — Charles Ruff, 36, has been appointed to serve as the fourth and possibly last special Watergate prosecutor. He teaches at Georgetown University, where his students rate him highly as "patient, helpful, respectful." He will be in charge of presenting the government's case as major Watergate figures challenge their convictions.

By Jupiter! 14th moon found around planet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not like the discovery of America; it's more like the discovery of Catalina Island," says astronomer Charles Kowal, who claims he has found a 14th moon of the planet Jupiter.

The new moon is just a speck, about four miles across and 400 million miles from earth, but it's only the 34th known moon in our solar system and the second such discovery since 1951.

Kowal, 34, an astronomer for the Hale Observatory near San Diego, also found Jupiter's 13th moon, and his latest discovery was reported Tuesday in a telephone interview.

How was a moon able to escape detection for so long?

"There are a lot of unknown things in the universe," Kowal said. "You just can't look at all of them. And partly it's a matter of fashion. Exotic things like quasars and black holes are fashionable right now and satellites are not."

Kowal made the discovery with a 200-inch telescope at Mt. Palomar Observatory, about 120 miles southeast of Los Angeles. He says his success is largely due to special photographic plates that are baked in an oven with nitrogen gas and can detect very faint objects.

With the telescope, Kowal follows Jupiter for two hours and later looks for dots on the photographic plates. Anything that is not moving along with Jupiter is simply a blur, he said.

Asked why he didn't find the 14th moon last year when he spotted the 13th, Kowal said, "I'm not really sure about that. But Jupiter is in a better position this year, and I've improved my technique to block out the light of Jupiter and its five inner satellites. And some of it is just plain luck."

With the discovery comes the privilege of choosing the name of the new moon.

Kowal said he named the 13th moon Leda, after a mistress of Jupiter.

Before he can pick out a name for the 14th moon, Kowal said he has to determine the moon's orbit because scientists recently decided that all new discoveries in this solar system must have a name ending in "a" if they move counterclockwise and "e" if they move clockwise.

At four miles in diameter, Kowal's latest find is the smallest moon discovered in the solar system. Jupiter's largest moon is 3,000 miles in diameter. Earth's moon measures 2,400 miles across.

Grain reserve seen hurting farm prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a major farm organization says a U.S. proposal for establishment of an international grain reserve as a hedge against future world shortages would injure American farmers.

Tony T. Dechant, president of the National Farmers Union, said the plan "is designed to permit the dumping of government-controlled supplies on the market to break farmers' prices."

Dechant, in a statement issued Tuesday, said he has asked other farm organization leaders to oppose the reserve plan. The plan was presented last week in London at an International Wheat Council meeting.

The proposal calls for a world grain reserve of 30 million metric tons to be held by individual countries participating in the program. Those would include both exporting and importing nations.

The U.S. plan said each participating country would be responsible for creating and maintaining its own reserve in whatever manner it chose. If a country needed to draw upon reserves of another because of harvest shortfalls, grain would be made available at prevailing market prices.

The Ford administration has not spelled out specifically what it has in mind for building and maintaining the U.S. share of an international grain reserve — tentatively estimated at up to one-third of the proposed 30 million tons. But Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has insisted that it be left in the hands of farmers and the private trade.

Dechant said his organization has "always supported responsible measures" to protect consumers against the risk of food shortages. But a responsible food reserve system must also protect farmers against the risk of price-depressing surpluses, he said.

"This administration's proposal would not protect farmers," Dechant said. "It would do nothing to assure fair prices to farmers in times of surpluses. It would enable the government to dump reserves onto the market to 'bust' farmers' prices. The overhanging threat of government dumping of grain onto the market would keep prices to farmers chronically depressed."

Instead, the National Farmers Union wants a plan in which "a guaranteed floor" price would be set for farmers' grain by raising government price support loan rates so that producers themselves would remain in control of reserves.

Wendy, arrested with Patty Hearst, plans active role in defense

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura, arrested in an apartment she shared with Patricia Hearst, will take an active part in her defense on federal explosives charges and will "incorporate her own politics with the law of the case," her attorney says.

Miss Yoshimura spent less than five minutes in Alameda County Superior Court on Monday, when her case was postponed after attorney James Larson said he wanted time to study the voluminous transcript of the 3-year-old charges against her.

Miss Yoshimura appeared ebullient in her court appearance, laughing as she conferred with Larson and clasping his hand as they left the courtroom.

Miss Yoshimura is accused in connection with the discovery of a cache of weapons and explosives found in a Berkeley garage in 1972. Larson said he considers it slim evidence that the grand jury transcript shows that his client apparently only rented the garage.

He said he would seek dismissal on grounds the charges are too vague, but he said if the case goes to trial Miss Yoshimura will inject her personal politics into the defense.

Miss Yoshimura and Miss Hearst were arrested in San Francisco on Sept. 18 about an hour after Symbionese Liberation Army members Bill and Emily Harris.

Miss Yoshimura is believed to have joined Miss Hearst and the Harrises in the summer of 1974 at a Pennsylvania farmhouse hideout.

Larson said the charges against his client are unrelated to any in the Hearst case and that Miss Yoshimura is suffering legally from the link with the newspaper heiress and the Harrises.

Mrs. Harris told a Los Angeles judge last week that she will actively defend herself against the robbery, assault and kidnap charges she faces along with her husband and Miss Hearst and that she plans to inject politics and feminism into her case.

IMPROVING FISHING — Workers at Little Lake near Hemet haul in a net of fish and junk as they clear the lake to improve bait fishing. Operator Carl Rodriguez said fish such as catfish and bass were feeding on live food supply and ignoring the fisherman's bait. So to provide better fishing the natural food is being taken from the water in order fish will have to bite on lures.

Fishing may be better in Hemet

HEMET (AP) — Southern California fishermen will have a better chance of bagging their limits now that the "natural" competition has been eliminated from Angler's Little Lake here.

The privately-operated fishing retreat was drained recently to remove live bait fish such as bluegill, perch and shad which began to flourish because of the "healthy" nature of the water, said Carl Rodriguez, operator of the recreational facility.

The lake is in the process of being refilled and was reopened to anglers last weekend.

Rodriguez said sport fish such as catfish and bass were mostly feeding off the live food supply and ignoring the fishermen's bait.

"I want fishermen to catch fish," said Rodriguez in explaining the reason for the draining operation. "During the past year they haven't been catching the fish that were stocked each week. I decided that the only way to provide them with hungry catfish and bass was to take away that natural source of food supply."

Records of fish stocking at the lake during the past three years indicated that 45,084 pounds of catfish had been placed in the lake. But a catch count revealed that less than 60 per cent of those fish had been caught.

"That left a lot of fish unaccounted for," Rodriguez said, "so our job was to save as many of those fish as we could when the lake was drained."

The lake, which is used for irrigation of area farm lands and orchards, had been drained gradually in September through irrigation. That left several dry beds and only a few ponds for survival of the fish.

All the fish were then netted and placed in an artificially aerated holding pond where the live bait fish were culled out.

The operation also included placement of traps and screens on the water intakes to the lake, which will keep out small bait fish and their eggs from future water supplies.

Draining the lake also provided an opportunity to remove dead trees and limbs and other fishing hazards including bed springs, mattresses, broken chairs, old tires and rims, bottles and cans and trash barrels.

Young Hallinan quits after apparent dispute

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The fiery young lawyer defending Patricia Hearst has bowed out of the case in an apparent dispute with other members of the defense team headed by F. Lee Bailey.

Terence "Kayo" Hallinan, the first lawyer to talk with Miss Hearst after her arrest, did not comment on his withdrawal from the case. Albert Johnson a member of Bailey's Boston firm, said he did not know why Hallinan left the case.

Hallinan, 38, had entered the case because his attorney-father Vincent was vacationing in Hawaii when Miss Hearst was arrested Sept. 18.

The elder Hallinan once offered to exchange himself as a hostage for Miss Hearst after she was kidnaped Feb. 4, 1974 by the Symbionese Liberation Army and he had offered to defend her.

Vincent Hallinan, 79, reportedly is staying on the Hearst case as a consultant.

Both father and son have a reputation for taking dramatic cases and being involved in radical causes.

It was Vincent Hallinan who handled longshoremen union leader Harry Bridge's deportation case and was jailed for six months in 1952 for contempt of court after that trial.

And it was "Kayo" Hallinan who successfully defended 14 soldiers charged with non-violent mutiny after participating in a sitdown protest at the Army's Presidio stockade in 1969.

Remiro, Little trial postponed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Trial has been delayed two weeks for two Symbionese Liberation Army members who say they want more time to interview prospective witnesses.

Defendants Joseph Remiro and Joseph Little were granted the continuance in their trial on charges stemming from a shootout with police in Concord on Jan. 10, 1974.

Little, 25, and Remiro, 26, are acting as their own attorneys and had asked for a postponement of three to four weeks, but Superior Court Judge M. Ross Bigelow set Oct. 20 for the start of the trial.

The SLA pair face charges of assault on a police officer, attempted murder of a police officer and two counts of possessing explosives. The trial is expected to last eight weeks.

Both defendants are serving life prison terms for their convictions of the murder of Oakland schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

Bigelow overruled defense objections to the tight security in the courtroom and said all person entering the courtroom during the trial will be frisked and photographed.

Paradise via UFOs promised by crusaders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A mysterious space-age crusade that promises paradise via UFOs to true believers reportedly has won converts in Northern California as well as Oregon.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported it had learned that nearly 30 persons enlisted last month in the movement led by a couple identifying themselves only as "the two."

Oregon authorities believe that as many as 20 persons left most of their personal belongings behind to follow the leaders of the crusade, called the Human Individual Metarmophosis, earlier this month.

Those attending meetings staged by "the two" have been told they must discard family and wordly goods to qualify for a trip to another world where they will find a better life.

Authorities in Oregon and California say they have no evidence of any wrongdoing.

But an aura of mystery surrounds "the two." And distraught relatives and friends of HIM converts have complained to authorities.

A San Jose radio talk show host, Victor Boc of KOME, said he had interviewed "the two" and that they claim to be from the "same vibrational level" as Jesus Christ and that they travel from planet to planet on UFOs.

The couple has been described as a well-groomed man and woman in their 40s.

Advance fliers say the couple will die and then be resurrected.

Boc said the couple he interviewed said they would be assassinated within the next two months in a large American city.

The Northern California recruits are thought to have journeyed to Mount Madonna Park in Santa Clara County after a meeting in Sunnyvale, south of San Francisco, about a month ago, said San Mateo County Assistant Dist. Atty. Margaret Kemp said.

It is not known where they went from there, she said.

They reportedly were equipped only with camping gear.

A park ranger said he had seen three or four middle-aged persons wandering around looking for UFOs but that he had seen no large gathering.

At least two HIM meetings have been held in Oregon and three in Northern California. Another is scheduled for tonight in San Jose.

A small advertisement announcing tonight's meeting appeared in Sunday editions of the San Jose Mercury-News.

It said: "The opportunity is here, when we as humans can fully evolve into a higher being. There is now on this planet two people from the higher level (UFO Beings) here to help us and many others with this transition."

The newspaper's advertising staff said the ad was placed last Friday morning by a man who gave the name of Paul Morgenstern.

But a call to the telephone number the man left was answered by a construction worker who said he had never heard of a Paul Morgenstern.

Cousteau looks for Atlantis

ATHENS (AP) — Jacques Cousteau, often described as a modern underwater Odysseus, will start scanning the Greek seas this month in search of lost treasures and the legendary city of Atlantis.

The world-renowned explorer told newsmen Tuesday that a recent agreement with Greek archeological authorities foresees filming of the Aegean islands seabeds that will culminate in a submarine descent near the island of Thira into the sunken crater many believe to be devastated Atlantis.

The project is mainly funded by the Greek government. The film series will be entitled "In Search of Atlantis" and "Mediterranean Treasures" and distributed to major television networks.

"We may produce a great number of astonishing antiquities from our exploration of the Aegean Sea, or on the other hand very little," Cousteau said. "But we will undoubtedly reveal information leading to a better understanding of the region's famed civilization."

The Aegean Sea is believed strewn with valuable antiquities from sunken ships belonging to varied civilizations, which fell victim to storms, local wars or piracy.

"Marine and geological studies will hopefully help us draw radical conclusions on the extent of the obviously flourishing civilization in the devastated area and whether it was actually linked to the legendary Atlantis," he said.

The mysterious scattering of volcanic islands centers around the popular island of Santorini, also known as Thira, 140 miles southeast of Athens. Archeologists theorize that great eruptions took place around 2000 B.C. which put an end to the Minoan civilization there. Several devastating earthquakes have taken place since then, the last one to cause any damage in 1956.

The ruins of Thira have been systematically unearthed since early in this century. The most striking finds were made in recent years by Greek archeologist Spyros Marinatos, who was killed in an accident while working on the site earlier this year. By then he had claimed to have found Atlantis.

Cousteau says he has no new theory on whether the military, trading and religious center of Atlantis did indeed exist and fell victim to the eruptions, but he plans to pick up from existing theories.

"With this information we can very shortly begin underwater research around the coast of Santorini and inside the volcano's sunken crater," he said. The explorer said pictures around the crater had been taken as early as 1983, revealing crystal-like slopes embedded with fish fossils.

Cousteau said the operation will involve his entire crew and fleet of minisubmarines and bathyspheres carrying the most advanced electronic equipment. The main vessel, the Calypso, left the United States last week and is expected in Greek waters next week.

Cousteau said work is expected to finish by July.

World has 25 years or else—Margaret Mead

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The world has at the outside — only about 25 years in which to get organized and find the solution to the destruction of the atmosphere, sea and land, according to one of the world's most respected anthropologists.

So said Dr. Margaret Mead who exchange viewpoints in a lively discussion with a small group of students and press at an informal gathering at Harvey Mudd College, Claremont this week.

The discussion was filmed by the British Broadcasting Corp. for a documentary to be aired in England this winter. Mrs. Mead also spoke at a public lecture on the campus Monday night.

Mrs. Mead began research of the cultures of the South Pacific nations in 1925 with in-depth studies in Samoa. Since then she has researched the patterns of the people in many countries. Her books on anthropology are used as texts in most universities and she has been on the faculty or served as a guest lecturer on most of the major campuses in this country.

In addition to books written by Mrs. Mead, she has been the subject of several books and countless articles.

She has taken a leave from teaching at the present to tour the country as a lecturer.

"We've got to start moving in another direction," said the teacher and researcher of cultures for more than 50 years. "We should already have move to technology that cleans up the world rather than pollutes it and we must have some worldwide controls.

"If we continue to pollute the atmosphere, we may create an irreversible situation."

"I can't understand why this nation is so incapable of learning," commented the anthropologists as she outlined her concerns with the changing cultural patterns.

Discussing the destruction of trust in the nation, Mrs. Mead recalled the past when people left money in the milk bottle on their front steps or placed the proper coin on papers for the blind news vender.

"We have no institutions we can trust. Maybe individuals, but not organizations," continued Mrs. Mead.

She believes that once trust is lost, it's never fully regained again. "You can't turn half of society into police to watch the other half."

Explaining her description of "trust," Mrs. Mead said, "We don't ask banks to teach nursery school, but we do ask them to keep our accounts accurately."

"We expect people to live up to the expectations of what they were hired or chosen to do." She continued "No one expects the PTA president to steal the PTA funds, but some do."

Asked by a student if there was a universal need to believe in something, Mrs. Mead replied, "Belief is a western idea, we don't talk about beliefs until there are non-believers."

But there have always been periods of distrust in our nation, Mrs. Mead noted. She referred to the Harding Administration and Teapot Dome scandals.

Idealism and cynicism recur in cycles. So do trust and distrust, she added.

The youth of the country were splintered and distrustful in 1939, recalled Mrs. Mead. "But with the threat of war, the most cynical became the most sentimental. We won't change now until we feel endangered enough to work together."

A student said that blacks feel they need to be distrustful. To this, Mrs. Mead said, "Yes, a period of high trust has been followed by disappointment. In the 1930s, blacks trusted Roosevelt when he urged them to work harder and send their children to school. They felt education would make a difference."

Chino petition asks help in controlling youths

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

"Rowdy youths" causing traffic problems in the Chino High School area were blasted Tuesday night in a petition presented to the City Council, which urged a "crackdown."

Frank Strader of 12150 Catalpa Place presented the petition signed by 74 residents, calling for stricter enforcement of traffic laws in the area of Catalpa and Jefferson Street.

The petition prompted Councilman Ed Lynch to charge the youths are "getting away with murder."

Drag racing in the area is a major problem, Strader said, but he added that "overt acts of drug sales, fighting, obscene language and a general lack of lawful behavior" have occurred.

Councilmen took no immediate action in the matter. While Lynch and Angel Martinez called for more intensive police patrols, other council members said construction of cul-de-sacs or traffic barriers might be the answer.

Mayor Bob McLeod and Councilman Leonard Frketich indicated they'd heard the same problems from residents before in other areas of the city. McLeod said police were cracking down on traffic violators in the high school area.

City Manager Bob Fast said a major problem may be the open campus program at the high school which allows students to leave the school grounds at lunch time.

Police spokesmen have reported increased problems of traffic because of the open campus program. It currently is being evaluated by school officials, and residents were urged by officials to approach the Chino school board on the issue.

Strader said "boisterous, rowdy people" congregate near Jefferson and Park Place. He cited various traffic accidents over the years, in which private property was damaged. Just recently, "some kids discharged an incendiary device (a "bottle rocket") on our roof, causing $400 in damage. My home could have been lost if some junior high kids hadn't helped out."

He added that a recent "kidnap fiasco" in the area and "intimidation" by youths has caused residents to petition for a "redress of grievances."

Strader requested more intensive police protection, no parking at any time on Jefferson, and placement of a cul-de-sac between Chino General Hospital and Jacaranda Court.

Robert Curtis, another resident, cited a crossing problem, "We have hot rodding in the area, and stop signs are not observed."

Ann Van Loon of 12570 Jacaranda Ct. praised police efforts but called for a cul-de-sac.

Victim was already dead, suspect says

By JACK BURSON
P-B Staff Writer

Gregory Thomas, 21-year-old man charged with raping and murdering 78-year-old Tessie Fern Williams in Pomona April 7, testified Tuesday afternoon that he found the victim lying dead on the floor of her little house when he went there with a friend that day.

Thomas, 2125 Heather Way, Pomona, took the witness chair in his own defense at his trial in Pomona Superior Court. He was questioned by his attorney, Joe Borgess Jr. of Pomona.

Thomas said he had driven his friend, Rodney L. Cole of Pomona, to Miss Williams' home at 645½ N. Huntington Ave. after Cole had told him he wanted to pick up "his box" there. Thomas interpreted "box" to mean a television set.

The young defendant said that when he saw the victim lying on the floor, he fled, running past his car parked outside. A few minutes later, as he was walking away, he said Cole stopped and picked him up in the car. There was a television set in the back seat, Thomas testified.

The youthful defendant, whose testimony was filled with slang, said he asked Cole, "What happened to that lady back at the house?" and Cole answered, "Shine it on." Thomas interpreted that to mean either forget it or "be cool."

He testified that he and Cole then went to another friend's home where he left Cole after telling him to take the television set with him.

Thomas said he went home, changed clothes, went to a liquor store with another friend and later "rolled through the island," a neighborhood in northeast Pomona, before going home again. He was arrested in connection with the case three days later.

Cole was called as a defense witness earlier Tuesday but, on the advice of an attorney, refused to testify on constitutional grounds. Later in the day he was fingerprinted in the public defender's office by Pomona Police Sgt. John Ellenbecker as the result of an order issued by the trial judge, Robert M. Takasugi. The fingerprinting apparently was an attempt to match Cole's prints with one unidentified print found in the victim's home, authorities said. Another print found there has been identified as Thomas'.

When asked why he had not told police of his claim that Cole had directed him to Miss Williams' home that day, Thomas said he hadn't wanted to "be a snitch, to give him up."

Among those he associates with, Thomas said, snitches don't last long.

Judge Takasugi continued the case to Tuesday.

ANTHROPOLOGIST VISITS
Concentrating as she talks to students, Dr. Margaret Mead discusses changing culture patterns during an informal meeting Monday at Harvey Mudd College, Claremont.

Hillside law hits rocky path

A proposed law that would prevent developers from cutting down hillsides is headed for trouble in La Verne.

The ordinance came up for adoption this week but the City Council put off action so it could study the consequences.

Councilman Frank Johnson contended that the proposal would primarily affect Mountain Springs Estates. But Julie Stewart, chairman of the Commission of Environmental Quality, said that neighborhood was only about 10 per cent of the area within the city which the ordinance sought to protect.

City Manager George Caswell reported that a subdivider has turned in plans to develop another 45 acres of the choice hillside area at the northern end of the city.

Johnson, in asking for the delay, declared that "while we don't want to tear up the mountainside, we don't want to make the ordinance so restrictive as to prevent someone from finishing the development."

The council agreed that Mountain Springs Estates is one of the city's finest developments, but Mayor Mike M. Morales said he has seen a subdivision map for the rest of the land and "believe me, it doesn't resemble the present development."

He declined to elaborate on that.

Mrs. Stewart urged the council to "consider the environment as well as the developers."

"The first time this ordinance came up, it was apparently all right," she charged. "But now that there is a little pressure applied, the council begins to hesitate."

She said the ordinance was supported by her commission as well as the Planning Commission and the city staff.

But Johnson urged the council to move cautiously.

"As this ordinance comes to us for final passage," he cautioned, "we have an existing subdivision map being processed. We may get nailed for this."

"Well, which is more important," Mrs. Stewart asked, "the possibility of getting sued or preserving our hillsides?"

But the council agreed to delay passage for two weeks so that the staff can prepare a report based on the proposed subdivision map and the implications of the ordinance.

L.V. extends control over state homes

The La Verne City Council has decided to extend its control over the establishment of state-authorized homes in the city.

The council introduced an ordinance Monday night requiring all persons who intend to establish homes for the care of children to apply for conditional use permits.

Councilmen felt that although under the state law they may not prevent a home from getting settled in La Verne, they would have control over the type of home that may be established.

The action came after two homes for girls were started in the city earlier this year without the council's knowledge. Neighbors protested the "overnight appearance" of the homes but were told last summer that the council had no ordinance controlling the homes.

In introducing the ordinance, the council felt that since the conditional use permit would require a public hearing, neighbors would have a chance to question the applicants.

Judge to speak

The La Verne Rotary Club will get a lesson on how a judge makes his decision when it meets at the Castaway Restaurant Thursday noon.

The speaker will be Robert Gustaveson, a judge at the Pomona Municipal Court. His topic will be "Criminal Sentencing."

Viet refugee aid program needs donations, workers

A community group formed to aid Vietnamese refugees in Pomona is now accepting donated items and seeking volunteers to assist in its program.

The group, Community Emphasis for Southeast Asian Refugees (CESAR), has established a collection point for donated items at the Bethel Baptist Church, 312 E. 10th St., Pomona, which is open 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Mrs. Marilyn Offut, coordinator of CESAR, said the most immediate needs are warm clothing for both adults and children, blankets, towels and related items.

Also needed are cooking utensils, pots, rice bowls and similar items. Other items, such as furniture, children's toys, and bicycles, will also be accepted.

The organization is also seeking volunteers to staff the collection center, provide transportation on a standby basis, and help operate a food cooperative.

Interpreters are also needed, especially someone able to speak Vietnamese, Chinese and English.

For information about CESAR programs or donations, persons may contact the Pomona Red Cross at 622-1348 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Claremonter hurt falling from car

A 14-year-old Claremont girl suffered a broken collar bone and abrasions Tuesday afternoon when she fell out of car as it was rounding a curve on Live Oak Canyon Road, three miles north of College Way, Claremont.

Taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital was Paula Griffin, 14, of 1714 Lynoak Drive, Claremont.

The car driven by James Leonard Bryla, 704 Ridgefield Drive, Claremont, was northbound on Live Oak Canyon Road when the door on the passenger side opened and Miss Griffin fell out.

Pomona board votes

Smoking rules must be made by each school

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

On a 3-1 vote, Pomona school board Tuesday night agreed to pass the decision on whether to establish campus smoking areas down to the individual schools.

Board member Mary Montes made the motion that the recommendation of the administration be approved. C. Allen Braswell seconded the motion.

Board president Don Donnelly, who last July voted with Ken Pine and Mrs. Montes to ban campus smoking and enforce the ban, switched his vote as did Mrs. Montes.

Pine maintained his position opposing smoking on campus. Gene Whitlock, who in July voted with Braswell to allow schools to establish smoking areas, abstained.

In making her motion to accept the administration's recommendation, Mrs. Montes asked that each campus "have full representation of your school population" in making its decision.

The recommendation approved calls for each of the high schools to determine individually if smoking areas are to be established on campus effective Jan. 1, as allowed by state law.

If the decision is affirmative, the recommendation stipulates that areas must be inconspicuous and away from the central campuses, that principals be permitted to suspend the operations if problems develop, and that fire marshals be consulted regarding safety of locations.

In addition, each school that opts for an on-campus smoking area is charged with developing, in writing, a clearly defined educational program regarding the harmful effects of smoking.

School board approval of each high school proposal will be required.

Pine told the board that with this decision he saw "no particular change" in what has been going on in the past at the schools and said he would "look with interest to see what the parent involvement will be" in making the decisions.

"In essence, we're winding up with another babysitting chore," Pine added. Then turning to Donnelly, he continued, "Don, I'm disappointed in the fact you've changed your mind. I feel we're just condoning something we're not proud of, and although my decision is unpopular it still stands."

Mrs. Ethel Henning, president of Pomona Chapter of Women's Christian Temperance Union, was the only one from the audience to address the school board on the issue.

She has spoken out in opposition to smoking on campus since the beginning. "It's the same old story," she said, "but I believe I'm on the right side."

In other actions, the school board:

— Recommended Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz, who is leaving next week to fill a similar position in St. Louis, Mo., with a resolution presentation, and presentations from Pomona PTA Council and Associated Pomona Teachers.

— Authorized Ganesha High School drama students to participate in a competition Nov. 15 in Los Angeles.

— Accepted a report on the summer learn-to-swim pilot program which involved 136 students.

— Approved continued participation of Pomona High students in an English literature tutorial program at Parnell Ranch.

At Bonita, parents will decide

By JEANNE HEMENOVER
PB Staff Writer

Parents of students at three high schools in the Bonita school district will decide whether or not smoking should be permitted on the campuses, according to district trustees.

A new law, which becomes effective Jan. 1, amends the State Education Code to allow smoking on high school campuses with board approval.

Bonita board members decided at their meeting Tuesday to have parents at each of the high schools — Bonita, San Dimas and Chaparral — determine if smoking should be permitted. A parent referendum will be presented to the board at an Oct. 28 meeting.

Decisions on smoking would be made independently for each campus so that, finally, smoking may be permitted at some schools and not at others. Students and staff will be offered an opportunity to give their views on the subject to parents.

As part of a plan to use a portion of the income from the district's revenue limit increase to benefit children directly, the board approved an increase in supply allowances and instructional equipment for each school. A $1.50 per pupil increase in supply allowances was approved and will result in a cost of approximately $11,500. A $15,000 figure was approved for replacement of instructional equipment.

The use of revenue-limit increase funds was also shown to the board in a report on district maintenance projects accomplished over the summer. These projects included roofing, sprinklers and landscaping, asphalt paving, repair and maintenance, and painting at various schools. According to Supt. James Johnson, these improvements would not have been possible without the revenue-limit increase.

In other business, trustees approved a joint powers agreement with the Claremont and Pomona School Districts to hire Mrs. Elaine Grillo Canty as legal adviser. Mrs. Canty has been a deputy on the staff of the county counsel for 12 years and has been Bonita district's counsel for three years.

Onward and upward

After four years in Pomona, Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz is leaving to become superintendent of public schools in St. Louis, Mo.

His stint of service in our community has not been an easy one. His accomplishments are visible and many and will be remembered.

Wentz arrived in Pomona in 1971 in the middle of an explosive situation triggered by population, economic and political change.

He immediately was issued a fireman's hat and assigned to cool the situation and restore order.

It didn't happen overnight, and along the way Wentz did not please everybody.

Some in the community said harmony would have occurred without Wentz, that it would just have taken a little time before those new to the community would have made peace among themselves and things would have quieted down.

We think credit should be given where credit is due.

Professional, thinking and caring leadership was required to accomplish the calm which today is reflected in the district's schools.

Wentz provided that leadership.

To him we say, thank you for what you have done for our community. Together we gained a measure of maturity.

And as he leaves Pomona, we wish him well in his new assignment.

Citizens can help to fight crime

A recent poll revealed that residents of the Nation's largest cities consider crime as the worst problem facing their communities. This was in sharp contrast to a similar poll taken in 1949 when big-city dwellers ranked crime far down among the items on their lists of major civic problems.

The findings of this poll are, I believe, not at all surprising to most law enforcement officers. We have been inclined for many years to perceive crime as the number one problem of most communities, regardless of their size. After all, lawlessness has reached unprecedented heights in rural, suburban, and metropolitan areas alike, and the volume of serious crimes has risen awesomely in all these regions during the past 25 years.

What is surprising — indeed, what is encouraging — to the law enforcement profession is the fact that the public's awareness of the fearsome dimensions of crime has matured at a time when the country is faced, according to many knowledgeable observers, with some of the gravest problems in its history. To have assigned it this top priority convinces me that the public is not only troubled by crime but is truly alarmed by it.

Perhaps this alarm is a blessing in disguise! If anything good can come from pernicious criminality, it is when the public has had its fill and becomes solidly arrayed against it. For in the public's attitude is found the environment in which crime will either flourish or subside. If people are unconcerned with lawlessness other than at their own doorstep, patronize illegal activities, look the other way when wrongdoing occurs, do not come forward to testify concerning offenses they witnessed, give meager or no support to criminal justice agencies, consciously break laws themselves, and are indifferent to issues that affect the well-being of persons and communities, then crime will certainly thrive.

On the other hand, if citizens express their outrage at crime and report its occurrence promptly to police, cooperate fully in its investigation and prosecution, give unflinching support to criminal justice system programs, demand realistic punishment for serious or repeat offenders, set an example themselves of law-abiding citizenship, and become involved in correcting the inequities that exist in their communities, then crime will surely be contained.

No successful attack on crime can be made without the backing of an informed and aroused citizenry. It is the bedrock upon which a determined assault on lawlessness must be built. — Clarence M. Kelley, FBI Director

Proceed with vigor

Dear Editor:

This is indeed the land of opportunity, and any two year old will happily demonstrate what can be done with a little opportunity. Those that can get away with murder often will.

Our permissive society is demonstrated by the Pomona School District now contemplating whether or not to establish designated areas for illegal smoking. Maybe the youngsters are getting the wrong dope in our education system.

Steve Zetterberg, an attorney, suggests we ignore the whole situation, saying the Prog should skip crime news or relegate it to the back pages. He feels the Prog should emulate the N.Y. Times, perhaps devoting more space to baiting the F.B.I. Others suggest we should amend the statutes, making it all legal, or reducing the punishment.

Our public servants are naturally confused. Do we want the law enforced or not? All we need to reduce crime is for legal process to proceed with the same vim and vigor of a traffic citation. We note the 55 mile an hour speed limit is pretty well enforced.

Finger pointing by the officials is popular and to an extent justifiable. However, if they can't or won't meet popular demands they can and should be replaced. — Ray O. Swanson, Pomona

Publish a scoreboard

Dear Editor:

Your interest in Pomona and many of its problems is very commendable and I believe that you are right in taking a positive step in the direction of finding out what is wrong.

First of all, I have lived in Pomona for over sixty years and I have been in practice for over 35 years, so I have seen Pomona in its heyday to starting to slip down the tubes.

The problems inherent to our city are very little different than most cities in the U.S. We did have the do-gooder societies encourage a change in the city charter which created a virtual dictatorship, leaving the mayor and city council merely actors in a charade. This should be changed back so that the taxpayer has something to say about the management of the city.

The downtown mall is gone as a shopping area, as most downtown malls have because you have maybe 100 different property owners all pulling in different directions.

The downtown ghetto is made even worse by the complete lack of law enforcement. This does not refer to the police department, but to the judicial system.

The Progress Bulletin could render a service of tremendous magnitude if you would have the guts to publish the scoreboard of all law violators, the number of counts each has against him, the type of accounts, and the disposition of each case in court. This would serve to point out the judges who are presently failing to mete out the proper sentences. I don't believe the Progress Bulletin has got the guts to start such a series. Now prove me wrong. — Harvey R. Robson, O.D.

Reason to be scared

Dear Editor:

I certainly do agree with you that crime is Pomona's No. 1 problem.

I cannot understand the citizens who would like to bury their head in the sand and not know what is happening. It behooves all of us to be wary, in our own homes as well as out on the street.

I also know that your paper only reports a fraction of the crime in this city. If the people knew everything that was happening, they would really be scared. AND THEY SHOULD BE SCARED. Maybe then they would demand that something be done about it. The way it is now — the criminal is released from jail and back out on the street, before the police officer can finish writing up his report.

Police are besieged

Regarding your editorial in Sunday's paper. I would like to extend my thanks for letting we the citizens know at least partially what is going on here in our fair city. I say partially because of the fact that we happen to have access to a police radio monitor, and what you print in the Bulletin is merely a minute fraction of the crime percentage here in Pomona.

Our fine policemen are earning every cent of the pay they receive. One has only to turn on their police radio to realize the extent of crime on any night of the week, month after month. The policemen are literally besieged at all times.

I read the letter of opposition from a certain gentleman from Claremont which was printed in the Oct. 1 column of the public forum. I'm sure if he lived in Pomona, he would not be criticizing your paper for printing the "Spotlight on Crime."

Instead, I think he would be like the rest of us citizens. He'd like to know what is going on around him so he could keep a watchful eye. And in all respects, this is important. Not only for our own well being, but the well being of our neighbors, also.

So Mr. Editor, don't hold back, but print it as it is, and I mean all of it. A war against crime? I'm all for it. Let's get at it.

E.G.C.

Public's right to know

Dear Editor:

Bravo and amen. Yes, we the public should be aware of the crime rate in our home town. However, I strongly feel that juveniles who commit murders and other heinous crimes should also have their names published. If they are old enough to commit such acts then the public should have the right to know who they are — be they young or old.

I remember moving to Pomona in 1940. It's hard to believe what has happened to our beautiful downtown Pomona. How proud we were to show visitors our lovely downtown mall. It's appalling to see it today.

Where do we go from here? Something must be done to restore it to what it once was. Is Pomona going down the drain? I pray not. I was a public servant for over 24 years, retiring last December. To spend leisurely shopping day in downtown Pomona seems to be something of the past. Can't our city fathers do something to make Pomona the city it once was. A city with a future. — Mr. and Mrs. R. V. S.

Rate judges

Dear Editor:

Not only do I agree with the "Spotlight on Crime," but I feel the paper should go further in the interest of community protection.

Publish the court adjudications, so the public will be aware of which judges are the most lenient, and can then take appropriate action at voting time.

For example: "Joe Doaks, originally charged with assault with intent to commit murder, pleaded guilty to simple assault in the court of Judge Joe Doe, and was placed on probation." As it is now, the public has no knowledge of the performance of a judge. We are all rated on our job performance, why not judges.

Publish the names of juveniles who commit serious crimes. Forget all that "garbage" about protecting the juvenile, particularly those 15 years old and up, public protection should require that the community know who in their neighborhood is a danger to their safety and property.

No faith in leadership

Dear Editor:

So you finally noticed. Most people I talk to haven't had any faith in the leadership of our elected officials, newspaper, chamber of commerce, police force, etc., etc., etc. for a number of years. I am available for conversation to a responsible person most any time. Why don't you print all the crimes? — Donley C. Brake

Other half of battle

Dear Editor:

I am returning the editorial printed in the Sept. 28th paper and you may count on me to STAND UP AND BE COUNTED!!

I, myself, am very happy that you have been printing the "spotlight on crime" for I feel that it is every citizen's responsibility to know what is going on in his town and I want to be informed. I realize that this is probably not helping the real estate businesses but if people were at least realistic about the problem and realized that it exists everywhere and that it is up to the individuals to do something instead of not moving in or in moving out then we just might see the problem starting to be solved.

I am glad to be able to share the problem with the police department for heaven knows that they know everything that goes on and must carry the burden by themselves — why should they!! The greater the number on the side of doing something constructive the more positive things that can be accomplished and the easier the burden.

Please continue publishing the facts so that I may be aware of what is going on around me and not pretend that problems don't exist. Count me as a volunteer to help in whatever you may decide to do concerning this problem, and do not hesitate to contact me. STANDING UP is one thing but INVOLVING YOURSELF is another and that is the other half of the battle.

I sincerely hope that your response will be meaningful and that others will come forward to help in our problem. — Floren E. Ontiveros, Pomona

Use the ballot box

Dear Editor:

The most obvious way that a citizen can participate directly in public affairs is by going to the ballot box. Hence, except on the score of his ignorance or indifference, we need not shed too many tears for the uninformed nonvoter. As long as he remains uninformed, he is doing a service by staying away from the polls.

The uninformed citizen who does vote presents a much more serious problem, however. He is rendering a distinct disservice to himself and to our democracy. He, like the nonvoter, is failing in the performance of one of his duties as a citizen. Still, his ballot counts for just as much as one cast by a conscientious and informed citizen. Making these people see the error of their ways is an important step toward helping to make democracy work more effectively. — Virginia Bailey

Pressure city government

Dear Editor:

We are in complete agreement with you in printing the daily "Spotlight on Crime" article. I only wish you would print more of the crime situation in the area.

It is this kind of thing that we need to shake up the citizenry to bring pressure on our city government, that they better get off their butts and do something to stop crime in this city or there won't be no city for them to govern.

This means all the people that are being paid to protect the citizens. Business and industry will return only when it is reasonably safe to their employes to live there and them to conduct their business. — W. E. Espiau and employes

Opportunity for citizens

Dear Editor:

God bless you and your efforts to help make Pomona a beautiful city again — and safe. The citizens of Pomona and surrounding communities have the opportunity to do something instead of talking. Please put us on your "Do list." — Mrs. R. Payne, Chino

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

New York City is in a bad way financially. In fact, the experts claim it is now $3.3 billion dollars in debt. To better understand just what that means, look at it this way. There are 3.2 billion seconds in a century. So even if the New York City Fathers could find someone willing to put up $1 a second for the next 100 years in order to pay off the city's $3.3 billion deficit, New York would still be operating in the red. — And if that shakes you up a bit, maybe it would be better if you didn't think about our national debt which is now $528 billion.

Arabs publish boycott list

WASHINGTON — Some 2,000 American firms, ranging from Ford Motors to small pet shops have been blacklisted by the Arabs.

The boycott list, identifying allegedly pro-Zionist companies for economic retaliation, was prepared in Lebanon. It is considered more important than earlier lists, because a Lebanese heads the Arab boycott office in Damascus.

A similar list, provided to the Commerce Department by firms that actually were approached by the Arabs, is now the subject of a hot controversy on Capitol Hill.

Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton has refused to surrender the list to Congress, contending that the firms were promised confidentiality. Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., whose investigating committee has demanded the list, is considering whether to cite Morton for contempt.

The Lebanese list was approved Dec. 6, 1974, at a closed cabinet meeting in Beirut. Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., managed to get a copy and showed it to us.

Although this particular boycott list is treated with great gravity by Arab governments, it is curiously haphazard. For example, more than one insignificant pet store and a shoe repair firm are listed. Yet the United Jewish Appeal for the Film Industry has been removed from the list. Perhaps some Arab diplomat or petty sheikh didn't like the service when he stopped to buy a canary or get his shoes heeled.

Some Arab countries, such as Syria and Saudi Arabia, treat the boycott list as if it were taken from the Koran. But in Morocco, say, it is virtually ignored.

Some Arab officials, according to our sources, use the list to extort bribes. For a little "baksheesh," they can be persuaded to ignore the boycott.

Such firms as General Electric, Miles Laboratores, Trans World Airlines and the Hilton hotel chain are active in Israel. Yet they still manage to do business in the Arab world.

The 2,000 blacklisted firms cover every facet of U.S. business, with special emphasis on communications companies. Such firms as CBS, NBC, United Artists and Otto Preminger Films are on the list.

A number of liquor companies, led by Calvert and Seagrams, are also listed, although Arabs supposedly don't drink and, therefore, should have no need to import liquor.

The U.S. oil industry, predictably, has all but escaped the boycott. Other companies have been removed from the boycott list, including Kaiser Steel, General Paper, General Tire, Monsanto, RKO General and a Yugoslav sewing machine plant.

A few of the blacklisted organizations and products include:

B'Nai B'rith, Brush On Eye Shadow, Coca Cola, Connecticut Mutual Insurance, Hartz Mountain pet foods, Hertz, Knopf and Random House books, Moon Drops, Laurance Rockefeller Associates, Republic Steel, Allstate Insurance, Bergdorf Goodman, Ronrico gold and white rum, Lazard Freres investments and Leeds Music. Also Minkos stamps, Motorola, Playtex, Pratt and Whitney, Republic Pictures, Topps Chewing Gum, Xerox, Zenith Radio, Aetna Casualty, American Doll and Toy, American Electric Power, Beaunit Mills, Botany Mills, Bulova watches, Fairbanks Morse, Golden Bear oil, Harry Winston jewelers, Helena Rubinstein (listed three times, with two misspellings), Israel Numismatic Service and Jewish War Veterans.

Footnote: About 99 out of every 100 blacklisted firms are American. But companies were also boycotted in Britain, Taiwan, Tanzania, Turkey, Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

MAIL BAG: We received a letter last week from Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, one of President Ford's would-be assassins. She wanted to be put in touch with Dr. John Gofman, a noted nuclear physicist, whose warnings against nuclear power development we had published. Squeaky sought some information from Dr. Gofman. "I would get it myself," she wrote, "but I am presently incarcerated in the Sacramento county jail."

We reported last month that the FBI's computer center had been misused to hunt down non-criminals. One of the victims, Eric Staubes of Binghampton, N.Y., wrote to us about his experience. He was confronted with a computer printout 14 feet long. Police grilled him for six hours. He was wanted in two states, they charged, on 14 counts of auto theft. They claimed he had 40 aliases. It turned out that the supposedly foolproof computer system had fingered the wrong man. "Do you get the feeling Big Brother is watching?" Staubes asked us.

Valley resident victim of wrong credit rating

Last October I was denied credit because of a bad credit report that Trans Union Systems Corp.-Computer Credit Corp. gave about my wife and me.

I wrote in to Trans Union and did all the things the people there told me to arrange for an on-the-phone discussion of my credit.

Then on Oct. 24, 1974, I spoke to them. They said that Pacific Credit Exchange had a court judgment against us on file. When I told them the judgment had been satisfied years ago, they said I would have to call Pacific myself and straighten out the record.

Next day I called Pacific Credit Exchange. A woman told me "no way" had that firm given a bad report on us. The Pacific Credit Exchange file showed that judgment as having been satisfied.

So I called Trans Union back. I was told the record would be corrected.

I guess it never was because five months later I tried to get credit at a department store. I tried again last month. I was denied credit both times.

The second time I didn't give it much thought because the credit wasn't really essential to me but now I'm really getting tired of all this runaround.

I paid the judgment and did everything possible to straighten out the wrong. Even the people I owed the money to have forgiven me. But the Trans Union staff just can't seem to understand that.

My credit can't be that bad. I bought a $32,000 home 17 months ago, a $400 bedroom set a year ago and a $1,750 truck two weeks ago, all on credit.

But these people at Trans Union keep refusing me credit. I want to know why. — V.A., Pomona

We never did find out why Trans Union gave you a bad credit report but we were assured by Mrs. N.N. Routt, manager of the consumer relations department, that the judgment against you was satisfied on July 26, 1971, and is recorded that way.

They sent you a message that your credit record now reflects changes reading "corrected copy sent" and "wage assignment removed."

I have received a letter and "finders fee agreement" from Universal Missing Heirs, Inc. in Lynbrook, N.Y.

The letter states that an unclaimed bank account in my surname has been located by Universal Missing Heirs through an examination of official state publications and state public records.

"By virtue of this (the identical surname), you may be the owner, related to the owner, or the actual heir to this sum of money," the letter says.

Universal Missing Heirs asks for a $17 fee for a "research report."

The fee is refundable, according to the letter, "if the unclaimed account has already been paid or is the subject of a viable claim."

Should I take advantage of this service? —M.H., Claremont

In our opinion, you could attain the same lack of benefit by spending only $10 with the California Probate Document Service in Canoga Park.

Both appear to be legal. You sent us a copy of the letter from Universal Missing Heirs and it, like California Probate Document Service, contains a safeguard — for the company.

In the Universal Missing Heirs, letter, it reads like this:

"The sole basis of this contact with you is that your surname is identical with the depositor of record as shown on official state publications and state public records, which are the only reference sources we employ."

State Controller Kenneth Cory calls firms like these mass-mailing "heir chasers" who are luring a harvest of dollars from thousands of Californians who think they may share in abandoned property and unclaimed estates.

Sex assault by dad feared

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother whose husband can't stay out of the bathroom when his teenage daughters are showering or bathing really got to me. I owe it to every teenage girl in the world to tell my story.

That mother said her 14-year-old didn't seem to mind because she never complained. Well, maybe she has been threatened into silence — like I was.

You should have told Mom to get her crazy, sick husband out of the house before one or both of her daughters got raped.

Being sexually attacked by a stranger is bad enough, but when it's your own father it creates horrible, twisted feelings that hang in your head night and day. No one can imagine what an effect such an act can have on a young girl.

I was 12 when it happened to me. Now at 19, even after all the counseling, I still get sick to my stomach when a decent boy wants to hold my hand. I keep wondering if I'll ever be able to have a normal sex life.

If I were in that mother's place I'd order the father out of the house immediately and insist that he get psychiatric treatment. He could come back if and when the doctor said he was well. No man will ever jeopardize the children I hope to have someday. — Been Through It

Dear B.T.I.: So have hundreds of others, dear. I was chilled by the number of letters I received from young girls who wrote to say they had been sexually assaulted by their fathers.

Once again, I urge every girl who experiences such a trauma to tell her mother at once. If — and this may be hard to believe + your mother refuses to believe you, or will do nothing to protect you, call the police at once and let the law step in.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot about people who can't seem to get anyplace on time. What about those who come early to dinner?

I love this couple dearly but they always louse me up by showing up at least 30 minutes ahead of time. Every hostess needs those 30 minutes to do her last-minute chores before guests arrive.

I'd appreciate any word of advice you can offer. This has been going on for at least three years and — I Have Had It With The Early Birds

Dear Had It: You write rather well so I assume you can also speak. The next time you invite the Early Birds for dinner tell Mrs. E.B. you'd appreciate it if they wouldn't arrive before the appointed hour because you need the extra time to get things ready.

If after that little speech, they STILL arrive early, let 'em lean on the bell awhile.

Dear Ann Landers: May I offer a few words to the elderly? Stop wasting precious time worrying about old age. It's part of life. Even children grow older every day. I have seen 68 summers but I refuse to remember the winters.

The secret of a happy life is to be useful. Get a part-time job. Develop a hobby. Do volunteer work in a hospital, nursing home or a place that helps delinquent or handicapped children.

Age represents knowledge and experience. The world needs you. Shut the door on uselessness and self-pity. When you help others you best serve yourself. Enjoy life. It's beautiful. — Betty

Dear Betty: Your message was Wow-Power. Thanks for a piece of solid philosophy.

Nose buried in the paper

Women don't like to have men read newspapers.

More specifically, wives don't like to have their husbands read newspapers. It has nothing to do with what he is reading in the paper — presumably an intelligent wife wants her husband to be informed on the Middle East, $1-a-gallon gasoline and the Rams' chances for the Super Bowl. But nothing sets the uxorial tongue a-wagging more readily and insistently than the sight of friend hubby reaching for the daily newspaper.

Nor is the relentless interruption due to the urgency of the news she has to impart, the tidbit to be shared, the queries to be posed. Wives wrack their brains to think of things to draw their mates' attention away from the newsprint.

He comes home after work and settles down in his easy chair with his carrot juice on the rocks.

"Well, how'd everything go today, honey?" he asks.

"Hm? Oh—okay, I guess."

"Kids behaving?"

"Pretty well — for them. You know."

"Yeah, sure." Long pause. "So what's new?"

"Oh nothing, I guess," she says, smiling. "Same old thing."

Silence falls. She buffs her nails. He watches her. Minutes pass. Finally he picks up the newspaper and cracks it open.

"Oh, by the way, dear," says friend wife. She waits till he looks at her. ("If he's not looking at me, he's not listening," she tells her friends.) He looks up.

"Jean had her baby — a girl. They're naming it after his mother. And the Dobermans are getting a divorce. She's moved to an apartment. And did you hear that Lee and Sally are going to England? He got that grant . . ."

I have a friend who is so used to being interrupted when he's got his nose buried in the paper (that's how wives always phrase it — "He always has his nose buried in the paper") that he moves his finger along the line he is reading like a child with his first primer. When his wife speaks, his finger halts and he looks up. When she is through, he goes right back and the finger marches on.

He reads, "President Ford today said that the wheat sales to Russia — "

"Dear?" says his wife. Finger pauses. "The McGregors are having their house painted — cream color. It'll certainly be an improvement, won't it? Lucy says it'll cost $1,200."

"Wow." Pause. Finger starts to move. "— will help the American farmer by increasing demand for —"

"Honey?" Pause. "Do you think we ought to have Billy's room done over? It's pretty drab. I'll ask him when he gets home from school."

"— grain. The sales would not, however, force domestic prices —"

"Jim? Did I tell you the Warrens want us for dinner next Friday?"

"— up. Bumper crops predicted for the year will more than meet the demands of the American housewife for wheat products."

"Those Warren kids are certainly shooting up. I ran into Lucy downtown today and I hardly recognized her."

The moving finger halts — and having listened, moves on.

Dr. Lamb

Don't run the wrong way

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was surprised to read you do not recommend running as a suitable physical fitness exercise. I just read a recent book and the doctor who wrote it thinks running is the best way for people to condition themselves. He nearly pooh-poohs anything slower than a mile and a half in 12 minutes, provided this is worked up to slowly and the individual is in good shape medically. Your advice is to walk or at most jog slowly, and it seems to me that this flies in the face of this book.

I'm 33 years old, and like most people, I'm too fat, too lazy and smoke too much. However, I've followed the program in this book with pretty good success except for those occasions (which have been many) when I have tried to do too much or the weather suddenly turned hot and humid, after which I'd feel tired for three or four days from only one running session.

I'd like to know if you think the program in this book is dangerous.

DEAR READER — You have gotten the wrong impression if you think I am opposed to running and jogging. I am only opposed to doing it the wrong way. My column must deal with the entire spectrum of the public, and I never know what any one individual's health status is. I am not about to recommend an excessive exercise program without suitable controls.

The book you mention did just that in an earlier edition and several deaths resulted from people exercising the wrong way. And some of them were in relatively young men. If the author had been experienced in heart disease he might have written his first edition differently.

What do I mean by jogging or running safely? First, no one should go out and see how far they can go in 12 minutes to test his level of fitness. I believe this mistake was removed in the most recent edition. A lot of sedentary office types who have not run a block in years and are overweight can get into serious trouble with such a procedure.

Second, start a walking program FIRST and gradually build up to the jogging level.

Third, if you are qualified to begin a jogging program never push the clock. Speed is not nearly as important as developing endurance. Recent studies from the U.S. Air Force Academy published in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. prove that a person uses about the same amount of calories in slowly jogging a given distance as in rapidly jogging. It is the distance that counts.

I don't believe jogging will seriously injure anyone who follows sensible rules. Some people do drop dead exercising and other people die in bed from heart attacks, unrelated to exercise. For a complete discussion of this, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents, a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 4-2, Jogging, Exertion, Sudden Death.

You can get as much benefit for your heart and circulation by jogging a longer distance slower and not pushing yourself to peak exertion. Marathon running is intended to train you to run a long distance, not to win a 100-yard dash. A good rule is never jog so fast that you can't still talk while you are doing it. That way you won't overload the heart suddenly without knowing it and get into serious trouble during or perhaps minutes or hours after the jog is over.

Opening lead—J♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

If today's hand were played in the national charity duplicate the chances are that there would be several thousand bidding sequences. Some pairs would just reach game. Others would reach six notrump, down one after a spade lead. Some would play in six diamonds (also down one).

The few who would be in six clubs would also be likely to fall one short, although there is a perfect safety play available.

Playing in six clubs, South wins the spade lead, draws trumps, cashes three hearts in order to get rid of his small spade, ruffs dummy's last spade and since he is in his own hand proceeds to lead a low diamond and to play dummy's eight spot. East wins and is end-played.

Suppose West held the four diamonds. If they included just two honors West would win and be forced to give South a ruff and discard. If West held all three honors and did not play one that eight spot would have won the trick. If he played one, South would win with dummy's king, lead back the eight; duck and let West be end-played.

Suppose diamonds were 3-2. Then there would be only one diamond loser and everyone would make the slam.

Ask the Jacobys

♠ AQ754 ♥ K2 ♦ K83 ♣ KJ4.

This is a classic notrump in spite of your five spades. You have 16 points and stoppers in all suits and definitely want the lead up to your hand.

Of big-footed blonde girls

It has been written that blonde girls with big feet are unusually patient. But they have an evangelical streak in them. With a secret desire to carry the light of truth into the world of darkness. They make good missionaries' wives. So says an analyst who, despite some ridicule, insists physical characteristics reveal personality traits. Our Love and War Man used to be rather skeptical about those contentions. But he now says that generations of research by scholars at Harvard suggest there may be something to such notions, after all.

PRESCOTT

Ancestors of people named Prescott stayed at the "Priest's Cottage" in the villages of old England.

NOBODY in Europe had ever heard of syphilis until Christopher Columbus' crew got back from the New World trips.

Q. "HOW DO the sheep in Montana compare to the population there?"

A. The sheep are dumber. Wait, that's too flip. About two sheep to each person.

LOOKS AS THOUGH no further argument is possible against the old line that men are more "red blooded than women. They are. A man has far more red corpsucles than a woman of the same weight and height, say the science boys.

LIMERICK

To our annual limerick contest, William K. Alsop, Jr., offers one more: "A woman in Thief River Falls . . . Was a glutton for beef-liver balls . . . When she yelled, 'Dinner's ready!' . . . Her spouse muttered, 'Steady! . . . The beef-liver grief-giver calls.' "

WAS A LITTLE UNDER the weather the other day, so had occasion at home to look at some of the daytime TV game shows. Aren't they too suggestive? Maybe it's just in the delivery. Paul Lynde handles his naughty little lines like a naughty little boy, cunningly enough. But some of those celebrities walk on their wit in barnyard boots. You'd think they'd have enough fetching up to wipe their feet before they came into the living room. Bye now. It's time for my warm milk and cookies.

What people say

"Reasoned evaluation suggests that we will not be able to regulate nuclear weapons around the world in 1999 any better than we can control the Saturday-night special, heroin or pornography as we might wish today."

—Thomas Schelling, arms strategist, in a forum at Harvard University on whether or not there will be nuclear war by 1999.

He's a mystery man from the CIA

HE'S NO SPY — Igor Vorobyoff is agent 004 for the CIA, and his job is to translate unclassified Russian publications for the agency.

JUNE LAKE, Calif. (AP) — Some people in this tiny mountain community say that Igor Vorobyoff, who dresses like a Russian peasant, is a spy. He isn't, but he does work for the CIA.

Vorobyoff has been something of a mystery since he settled here in the southern Sierra a year ago.

A merchant, who says several other townspeople agree with his suspicions, insists, "He's a spy for the CIA. But we can't understand what someone from the CIA would be doing in a place like this. What's there to spy on in June Lake?"

Vorobyoff, a bearded husky, 6-footer, takes it good naturedly, laughs and says, "People try to look for more than there is."

He said, "Those who don't should ask me what I do. Sure I work for the CIA. I'm agent 004. But I'm no spy."

What he does do is translate unclassified Russian publications into English for the Central Intelligence Agency. His CIA identification number is 11004.

Vorobyoff, 32, is a translator for the CIA's Joint Publications Research Services, the official U.S. translation office which does work for many agencies of the government. He translates unclassified documents.

"As a translator I have tremendous freedom," he said. "I can live and work wherever I choose. I moved to June Lake because I love to backpack in the mountains."

He studied to become an ichthyologist at the University of California at Davis, but while in school worked part time as a translater. "I liked it so much on graduating I decided to become a fulltime translator instead of working with fish," he said.

Contract translators such as Vorobyoff earn between $20,000 and $30,000 a year. He said, "On a good day I can do 1,200 to 1,400 words an hour for eight hours. Translator fees vary from $10 to $30 per 1,000 words."

He dictates into a recorder and has three typists to prepare his transcripts. He said about 25 per cent of his pay goes to the typists.

Vorobyoff has a library of Russian dictionaries, medical and scientific books and journals. "It's vital to be knowledgeable about the subject covered in publications you are translating," he said. "And you just have a good command of English as well as the foreign language because it's important to write readable copy."

Vorobyoff was born in Chile to Russian parents, but came to California at the age of four when his father was hired as an instructor at the Army's language school in Monterey.

Reactions to court's 'no' vary

CARSON CITY (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to hear a dispute over power of California members of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency is prompting mixed comments from officials involved in the hassle.

Nevada Atty. Gen. Robert List, who opposed the hearing sought by California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, termed the court's action "a victory for Nevada's strength on the TRPA."

Younger said he was deeply disappointed by the decision but will abide by it.

Younger added his office "will continue its efforts to achieve reasonable and effective land use controls in the Tahoe area."

Younger's challenge of the method for issuing permits to allow construction of two hotelcasinos at Lake Tahoe was "much greater than a question of construction," List said.

"We entered the case because of the larger issue of state sovereignty," List said. "This decision by the Supreme Court should end the hassle with those who would deprive Nevada of its right to a voice in the future of the Nevada side of the Lake Tahoe basin."

Fran Breen, lawyer for Oliver Kahle who plans to build one of the big clubs, said Younger's effort "was just for purposes of delaying and harrassing us. The case had no merit, and we would have been very much surprised if the Supreme Court had ruled otherwise."

Harold Dayton, TRPA member and chairman of the Douglas County Commission which initially issued permits for the clubs, said the court's action "was the only proper decision that could have been handed down. I'm not surprised at all."

Dayton said the court's move upholds controversial TRPA voting methods which "are what we wanted to protect Nevada from, Californians who want to do away with our gambling."

When casino plans came before the TPRA, all California members opposed permits while Nevada members voted 3-2 for permits. Under TRPA rules, Such a split can lead to automatic approval after 60 days.

Dick Heikka, executive director of the TRPA, said he still agrees with a TRPA staff recommendation for denial on grounds there was inadequate planning for parking and transportation needs in connection with the clubs.

But Heikka said he's "happy that we now have a clear-cut understanding of the limitations of the bistate compact rules."

Some construction work has already started at the site of a proposed 10-story hotel-casino planned by developer Ted Jennings for the Stateline, Nev., area. But Kahle has not started actual building work on his proposed seven-story club in the same area.

League examines county government

The League of Women Voters of Pomona will examine Los Angeles County government at two meetings on Oct. 21 and Nov. 4.

The Oct. 21 meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., 360 Vinton St., Pomona. The Nov. 4 meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., 223 San Rafael, Pomona.

All Leagues throughout Los Angeles County will be considering the following questions: Would good government be facilitated if the executive, legislative, and quasi-judicial powers of the Board of Supervisors were separated? Does the County need a Chief Executive? If so, is election or appointment the method of choice — or is there a third possibility? Should the size of the Board of Supervisors be changed? Do county boards, commissions and committees need reform, and how should the members of these bodies be selected?

Members of the League of Women Voters will learn about the complexities of governing the largest urban county in the nation. The county budget of almost $3 billion is larger than the budgets of 44 of the 50 states. Each supervisor represents approximately 1.4 million people. Los Angeles County contains 78 incorporated cities, while more than one million people live in the unincorporated areas and look to county government for their municipal services. Yet the County is still operating under a charter adopted in 1913.

At the conclusion of the study the County League of Women Voters will have a position under which they can speak out in support of county government reform.

Mrs. Mildred White will lead the discussion at the meetings. Anyone interested in attending the meetings or learning more about the League of Women Voters may contact Barbara Trieselmann, 598-1488, or Sara Nunn, 595-0016.

Hospital auxiliary to meet

The first luncheon meeting of the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary will be held in Pitzer Auditorium located in the new wing of the hospital facility on Thursday at 11:45 a.m.

Dr. Fritz H. Moser, president of the hospital medical staff, will be the speaker. His subject will be "Quality Assurance in Medical Care".

Soften cuticle

Cuticles toughened by years of chewing can be softened. Smooth on petroleum jelly each morning and night once you stop biting your nails. This also helps prevent fingernails from splitting.

MR. AND MRS. MELVIN L. ROBINSON

Robinsons observe 60th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. (Archie) Robinson of Pomona observed their 60th wedding anniversary on Sept. 25.

The Sew and So Club, of which Mrs. Robinson is a member, members were hostesses at a surprise dinner with 32 guests present at Mission Family Restaurant in Pomona.

Other small dinner parties were given in their honor and they made a trip to the Lawrence Welk Show in Hollywood.

Their niece, Mrs. Katherine Leurs of Loysville, Pa., entertained at a surprise dinner at Griswold's Inn for 16 relatives and close friends of the couple.

The Robinsons were married Sept. 25, 1915, in Hagerstown, Md., and resided in Coatsville, Pa., before coming to this area 55 years ago.

Mr. Robinson was employed at the Palm Lakes Golf Course pro shop and earlier at Loud Machine Shop. He also owned and operated Robinson's Pecan Shop in Claremont. They are members of Trinity United Methodist Church, the Pennsylvania Society and Mr. Robinson is a member of Masonic Lodge 246.

Drying time

Give your fresh coat of floor polish enough time to dry before applying a second coat, says Leslie Wood, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax. This is particularly important with acrylic products such as Future on vinyl floors. The need for excessive drying time could mean that you're being too generous with the polish.

Wine-tasting party slated on Saturday

Pomona Women of the Moose have completed plans for a wine-tasting party to be held Saturday at Pomona Moose Lodge.

Dinner will be served from 7 until 8:30 p.m. Mrs. Pat Monroe is in charge of the dinner.

The Donna Thomas Star Riders will provide music for dancing from 9 p.m. until 1:30 a.m.

The event is open to members and their guests.

Reservations are due by Wednesday.

Upward swing

Crime in the U.S. has increased at an ominous rate, notes the October issue of Reader's Digest. In the past 14 years robbery has increased 256 percent and murder is up 116 percent. Even criminals are afraid to work the streets in big-city areas.

Family dinner planned

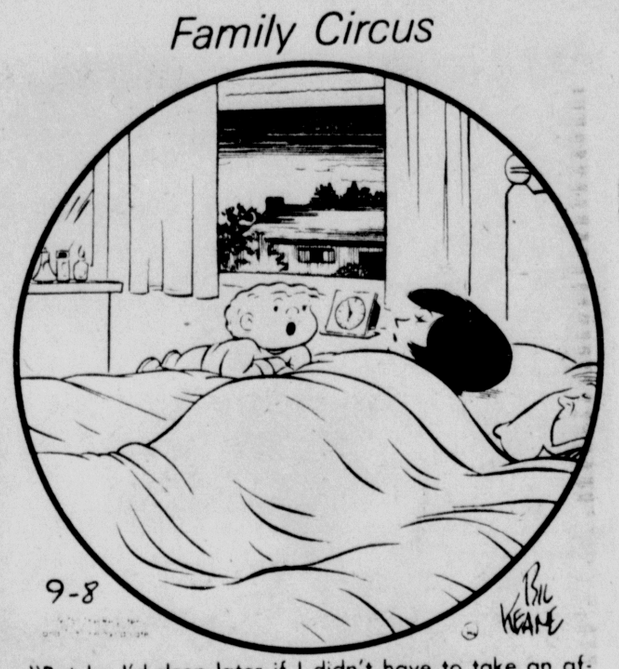
A Family Night Dinner at First Christian Church, 1751 N. Park Ave., Pomona, is scheduled at 6:30 p.m., Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Graham, who were guests of the Peoples Republic of China last year, will be the speakers. They will share some of their experiences and will show slides to illustrate their talk.

The dinner will be served in Fellowship Hall and the program will follow. Interested persons may attend the dinner or may come for the program only.

Ben Franklin said: "Beware of little expenses; a small leak will sink a great ship."

Family Circus



"Betcha I'd sleep later if I didn't have to take an afternoon nap."

Refugee mother uses Lamaze way

A 21-year-old Vietnamese refugee woman, who only arrived in Pomona Sept. 1, was probably the first Vietnamese refugee in Pomona Valley to give birth to a child by the Lamaze (natural childbirth) method.

The young mother, Mui Voong, wife of Khin Voong, had less than six weeks of training in the natural childbirth method, and the fact that she cannot speak English and her sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Tehodore Cullen of Pomona, don't know Vietnamese or Chinese made the feat quite unusual.

"We had some help from the father, who speaks a little English, and we wrote down phrases that would be pertinent during the delivery," says Mrs. Cullen, who gave birth to a baby eight months ago by the Lamaze method.

"Although she had only two classes of Lamaze and one tutoring session, she was able to deliver the 7 lbs., 13 oz., boy, her first child, in a little over four hours at Park Avenue Hospital Sunday morning," Mrs. Cullen explained.

CIA reorganization plan expected soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is considering a CIA reorganization plan that would include appointment of an independent inspector general and expansion of a presidential executive committee to oversee the actions of the agency, according to White House officials.

The reorganization plan, which has not yet been given final approval, is expected to be announced within the next few weeks. It is not likely to involve replacement of CIA Director William E. Colby, officials say.

However, they have indicated Colby may be replaced after congressional probes are completed sometime after the end of the year.

In recent interviews, White House and CIA officials described the reorganization as an outgrowth of 30 proposals made by the Rockefeller Commission following a five-month probe of CIA domestic activities.

One recommendation already implemented is expansion of the CIA office of general counsel, according to Mitchell Rogovin, a private attorney now serving as a consultant to Colby. But an agency spokesman refused to say how many lawyers have been added to the staff.

In theory, the office advises the director on the legality of proposed CIA activities. But Lawrence Houston, who headed the office from its creation in 1947 until his retirement in 1973, has said he frequently did not learn of questionable operations until they had occurred.

The Rockefeller panel recommended that the CIA "occasionally" hire private lawyers or law school graduates with no prior CIA involvement.

It was learned that one new member of the general counsel's staff is James L. Kronfeld, former staff counsel of a House subcommittee chaired by Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., a frequent and vigorous agency critic.

The Rockefeller panel also urged that the inspector general's office, which is responsible for internal investigations of alleged wrongdoing by agency employes, be given equal status with the heads of divisions engaged in intelligence gathering. Again, officials said this step has been implemented, although Ford is expected to formalize the procedure with an announcement, which may include naming a new inspector general.

Under the Rockefeller Commission proposals, the revamped inspector general's office would have access to all agency departments, reporting directly to the National Security Council and the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board. In the past, inspectors general sometimes were denied access to highly secret material during investigations.

The new presidential committee is expected to be an expansion of the current Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, officials say.

SHE LEARNED WELL — Eighth grade student Lynn Kraft looks over her first aid book at her home in Ventnor. Last week, on the same day she learned in school how to give "the kiss of life," she revived her father, who had suffered a heart attack.

Her 'kiss of life' saved her father after attack

VENTNOR, N.J. (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Lyn Kraft learned in health class how to give "the kiss of life" to a plastic doll. That same night she used what she had learned to revive her 50-year-old father after he suffered a heart attack and stopped breathing.

Leonard Kraft is now recuperating in the Atlantic City Medical Center, and Lyn is the toast of her eighth grade class at Ventnor Middle School in this Atlantic shore community.

It was after midnight last Thursday when the 5-foot-7, 165 pound Kraft suffered the second heart attack of his life.

"He was a purple-gray color. I ran and called the ambulance and woke up my daughter," Lyn's mother, Sandy, said.

Lyn, a 5-foot, 89-pounder, said her mother was "very excited.

"I said to her that I knew what to do, and she said to do it. I didn't have any time to pause. I just did it right there. It was just a reaction."

Lyn followed the method for cardiopulmonary respiration that school nurse Marie Paludi had been teaching in class for two weeks.

She gave four quick breaths into her father's mouth, holding his nose and leaning his head back to open the air passages. Then she gave 15 heart compressions, with palms down and fingertips up, in the middle of his chest, then two more deep breaths slowly, waiting for the chest to deflate.

"My sister, Sindy, helped me. She told me I was going too fast with the compressions," said Lyn, the youngest of four children.

Sindy, 17, and Mrs. Kraft were the only other family members at home.

Lyn continued the cycle of two breaths and 15 compressions for five minutes until an ambulance crew arrived and administered oxygen to her father, who was already breathing again.

"His color came back" as soon as Lyn began to work, Mrs. Kraft said. "I really believe it saved his life."

Lyn said afterward that "I was tired, but I couldn't get to sleep. Sindy and I waited up for my mother to return from the hospital."

Executive leaves post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John T. Penland has resigned as chairman, president, director and chief executive officer of HMO International, Inc.

The resignation was prompted by "conflicting views" about management and policies of the financially troubled firm, which administers prepaid health plans for about 107,000 Southern Californians, a spokesman said Thursday.

Penland had held the posts since April. His resignation was "mutually agreed upon" by Penland, the firm's shareholders and major lenders, the spokesman said.

Angus A. Scott, an HMO director since February, has been named to succeed Penland in the three posts.

World gets warning from anthropologist

"Then these black children went on to college. But the only jobs available to them were as maids or postmen," she said.

"We have started a number of social movements in this country, but they are not related to movements in other parts of the world. There must be a synchronization of movements on an international level."

She pointed to one instance when such a synchronization existed by citing the concentrated efforts of photographers around the world to depict the war in Vietnam in the true horror it was.

"That's a starting point," she said. "But we need more exchange between high officials and the citizens."

TV major medium

Mrs. Mead believes that television is the easiest medium to influence and the major medium in the world today.

"Two letters of complaint and the advertisers are in a fit," she said. "They are highly responsive to public opinion.

"It's your business as future leaders to know what is on television and in the newspapers," Mrs. Mead told the students. She added that teachers are especially guilty of ignoring the news.

"They hide in ivory towers and grade papers. How can they know what is going on in the world?"

"The fact that kids write a sentence has nothing to do with TV," she continued. "Television teaches kids more than some schools do."

But radio is dangerous, according to the anthropologist. "You can't check on who said what and rumors spread. It's easy to lie on the radio."

"Newspapers, on the other hand, are more reliable. It's all down there. Someone can prove who said what and when."

In discussing the breakdown in modern society, Mrs. Mead said, "I think people have a mistaken idea of how to deal with crime.

"This country would rather spend $300,000 on a criminal than spend $200 to teach a child to read.

"We have three million teen-agers who can best be described as 'doorstep babies' They have no one responsible for them, not even to sign a medical slip.

"That means three million kids who have no one to feed, love or care for them. With this situation existing, we are building a time bomb," continued the author and teacher.

Role of women

As to the changing role of women in our time, nothing has happened, according to Mrs. Mead. Only the rules have changed a little, she said.

Mrs. Mead believes that women are participating even less in high level governmental decisions.

She pointed out the fact that for a half million years, women have been responsible for the nutrition of the world.

"Now they have lost that control. Food has become a commodity to be exchanged in the international marketplace for weapons. No one even suggests we eat it anymore."

She said the major discussion on the question of equality among the sexes seems to boil down to "who takes out the garbage?"

Speed of change

"The speed of change equals the speed of transportation," added the speaker. "Now with the satellite, an idea can get around the world in three minutes."

She ended the informal meeting with the comment that "I'm an optimist. If I were not, I wouldn't be here today."

From the enthusiastic response of the students and guests present, they appeared glad that Mrs. Mead is the energetic, optimistic woman that she is after a lifetime as an observer of changing cultures around the world.

L.A. backs registering of handguns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The City Council has voted to support proposals for registering handguns if it can be shown such an action would contribute to a decrease in violent crime.

The 10-2 vote has brought the council back to a position it had adopted in June but then eased back on last month, when it came out against a National League of Cities proposal for registration of all handguns.

The Police Commission, meanwhile, was preparing to consider whether to go on record favoring a ban on the manufacture, import, sale and private possession of most handguns.

'Conflict of interest' charged in Alioto lawsuits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A city prosecutor has charged that Mayor Joseph L. Alioto renewed a $5.4 million credit pledge to a bank despite having been told such an offer constituted "pervasive conflict of interest."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry Benson made the charge Monday in summing up his case in two conflict of interest suits against Alioto being heard before retired Superior Court Judge Albert Axelrod.

One was brought by two citizens represented by a People's Lobby attorney seeking the mayor's ouster from office. The other was brought by Alioto himself with the aim of getting the City Charter's conflict of interest provisions clarified.

Alioto's second term expires at the end of the year and, under another charter provision, he cannot seek re-election.

The suits were initiated after Alioto relatives acquired Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., the most important tenant at the city's port. Alioto appoints port officials who decide matters such as what rent shipping lines pay.

Benson told the court that after the Alioto family shipping line, Freighters, Inc., failed to repay a $5.4 million loan from Wells Fargo Bank last June, "new documents were created. The bank wanted further guarantees." He said these were provided by the signatures of "Joseph L. Alioto and others."

Benson said Alioto and his attorneys stalled on turning over documents of the PFEL purchase and these documents revealed "a massive and intricate" interest conflict.

He said Freighters, Inc., was able to purchase PFEL only because Alioto guaranteed all its old debts as well as the new acquisition.

Benson stressed he knew of no cases where Alioto used illegal or improper influence on the port commission or directors.

But he said the charter prohibits a city official from having any "direct or indirect" interest in a city lease.

Alioto was represented by his son, attorney Joseph M. Alioto, who said the mayor had "never taken any action detrimental" to San Francisco. He charged the suits were based solely on the hypothesis that Alioto might commit some unnamed abuse during his last three months in office.

Bolz just wore 'cats down by talking

NEW YORK (AP) — Pleading, pampering and sometimes admonishing, the man in the blue baseball cap crouched outside the door in hopes of coaxing the cat out.

In plainclothes, unarmed and without a flack vest, the man was Police Lt. Frank Bolz, and the cat was Ray "Cat" Olsen, a 23-year-old gunman holding 10 hostages in a Greenwich Village bank Monday.

"Hey Cat! Hey Cat!," Bolz shouted through a bullhorn.

"Don't get nervous, but we want to make sure you can hear us," Bolz said, his voice leveling off into a more soothing tone. "Don't panic. We're just opening the door."

By then Bolz, commander of the detective division's 3-yearold hostage negotiating team, was well into his mission. As the hours passed, it would be his job to make Olsen feel tired and bored and then, hopefully, make a mistake.

It was nothing new to Bolz. The negotiating team was sent out 18 times in the past year to deal with gunmen holding hostages and has never suffered the death of a hostage. Bolz once spent 13 hours with a former mental patient pointing a gun at his head to free a captive 5-year-old girl.

The psychology behind Bolz' job is time, according to Det. Harvey Schlossberg, director of psychological services for the police department.

"As hours pass, the guy becomes bored, tired and makes mistakes," Schlossberg explained.

Monday night, it took eight hours for Bolz to wear down Olsen.

At the beginning, it was a standoff. Olsen and his hostages inside, Bolz and his men outside.

Police, unseen by Olsen, wore bullet proof gear and were sprawled prone on the pavement along Sixth Avenue, their high powered rifles trained on the front of the bank. Others took up positions in an apartment building across the street from the bank.

A heavy emergency police van was moved up as a tanklike outpost. Policemen poked rifles over a parapet of sandbags around an opening in the roof of the vehicle.

Then the standoff slowly began turning into a tradeoff. Bolz gave Olsen food and a sixpack of beer. A couple of hostages were freed.

"The conversation was working, it was distracting," said Deputy Police Commissioner Frank McLoughlin.

Bolz kept cautiously poking his head in the doorway. Another six pack of beer was offered and Olsen released more hostages.

But Olsen was becoming weary.

He began dozing intermittently after drinking beer, but still roused from time to time to keep his guns — a pistol and a shotgun — trained on the doorway.

Finally, during a sleepy moment, the guns slipped from his hands.

The hostages, who had spotted police watching from a rear staircase, made a move for the guns and the police grabbed Olsen.

"He didn't know what was going on," a police spokesman said later.

It had been a cat and mouse game for eight hours.

The cat lost.

Jerry shouldn't run for president quite yet, says his father

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. would be "foolish" if he started running for President nine months after becoming governor, his father said Tuesday.

Former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. made that observation in a telephone interview when asked why his son was shying away from announcing any strong desire to be President.

"He certainly would be foolish to run for President after nine months of the governorship. I think he owes a duty to the people to work as hard as he can. If that makes him a presidential candidate, so be it," said the 69-year-old Democrat.

During an appearance on the nationally televised "Meet the Press" program Sunday, the 37-year-old Democratic governor emphasized twice that he was not running for President.

"I don't think there is anything premeditated about Jerry keeping his eyes glued on his job," said Brown Sr., who was governor from 1959 through 1966.

Although Brown Sr. said his son was definitely "presidential timber", he declined to say what year he thought his son should run for the office. He said such decisions depend a lot on fate.

In Brown Jr.'s first month in office, his father said the young governor needed to learn to delegate more power to others. Now, Brown Sr. said, there's been a 1000 per cent improvement in that area.

"Jerry is beginning to realize he can't keep his finger on everything in a $13 billion corporation," the former governor said.

Other shortcomings?

Brown Sr. paused a minute.

"He doesn't talk enough to his father and mother," he said in a serious-sounding tone. Then he added: "I talk to him by phone a great deal, probably once a week."

But Brown said he thought it would be good if the governor had more contact with his parents. "I think it would be good for him, although he has done pretty well without us," he said.

Ever since Brown Jr. began running for governor, some critics have said his operation has been rather coldly efficient — focusing on politics, with little humor and warmth.

Asked if these criticisms had any validity, Brown Sr. said:

"When you are new, you are zealous. You overwork. You neglect some of the niceties of relationships. But there is no ruthless Jerry. On 'Meet the Press' I thought he had a warm and natural smile. I thought he did well, didn't you?"

Rating his son's performance so far, Brown Sr. said he thought he had done "extraordinarily well," pleasing everyone from "a black porter at the airport to the president of my country club."

Brown Sr. said his son's refusal to do things the traditional political way and his re-examination of accepted government practices "will have a profound effect on the political history of our country."

Critics, including consumer advocate Ralph Nader, have argued Brown Jr. makes a fine art of running against government but really has a slim record of results.

Brown Sr. said his son had achieved most of what he set out to accomplish during his term's first legislative session — including no general tax increase and a major farm labor election law.

Minors may skip school if past test

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A new examination will be offered this year to enable 16-and 17-year-old Californians to qualify for high school equivalency diplomas.

Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, said it's the first program of its kind in the nation.

Students passing the test and obtaining permission from parents or guardians to leave school, may do so immediately.

Presently, minors must attend classes until they graduate from high school or reach the age of 18, whichever is first.

Riles estimated that 670,000 Californians are eligible.

The program was set up under legislation by state Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo.

Gregorio said it should appeal to students of two types: Those who do not work well and are "borderline dropouts," and the "bright but bored" who would like to skip straight to college.

Holders of the certificates will be able to enroll in community colleges. Universities and four-year colleges generally have their own admision standards, Riles said.

The examinations will be offered Dec. 20 and March 27 at 100 places all over the state.

Private sector jobs needed

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — More jobs in the private sector and not expanded federal programs are what is needed for the nation's economic recovery, Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop said

Dunlop, speaking at a White House Conference on Domestic and Economic Affairs, echoed President Ford's Monday night speech calling for a tax cut and reduced federal spending. Dunlop added that he does not think the country's future lies in the creation of new government jobs.

"What we are trying to do is stimulate the economy," he said.

Dunlop appeared in a session on employment and the economy with William J. Usery, director of the federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

In a question-and-answer session, Dunlop defended tax incentives for businesses to stimulate business expansion and the creation of private employment. "The administration's first priority is the return of people to jobs," he said.

Federal expansion can have inflationary effects and drive up interest rates to the point that the economy suffers, he said.

Usery predicted good labor and management relations next year. "We do not see or predict any major strikes next year even though it will be a difficult one."

His probation revoked after check bounces

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A District Court judge has revoked the probation he had granted a burglar on condition the man made restitution for the loot he took in the crime.

Judge Paul Goldman had suspended the six-year term for Gary Ritter but recently ordered the 22-year-old San Bernardino, Calif. man to prison for the full term.

Authorities said the $16.63 check Ritter sent as restitution had bounced.

S.B. County revives juvenile program

San Bernardino County Supervisors this week breathed life back into its "Quick Draw" program after it was shot down by the state.

The program, started in 1973, assigns probation officers to various police agencies to work on a personal basis with juvenile offenders.

In previous years, the state has allocated funds to participating counties to operate the program. This year, however, the state legislature failed to renew the funding before it adjourned.

County Supervisors Monday allocated $49,739 to finance the program from Oct. 1 to June 30, 1976.

In support of the funding, Supervisor Robert Townsend said the counseling has been effective in reducing the number of juveniles referred to court.

"On an annual basis, probation officers receive about 12,000 cases. Through counseling with the juvenile and his parents, the program is effective in keeping 3,000 out of the courts," he added.

"Not only is the program effective in the treatment of young offenders, but it also saves thousands of dollars through the reduction of court filings."

At present, the county has nine probation officers assigned to various police departments. These include the Ontario, Upland and Chino police stations and the West End sheriffs's office.

Those juveniles referred to the officers are involved in crimes ranging from robbery, possessing narcotics, and burglary to shoplifting, said Townsend. Their ages average from 12 to 14 years old.

Supervisor Daniel Mikesell cast the only vote against the county funding. He emphasized, however, that he supported the program but believed the county may hamper its chances for state funds next year by financing the program itself.

Project approved

Chaffey High School District Board of Trustees has approved a cross-country field trip for mentally gifted minors at Alta Loma High School next April 7-15.

The trip will take the students to Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Valley Forge, Washington and Williamsburg during the spring vacation.

The students and their parents will be holding fund raising events during the year to pay for the trip expenses.

An attendance report for the first 10 days of the school year set district attendance at the five high schools and three continuation schools at 13,873. Individual high school totals ranged from a high of 3,949 at Chaffey High School and a low of 1,337 at Ontario High School. The adult education programs have a total enrollment of 1,604.

13,000 employes must go

NEW YORK (AP) — W. T. Grant Co., which filed last week for court protection under federal bankruptcy laws, plans to lay off 13,000 employes and close 225 to 250 of its stores by the end of the year, The New York Times reported today.

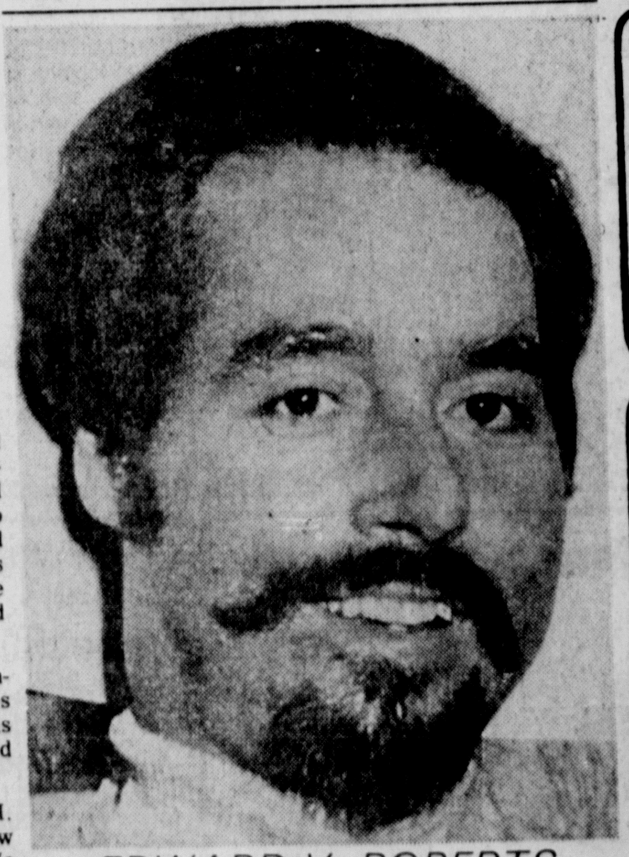
Since Jan. 31 when it announced fiscal 1974-losses of $177 million, Grant has closed 126 stores and laid off 11,000 workers.

President Robert H. Anderson, in an interview with The Times, said "We hope by Nov. 15 to have a final plan for restructuring, with a rough draft available by Oct. 15."

In related developments Monday, First National City Bank, one of 27 bank creditors to the ailing retailer, said it was making a $35 million writeoff on its $97 million in loans to Grant. This followed an announcement late last week after the bankruptcy filing that Morgan Guaranty Trust was making an identical loan loss writeoff.

In its court papers filed last Thursday, Grant said it had debts of more than $1 billion. Anderson said Monday the retailer still had about $50 million cash on hand, but that very little fresh merchandise was being shipped in by Grant's vendors.

Of the announced new store closings, Anderson said 70 will take place this month, and 125 to 150 more will occur by Dec. 31.



EDWARD V. ROBERTS

Quadriplegic given Brown appointment

BERKELEY (AP) — A quadriplegic who must spend 14 hours a day in an iron lung has been appointed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. to be director of the state department of rehabilitation.

Edward V. Roberts, 36, lost the use of his arms and legs when he was stricken with polio at the age of 14. Before he was stricken, he was an active athlete at Burlingame High School.

Roberts said the state department he will head once urged him to pass up a chance to attend the University of California at Berkeley because of his disability.

He ultimately earned bachelor and master degrees at the university.

"It's a funny thing," he said in an interview, "but it was this same state department of rehabilitation that told me I couldn't go on to UC because I was so severely disabled that I wasn't 'feasible for rehabilitation.'"

"Then I was told I couldn't use a power wheelchair. Well, I get a power wheelchair and its a godsend — and I went on to UC. What I had learned was how to fight for myself."

Roberts co-founded the Berkeley Center for Independent Living works with severely disabled residents.

He will be paid $34,104 annually in the state post.

Mother gets hope in son's reprieve

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — "This gives me hope," Juanita Spencer said after her son was given an eleventh hour reprieve from an execution by hanging scheduled Tuesday for the slaying of three American tourists.

Mrs. Spencer, 50, said at her Milwaukee home she would try to visit Nassau to see her son, Michiah Shobek, 22, before a special appeals court is convened to reconsider his murder conviction.

"I feel great. I thank God," Mrs. Spencer said. "I thank all the people who helped me. The odds are against him, but I'll keep fighting until he's free."

Lawyers hired by the U.S. State Department persuaded Bahamian officials late Monday to delay the execution on grounds that evidence proving Shobek insane was withheld from his trial last year.

Shobek said he was ordered to kill the three Americans by "my father, God," because "they were angels of Lucifer."

The appeal argued that Shobek's lawyer withdrew evidence of insanity when the court in Nassau ruled it contained errors. The new motion also claimed that as an infant Shobek suffered brain damage from a virus infection.

"It was a very serious illness," Mrs. Spencer said, adding that she didn't know just what it was but that she had sent her son's medical records to Nassau for the appeal.

Cyril Stevenson, Bahamian government spokesman, said the appeals court is scheduled to meet in 30 days but might convene sooner.

"This is a temporary respite," Stevenson said. "In cases like this they usually try to hurry it up."

Shobek, one of four children of Mrs. Spencer, a charwoman for the Milwaukee school system, pleaded guilty to killing New York accountant Irwin Borstein, whose body was found on a remote beach. Shobek also confessed the slayings of Paul Howell of Massillon, Ohio, and Katie Smith, 17, of Detroit.

Several U.S. politicians, including Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Rep. Henry Reuss, both Wisconsin Democrats, appealed to Bahamian officials to spare Shobek's life.

After the reprieve, Borstein's wife, Laura, said she didn't "feel anything about Shobek one way or another."

"The whole thing was a nightmare," she said, "and I can't think of him as a person. I just think of him as someone absolutely mad."

Virginia in 1662 became the first colony to declare slavery hereditary.

Oak Glen apples are ready

Apple growers in the Oak Glen area between Beaumont and Yucaipa report that a bumper crop of mountain-grown apples is now being harvested.

With the start of the harvest season, visitors from throughout the Southland are arriving daily at the packing sheds of the Oak Glen Apple Growers to select early varieties of apples such as Jonathans, Gravensteins, McIntosh and Red Delicious. Apple cider and hot baked apple pies also attract visitors.

The Oak Glen area, located in the mountain foothills above Yucapia, has developed into a scenic area with campgrounds for picnics. Other attractions include antique marts, curio shops, an art gallery, a petting zoo for children and several restaurants.

The area can be reached by taking the San Bernardino Freeway to either the Yucapia or Beaumont offramps and following directional signs.

2 versions of Nixon donation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tax attorney Frank DeMarco gave two different versions of the donation of former President Nixon's papers, says Tom Quinn, former California deputy secretary of state.

Quinn testified in U.S. District Court Monday that he had investigated the donation and was first told by DeMarco that the deed transferring Nixon's vice presidential papers to the National Archives had been signed April. 21, 1969.

Nixon claimed a $576,000 tax deduction in the papers, which was later disallowed on the grounds the donation was made after a deadline for such gifts and that the transfer deed was backdated.

Quinn, who now is state Air Resources Board chairman, said that when he investigated the claim he found the donation papers were typed on a different typewriter than was used for a Nixon library foundation agreement executed about the same time. Quinn investigated the case because the secretary of state's office supervised notary publics.

In a second meeting with DeMarco to discuss the discrepancy, Quinn testified, DeMarco said the donation papers had been written after the federal deadline, but that there had been an original, earlier transfer deed. He quoted DeMarco as saying the second, later deed had been necessary to eliminate errors in the first document.

Signed by Mrs. Peron

New crisis flares in Argentina over $1 million check

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A check for the equivalent of about $1 million dollars has become a new political headache for President Isabel Peron, already facing acute economic and political crises.

Her harshest critics imply Mrs. Peron was trying to divert finds from a public charity — for her personal gain.

Her defenders claim it was all a simple mistake which has been corrected and should be forgotten.

The government has ignored pressure from politicians and the press for information on the case. It has declined to comment since the affair came to light Aug. 14.

Congressional sources say some legislators are already planning an investigation.

Details of the case have appeared in most local newspapers which gave this account:

Mrs. Peron signed a check for the equivalent of about $1 million in Argentine pesos last July 23 to transfer funds from a public charitable agency to the inheritance account of Juan D. Peron, whom she succeeded as president upon his death just a little more than a year ago.

But three days later, according to press accounts she retrieved the check and annuled the transaction.

A leading newspaper La Opinion, which is neutral politically, quoted unidentified sources as saying Mrs. Peron blamed the episode on her former interior minister Antonio J. Benitez in a move designed to damage her politically.

Benitez left the cabinet in the third government shakeup in a month in early August. He has not been available for comment. Benitez is also Mrs. Peron's private lawyer.

Other press reports say Mrs. Peron apparently "made a mistake" in signing the check because of the many checkbooks she has in line with her duties as president.

But the implication has been left that Mrs. Peron was using public money for a private account. She is the only heir to Peron's estate. He was not known to have left a will.

According to the daily La Prensa, which first printed details of the case, a check bearing the number 511964 dated July 23 for 31.516.511.50 pesos (about $1 million at the time) was signed by Mrs. Peron against the account of the Justicialist Solidarity Crusade to be transferred to Peron's estate.

The crusade is an organization headed by Mrs. Peron and founded in 1973 to distribute aid among the poor. Donations come from companies and labor unions. Revenue from a national soccer lottery also goes into the charity fund.

This crusade is considered the successor of the Eva Peron Foundation, a charitable institution created to give away food, money and consumer items to the poor, but the Crusade never became as popular as its predecessor.

Eva's foundation lasted from the late 1940s until the 1955 overthrow of Peron. Eva Peron was Peon's second wife, who was revered by the poor and was a symbol of the Peronist movement. She died in 1952 of cancer. Peron returned to power in 1973 after 18 years in exile.

The reports, which could not be officially confirmed, said the Crusade funds are in an account controlled by the welfare ministry which until last month was headed by Jose Lopez Rega, Mrs. Peron's trusted private secretary recently sacked from the cabinet.

Lopez Rega was dismissed after his opponents accused him of mishandling public funds and heading a right-wing death squad. He is now living in exile in Spain.

Several Buenos Aires newspapers quoted Judge Geronimo Sanso, who is handling the inheritance case, as saying there is no record of such a check in the estate account. Other newspapers said this was true because Mrs. Peron retrieved the check in time.

The National Bank of Argentina, which reportedly handled the check, agreed to return it if Mrs. Peron replaced the money immediately to the Crusade fund, one newspapers said. Bank officials declined comment.

The money was replaced and the check returned, reports said.

The potentially explosive issue occurs against a background of political and economic crises gripping Argentina which have threatened the existence of Mrs. Peron's 13-month-old administration.

New USC course looks to future

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California is training students to become social workers specializing in the problems of a rapidly growing group of Americans: the elderly.

The field is so new that students entering the first class of the Leonard Davis School of Gerontology at USC this fall will be getting training for jobs that don't exist yet.

"They may be getting educated ahead of where the world is," said the school's assistant dean, Margaret E. Hartford. But Miss Hartford, 57, expects the world to catch up.

"I have a huch that once, they know we're in business, all kinds of agencies will be wanting our people."

The current U.S. population of about 210 million includes 21 million persons 65 and over. The school says that the aged are the fastest-growing segment of society and that by the year 2,000, there will be some 30 million 65 and older.

And contrary to what many people think, Miss Hartford said, about 95 per cent of the elderly live in normal circumstances, not nursing homes.

The special problems of the aged touch all areas: housing, leisure, retirement, nursing, sexuality, legal considerations, psychology, financial management and politics.

The USC curriculum calls for the gerontology students to delve into psychology, social work and business administration, acquire sensitivity to the special needs of the aged and emerge ready to help "senior adults."

Students will wear blindfolds and ear plugs to experience the decreased capacities of the aged. They will visit senior citizens' centers and nursing homes. Some of the training is similar to that physicians undergo to become specialists in gerontology.

At the Leonard Davis school, begun with a $2 million endowment from Davis, A New York insurance executive, students can earn a bachelor's or master's degree or a certificate.

The latter is a program taking about a year to complete for persons already working in some related field such as nursing who want specific training in gerontology.

As the school prepared to open recently, about 50 applicants — aged 20 to 50 — had been accepted for the master's program and a dozen for the certificate course. About 80 undergraduates had signed up for some gerontology classes, of which about 15 planned to major in the field.

The full-time faculty of the gerontology school includes, in addition to Miss Hartford, Dr. William Albert, 34, assistant professor of gerontology-social work; Dr. Robert Wiswell, a former Atlanta Braves baseball player, assistant professor of gerontology-social work, and Dr. Stephen Zarit, assistant professor of gerontology-psychology.

Wiswell specializes in using exercise to help the elderly be active and alert.

Alex Comfort, who is a noted gerontologist but is best known as the author of "The Joy of Sex," said that the school's emphasis on the social aspects of aging is appropriate.

"Only 25 per cent of the disability of old people is medical," Comfort said in an interview. "The remaining 75 per cent is social, political and cultural.

"The expectation that old people should go crazy makes them crazy. They have had the same trip put on them that blacks and women did."

The opening of the school was greeted with enthusaism by such workers in the field as Mrs. B.J. Spitler, Southern California regional manager for the California Office on Aging.

Would her office be interested in hiring gerontology graduates?

"Indeed we are," said Mrs. Spitler. "We see this school as being very worthwhile. Having good feelings about older adults is one thing, but it won't be of any use unless you have the knowledge base to apply them."

The school is housed in the same near-new building that contains the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center, where scientists and doctors in a variety of fields of social gerontology carry on their studies. USC has been involved in gerontology research for about 10 years.

A 26-year-old USC employe who is considering enrolling in the school says that she is especially attracted because "the people are so positive and enthusiastic. There are people of all ages working together, believing that 'old is beautiful.'

"And the newness of the field is exciting, too. It's like getting in on the ground floor of something that's going to keep getting more important all the time."

The school's admissions program has a poster showing a bearded young student giving a white-haired lady a ride on his motorcycle.

"It's a rare opportunity for getting into a brand-new field," said Miss Hartford.

Bank holdup victim

Switch in plans cost her her life

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Myrna Opsahl was shot to death in a bank holdup now linked to the Symbionese Liberation Army. And she had not even planned to go to the bank that day.

In a last-minute switch April 21, the 42-year-old mother of four agreed to take another church member's place and go with two other women to the Crocker Bank branch in suburban Carmichael, her husband said Monday.

Dr. Trygve Opsahl recalled in an interview the three were depositing church funds at the time.

"When the accident happened, she had traded with someone else. It wasn't her regular turn," he said.

Opsahl, who first met his wife when he was studying to become a doctor at Loma Linda University in Southern California, said he was notified that his wife had been shot, but at first he had no idea how serious it was.

"I rushed to the bank. They had already taken her in the ambulance to the American River Hospital. That was the closest one. She was there in the emergency room," Opsahl said.

His wife, a nurse, died 30 minutes later of massive bleeding in her abdomen.

She and her two friends, all active members of the Carmichael Seventh Day Adventist Church, entered the bank as it opened on that Monday morning. They were followed closely by four other people.

Later, one of Mrs. Opsahl's companions described what happened next:

"I heard a man shout, 'Get your noses in the carpet.' The three of us turned around.

"A shot went off, hitting Mrs. Opsahl in the stomach. I saw the pellets hit her side. I just stood there horrified. I don't know why they didn't shoot me too."

One day after the killing, sheriff's spokesman Bill Miller said Mrs. Opsahl had been slain with a .12 gauge shotgun "for absolutely no reason whatsoever."

The FBI has now said that it was newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst who rented a garage where one of the getaway vehicles was stored before it was used in the Crocker Bank robbery.

Officials also have said they are studying possible SLA links to another robbery Feb. 25 at a Guild Savings and Loan office about two miles from the Crocker Bank.

And federal prosecutors have said Miss Hearst and her radical traveling companions — already charged in a San Francisco bank robbery — face the possibility of new, more serious charges. Those charges could include murder, authorities said.

Prior to the bank robbery that claimed her life, Mrs. Opsahl had devoted much of her life to caring for her four children — ages 13 to 20 — and working on church activities.

Eleven years ago, the Opsahl family moved to Sacramento. Earlier, the Opsahls had moved around for several years while the doctor did some internship and residency medical work.

Born in Loveland, Colo., Mrs. Opsahl grew up in different towns in Wyoming and went to nursing school at Loma Linda.

For two years while her husband worked at an Adventist mission in Trinidad, she started a nursing school and ran a baby clinic there.

In Sacramento, she was the nurse at an Adventist private school for a year and helped out often with picnics and school trips. All the Opsahl children attended the Adventist school.

At the church, she helped count the money from the weekend collections.

"There were a group of women that did this. She took her turn," Opsahl explained.

It was that job which took her to the Crocker bank at 9:01 a.m. April 21, carrying an adding machine under her arm.

Ford hails son for being frank

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Ford said Tuesday he has never tried marijuana himself but he praised his 23-year-old son Jack for being frank and honest about his own experience with it.

The President was asked his reaction to his son's disclosure in a Portland, Ore., interview in which Jack said: "I've smoked marijuana before and I don't think that's so exceptional for people growing up in the 1960s." Jack added that he thought the law should treat marijuana as it does wine and beer.

The President said: "I can disagree with what some of the children do" but "as long as they are honest with us and give us an opportunity to give our views — I don't think I should go any further."

Ford had long opposed decriminalization of the private use of marijuana. He told a recent news conference in Washington that "I do not believe we have sufficient evidence at the present time to warrant any recommendation in that regard."

"We have brought up our children to be frank and honest about what they do," the President said during a television and radio interview in Knoxville. He added that it is his belief that a person would "inevitably get caught if you don't tell the truth."

Asked if his wife, Betty, would continue to speak out candidly, Ford said: "I do not think I would be very popular at home if I tried to lay down the law. She does have very good judgment ... Betty will probably speak very frankly as she always does."

Said the President of Mrs. Ford: "She's doing better in the polls than I am."

Farm exports to Japan rising after dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm exports to Japan, the leading foreign market of American farmers, are increasing again after dipping last season, an Agriculture Department analyst said today.

"Signs are mounting that the Japanese economy is pulling out of its worst recession in 20 years," Bruce L. Greenshields, an analyst in the department's Economic Research Service, said.

Greenshield's report was included in a special issue of "Foreign Agriculture" published weekly by USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service. Coinciding with Emperor Hirohito's current visit to the United States, articles about Japan and its U.S. trade relationship occupied nearly all of the 32-page publication.

During the fiscal year that ended last June 30, shipments of U.S. feed grains, soybeans and other feed ingredients declined. But the volume of some other commodities, including wheat, cotton and tobacco "bucked the declining trend" and increased last season, Greenshields said.

On a value basis, Japan bought less than $3.2 billion worth of U.S. farm commodities in 1974-75, down 5 per cent from more than $3.3 billion in fiscal 1973-74.

Looking at the current year, Greenshields said "Japan seems poised to recoup at least part" of the decline in 1974-75 and is likely to spend abou' $3.3 billion on U.S. farm commodities in 1975-76.

One reason for long term optimism about Japan continuing as a top market for American farmers is an "understanding" announced on Aug. 13 that the United States will provide Japan with 14 million metric tons of grain and soybeans annually over the next three years, including eight million of feed grains, three million of soybeans and three million of wheat.

In another article of the publication, Bryant H. Wadsworth, assistant U.S. agricultural attache in Tokyo, said that efforts by the Japanese government to increase the production of some domestic crops could spell trouble for U.S. farm exports.

"A closer approach to food self-sufficiency can likely be brought about only if the government provides greater protection to domestic producers, increased consumer subsidies, or a combination of the two," Wadsworth said.

"Either, or both, would mean increased costs to Japan's consumers and taxpayers, for whom food costs represented about one-fourth of disposable income in 1974."

But Japan has only about 15 million acres available for crops, and imported foods represent production from a much larger acreage than that. Farmers, therefore, are able to produce only about one-half the food needed for Japan's population of 110 million.

Imports from the United States alone — as the biggest supplier — are equivalent to the output from 14 million acres, about the amount of land harvested in California, Washington and Oregon.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is insisting on advance payments by importers of poultry and exotic birds when they ask for room reservations for their birds at U.S. ports of entry.

Federal regulations require that birds remain in quarantine for at least 30 days as a guard against the introduction of foreign poultry diseases into the United States. Beginning Nov. 5, officials said today, importers will have to include a $40 reservation fee when they apply for quarantine services.

If an importer then decides to cancel his reservation, the $40 fee will be forfeited to the government. In the past, when no advance fees were required, some importers requested space and then failed to show up with their birds at the appointed time.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's stockpile of nonfat dry milk is continuing to build up, a development that has many dairy farmer groups on edge because they feel it represents a potential threat to U.S. domestic markets.

By early September, the Agriculture Department said today, supplies in European Common Market countries reached one million metric tons. Including stocks in New Zealand, Australia, the United States and other western countries, total supplies are estimated at a record of about 1.5 million tons, more than double the surplus usually on hand.

The report said Australia, which has had "a dramatic build up" in recent months, has reduced its minimum export price to less than one-half of the U.S. price supported by the government.

Although imports are curbed under a quota system, U.S. dairy farmers have been apprehensive since those curbs were suspended a few years ago to enable huge quantities of foreign dairy products into the U.S. market.

Nader raps Brown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has "become an increasing source of disappointment" because he has failed to take action on basic problems such as unemployment and pollution.

"We've been waiting and seeing for nine months and you know nine months is the gestation period for human beings," Nader said, talking to reporters before addressing a statewide consumer conference. He accused the 37-year-old governor, a former Jesuit seminarian, of "mystical evasion."

"Is he just going to throw out self-seving rhetoric to his supporters or is he going to really start the basic changes that are necessary in California and lead the rest of the country?" Nader said.

Nader said Brown should embark on a course of positive actions if only to clear his family name.

Energy conservation begins at home.
But it doesn't end there.

Housewives and students, factory workers and architects, engineers and businessmen—everyone is affected by the natural gas shortage.

And so, when it comes to conserving energy, we need the cooperation of everyone. At home. At work. At play.

We at the Gas Company have programs to help everyone save energy. We've gone to manufacturing firms and suggested ways for them to cut down their use of natural gas while increasing production. We've encouraged architects to design new buildings to use less energy. And we've shown building administrators how to make their present buildings more energy efficient.

If you'd like to know how you can conserve more energy in your home or on your job, get in touch with us. We have a program for everyone, because conserving energy is everyone's concern.

Reds also sweep

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds left here with the National League title, a yearning for their first World Series victory since 1940, and a mighty compliment from Al Oliver of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"They'll go all the way. They definitely have the best team I've seen since I've been in major league baseball," said Oliver, whose eighth season ended Tuesday night when the Reds beat Pittsburgh 5-3 in 10 innings in the National League playoffs.

The Reds swept the series in three games even though Pirate rookie John Candelaria pitched superbly Tuesday night, matching a playoff record with 14 strikeouts.

"This is the happiest day of my life," said Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson, whose club opens the World Series Saturday in Boston against the American League-winning Red Sox.

The Reds dealt Pittsburgh its final defeat about a half hour after the Red Sox swept Oakland in the AL playoff.

"I'm ready to play in Fenway Park," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose, who provided the key spark in the title-clincher.

It was Rose who belted a two-run homer that helped chase Candelaria in the eighth and gave Cincinnati a 3-2 lead. Then after the Pirates pulled to a 3-3 tie with a run in their frantic ninth, Rose helped the Reds deliver their two-run knockout punch in the 10th.

"I never thought it would end in three," insisted Anderson. "I always thought it would go five games, just like I said at the start."

For a while, it looked like the 21-year-old Candelaria would give the Pirates the reprieve they needed after two convincing losses in Cincinnati.

"Candelaria was revved up and ready to go," said Joe Morgan of the Reds.

"It was probably the greatest performance by a lefty against us all year," said Rose.

Candelaria started with a flourish, striking out the first four batters he faced.

Dave Concepcion stroked a solo homer over the left field wall in the second, but that was the lone hit allowed by Candelaria over the first seven innings.

Al Oliver belted a two-run homer for the Pirates in the sixth to give Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead off Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan.

"It felt great when Ollie hit that home run," Candelaria said after the game, maintaining his usual relaxed demeanor.

"But the feeling didn't last long," Candelaria added with a slight smile.

Candelaria's undoing began in the eighth—after he struck out Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo to raise his total to 14. That matched the previous playoff record set by Joe Coleman of Detroit against Oakland in 1972.

But Candelaria then walked pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund on four pitches, and Rose followed with his two-run homer that landed near a Pirate "Babushka Power" banner in the leftfield seats.

"That's why Pete Rose is the great ballplayer he is," said Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh.

The Pirates loaded the bases in their ninth on singles by Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk and a walk to Bob Robertson.

Reliever Rawley Eastwick, who got the win then yielded another walk to pinchhitter Duffy Dyer to force in the tying run, but Rennie Stennett flied out to center to end the inning.

The Reds put the game away with a 10th-inning push that began when Griffey beat out a two-strike bunt.

"We knew he might bunt with two strikes, but he just did a perfect job with it," said Murtaugh.

Griffey took second on a balk by Pirate reliever Ramon Hernandez, moved to third on an infield out and scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly by Ed Armbrister.

Rose followed with a single to right and scored the final Cincinnati run on a double by Morgan.

"Pete Rose is Peter Rose," said Sparky Anderson. "When the game loses him, I just don't think we'll see another one.

"Rose is something completely different. God never gifted him, but he is going to be a Hall of Famer on the first ballot."

Cincinnati reliever Pedro Borbon retired Richie Hebner, Oliver and Willie Stargell in the 10th to give the Reds their third league title in six years.

"It's a shame this has to come to a stop," said Stargell, "but we look forward to meeting them again, and we wish them the best in the Series."

APPLAUSE

Cincinnati's Pete Rose gives himself a hand as he rounds third base after hitting a two-run homer in the eighth inning Tuesday. The Reds beat Pittsburgh, 5-3, to win National League playoff in Pittsburgh.

Yaz sparks Red Sox

OAKLAND (AP) — Boston's Red Sox, inspired by the play of 36-year-old Carl Yastrzemski, fly the American League pennant today after destroying the Oakland dream of four straight titles.

"It's a very strange feeling," admitted the A's volatile owner Charles O. Finley. "But you can't win them all."

Boston, with a 5-3 victory Tuesday night, swept the best-of-five playoffs in three straight and now return home to open the World Series Saturday against the National League's Cincinnati Reds.

"We've won during the season on defense, and that defense won it for us in this series," declared Yastrzemski whose fielding gem in the eighth inning was the turning point of the final game.

Yaz made a diving stop of a drive by Reggie Jackson and held him to a single instead of a double or a triple. One run did score on the play but Sal Bando was stopped at third and the next batter, Joe Rudi, hit into an inning-ending double play.

Sharing in the credit was relief pitcher Dick Drago who threw a fast sinker that Rudi hit on the ground.

Finley had to watch the game on television in New York because business commitments kept him there Monday and Tuesday. But he had faithfully promised to be on hand for game No. 4—another dream that disappeared.

In the three games, Boston outhit the A's 31-19 and five of the Oakland starters, Campy Campaneris, Billy North, Billy Williams, Gene Tenace and Phil Garner, didn't get a hit all series.

"They just outplayed us," admitted losing Manager Alvin Dark who piloted the A's to the World Series crown in 1974 after Dick Williams left the helm after winning in 1972 and 1973.

"Defensively they made the plays when they needed them. They outpitched us and outhit us."

Bando added, "They won the big games all year and did it again in this series. The turning point was Yaz' play in the eighth."

Southpaw pitcher Ken Holtzman tried to go on two days rest after his own defense let him down in the first game that was lost by a 7-1 count.

"It just wasn't there," he said. "I was stiff."

Boston scored an unearned run in the fourth inning to break the scoreless duel between Holtzman and winning pitcher Rick Wise.

The Red Sox added three more in the fifth on hits by Rick Burleson, Denny Doyle, Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk plus a wild pitch. Cecil Cooper drove in the finale in the eighth.

Cesar Tovar walked as a pinch hitter in the sixth for Oakland and eventually scored on a ground out after Claudell Washington singled him to third. Two more runs scored in the eighth before Yaz and reliever Drago chopped off the rally.

For the series Yaz collected five hits, including a home run. During the season he had played primarily at first base, returning to his old familiar left field when Jim Rice was hurt.

No one was saying much about the coming series against Cincinnati, but Manager Darrell Johnson admitted he probably would start ace right-hander Luis Tiant in Saturday's opening game at Fenway Park.

Also, shortstop Burleson said the fact that the opening two games of the just-concluded playoffs were at Fenway had been a big aid.

"I hope it will be the same in the World Series," Burleson said of the venerable stadium with its short left field wall.

"If we can hit some balls off the wall, I'm sure it will give George Foster some trouble," commented the Red Sox infielder. "When we won those first two games against the A's at home, we knew it would be just a matter of time before we won the series. But I was surprised we won it in three straight."

Right-hander Wise, who was 19-12 on the season, admitted he was tiring in the eighth against the A's.

"I was mainly throwing fast stuff to go as hard as I could for as long as I could," he said. When he left the game with one out in the eighth, he had allowed the three runs, two of them earned, and six hits.

Kings open in Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — Los Angeles opens its National Hockey League regular season here tonight against the Canadiens, and Kings' Coach Bob Pulford admits that he is a little nervous.

"I always get nervous between the end of training and the opener," said Pulford, whose Kings had a 20-10-10 record on the road last year and were 22-7-11 at home.

"I know we'll be a good team," Pulford said. "But it's imperative that we get off to a good start and the team isn't set yet."

The Kings have been beefed up by the addition of Marcel Dionne, one of the game's top scorers. Dionne came to Los Angeles from Detroit in a transaction which sent Kings' captain Terry Harper and two other players to the Red Wings.

Harper had sought an injunction to invalidate his assignment to Detroit, but U.S. Dist. Court Judge Robert K. Kelleher Tuesday turned down Harper's request.

Cappelletti wants more playing time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Cappelletti, the Los Angeles Rams' former Heisman Trophy winner from Penn State, isn't singing the old "Play Me or Trade Me" tune . . . yet.

Although, the infrequently-used Cappelletti is humming a lyric which goes something like "Talk to Me, Please Talk to Me."

The Rams' number one draft pick in 1974, Cappelletti has carried the ball just three times this season, although he did play a lot in exhibition games.

He said Tuesday that he's a patient person, but he's beginning to wonder why he has not played more.

"I have no idea why I haven't been used more," Cappelletti said. "Nobody has told me and I haven't asked.

"Maybe I should ask but I don't see that it would make much difference. I think it's up to them to tell me."

Cappelletti carried the ball 55 times for 198 yards last season, and he had hoped to see more action this year.

"I felt last year was a good situation coming to the Rams," he remarked. "But something has to start happening or you say to yourself, 'I don't care who I play with, just as long as I get to play.'"

He says "A team like the Rams has a lot of talent. They probably have people who aren't playing who could play at a lot of other places. But the Rams don't use the talent and I can't understand it.

"Nobody ever says anything to you," Cappelletti added. "People just take it for granted that you do your job and they do theirs."

He did say, however, that Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom communicates well with the team.

"He encourages me," Cappelletti said. "But I don't think he has control of what goes on in specific situations."

Cappelletti said "rumors" started him thinking about his situation.

"I've been hearing things from people I'd never expect to hear from," he said. "It's not just fans. Other people are saying things too.

"What people have been saying made me think. I was willing to sit on the bench and learn last year, but I'm not going to get any better on the bench this year."

Rams' Coach Chuck Knox, when asked about Cappelletti's remarks, said that he plans to discuss the matter with him soon.

"I think anybody who's not playing might say the same things as John," Knox said. "The reason he isn't playing much is that we have Lawrence McCutcheon — a guy who's been to the Pro Bowl twice and has rushed for more than a thousand yards each of the last two years — ahead of him."

Big 10, Pac-8 opposed

Playoffs under study

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the nation's major conferences have reaffirmed their opposition to a national college football playoff although such a proposal may come up for a vote for the first time at the National Collegiate Athletic Association's January convention.

The College Football Championship Feasibility Committee, headed by Temple University athletic director Ernest C. Casale, recommended a four-team, post-bowl playoff to the policy-making NCAA Council last weekend.

The Associated Press learned the vote was 8-4—five members of the 17-man committee were absent—and three of the negative votes were cast by representatives of the Big Ten, Pacific-8 and Southeastern Conferences.

They were faculty representative Marcus L. Plant of Michigan, a member of the Big Ten; athletic director J.D. Morgan of UCLA, which belongs to the Pac-8, and Boyd McWhorter, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference. The fourth negative vote came from Alan Chapman of Rice University, a member of the Southwest Conference.

The committee fight for a national championship playoff was led by Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney, who was represented by sports information director Don Bryant, and Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame. Other affirmative votes, The AP learned, were cast by Casale; athletic directors Bud Jack of Utah, Seaver Peters of Dartmouth and Homer Rice of North Carolina; faculty representative Edwin L. Saxer of Toledo and Robert C. James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Absent committee members were Coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and John McKay of Southern California, athletic directors Elroy Hirsch of Wisconsin and Carl Maddox of Louisiana State and faculty representative William H. Baughn of Colorado.

The playoff opposition from the Big Ten, Pac-8 and SEC stems from a desire to maintain the present bowl structure. The Big Ten and Pac-8 champions meet in the lucrative Rose Bowl while the SEC usually sends at least half of its 10 teams to postseason games.

"While the Big Ten has never adopted an official position, the conference has traditionally been opposed to a national championship playoff because of a long and successful affiliation with the Rose Bowl," said Commissioner Wayne Duke. "We feel a post-season playoff would be a detriment to the present bowl picture."

The championship committee recommended that four teams be chosen by a special panel, with two games to be played a week or so after the bowls and the championship game a week later.

An NCAA spokesman said he felt the proposal would become a formal piece of legislation at the January convention in St. Louis. If approved, it would take affect for the 1976 season.

Pac-8 Commissioner Wiles Hallock said Morgan was speaking for the conference when he cast his negative antiplayoff vote.

"We're opposed on several grounds," Hallock said. "We think 14 games (11 regular-season, a bowl game and two playoff contests) is too many, we're opposed on academic grounds and we don't feel that establishing a national champion in college football is that important, not as important as preserving the Rose Bowl tradition we already have. We feel any playoff following the bowl games would only diminish the bowls."

McWhorter said the selection of four participating teams by a special committee "would be a vote in itself, like the current polls. I haven't found any great feeling in our conference for a playoff. Many institutions feel a bowl game is a reward for a good season, and if you win the bowl you end on a high note. I don't think you can devise a system that will give you a true national champion."

Arguments in favor of a playoff are money and the promotion of college football.

"Money is always a matter of concern," McWhorter said, "but I don't think it can be of prime importance. And I think college football is the best game in town now."

Burke, Sanborn earn Elks' grid award

For the third straight week, the Elks Lodge Offensive Player of the Week is a running back.

The honored player this time around is fullback Leo Burke of Damien High, a hero in the Spartans' dramatic 15-14 win over San Antonio League foe Upland last Friday.

On defense, the Defensive Player of the Week honors go to Scott Sanborn, a linebacker for Bonita High.

Both players will be presented plaques by the Pomona Elks Lodge at the weekly Progress Bulletin football luncheon next Monday at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona.

Burke did not have a lot of yardage against Upland, but his one-yard touchdown burst brought the Spartans to within one of the Highlanders at 14-13 during the deciding moments of the fourth quarter. Burke then supplied the winning points by powering into the end zone on a successful two-point PAT conversion to spark the Damien victory.

The rugged Spartan fullback, only a junior, also provided his team with excellent blocking on both running and pass plays.

Sanborn, a senior, pepped the Bonita victory over traditional rival San Dimas with an outstanding defensive effort at the linebacker slot. The Bearcat senior accounted for eight assisted and four unassisted tackles, twice sacked the Saint quarterback, and recovered two fumbles.

If that were not enough, Sanborn stopped the final San Dimas comeback try late in the final quarter by pressuring the Saint quarterback into an incomplete pass on a fourth-and-three situation. From there Bonita took over and ran out the clock to a 14-7 victory.

Injuries hit UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA football Coach Dick Vermeil got some good news and some bad news Tuesday as the Bruins went through a brisk workout.

The bad news was that two of his starters — split end Norm Andersen and offensive tackle Jack DeMartinis — are doubtful for UCLA's Pacific-8 opener Saturday at Stanford.

Both Andersen and DeMartinis are suffering from hamstring pulls and, while both were at practice Tuesday, neither was at full speed.

The good news for Vermeil was the showing of four Bruin freshmen. Vermeil said linebacker Brad Vassar, defensive tackle Bruce Davis, running back Jewerl Thomas and split end Jerry Robinson all were impressive during the workout.

Poly enjoys 2-0 record

Cal Poly's cross country team will take a 2-0 dual meet record into the Long Beach Federation Meet on Saturday.

The Broncos defeated Whittier, 15-47, on Whittier's four-mile course. Poly's top runners were: 1. David Crockett 21.08; 2. Chris Trujillo 21.14; 3. John Fetcho 21.48; 4. Bob Watanabe 22.00; and 5. Chris Ebiner 22.25.

Poly women win again

LONG BEACH — The Cal Poly women's field hockey team pushed its Southern California Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Association record to 2-0 here Tuesday afternoon with a 5-0 blanking of Long Beach State.

Poly players Karen Celestino and Rachel Smith both scored two goals in the win while Joan Baird added the final Bronco score. Nikki Coulas registered her second shutout of the season in the nets for Pomona.

Coach Jo Oliver's women, now 2-1 on the season, will be out of action until next Thursday when they will be hosting San Diego State at Cal Poly at 3 p.m. in another SCWIAA match.

H.L. unbeatens meet head-on

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Correspondent

The feature game in the Hacienda League this weekend will involve a team which, as little as a week ago, did not figure to be a frontrunner.

When Alta Loma and Walnut meet Friday at 8 p.m. at Chaffey College, it will be the only H.L. contest which matches two winners from last week's opening schedule.

As expected, Walnut has strangled its first three opponents of the year with an overpowering defense. But Alta Loma started a bit more slowly.

The Braves opened the season with a 7-6 loss to Montclair and a week later fell to Upland, 27-0.

So when Alta Loma drew as its first H.L. assignment an Ontario squad which had shut out that same Montclair team just a week before, the Jaguars had to rate a sizeable edge.

But the Braves had a new look Friday when they stopped the Jags cold, 14-0. The Alta Loma defense totally stymied Ontario, holding it to 86 total yards — 48 on the ground and 38 in the air. Meanwhile, Brave quarterback Don Lester passed for 104 yards and a touchdown and scored another TD himself while fullback Steve Robinson rushed 13 times for 66 yards — better than a 5-yard average. Alta Loma amassed 240 yards of total offense, nearly three times that of Ontario.

"A lot of the credit has to go to the coaching staff," said head coach Tom Cook after the game. "The addition of Tommy (Thompson) and Mike (Childress) really made a difference."

Thompson joined the Braves' staff Sept. 22 and Childress was added a week later. According to Cook, doubling the number of coaches (defensive coach Don Holladay was Cook's only assistant when the season began) turned things around.

"Now we have enough people to spot the little things that are so important," Cook said. "Don and I just couldn't watch everything in practice.

"The penalties were a good example of that," he continued. (The Braves were penalized 10 times for a total of 200 yards while the Jaguars lost just 30 yards on three infractions.) "There are still a lot of mistakes we'll have to correct."

As many flaws as possible will have to be worked out before the Braves meet Walnut Friday. The Mustangs, rated 11th in this week's CIF 2-A poll, are undefeated in three games, with winning margins of 21-6, 13-7 and 14-0.

Three other H.L. contests are scheduled for Friday at 8 p.m.

Bonita, after winning the "Smudge Pot Bowl" Saturday against district rival San Dimas, 14-7, will take on winless Sierra Vista at Baldwin Park High. The Bearcats (1-0 in league play, 1-2 overall) rate the advantage over the Dons (victims of Walnut's 14-0 shutout Saturday), who have scored just seven points in three games.

San Dimas (0-1, 0-2-1), meanwhile, figures to get well against Gladstone (0-1, 0-3) at Bonita High, while Ontario (0-1, 1-2) will have its hands full against undefeated Royal Oak (1-0, 3-0) at Chaffey High. The Romans, ranked second this week among CIF 2-A schools, rolled over Gladstone last week, 34-12.

Bob Hope joins salute

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope said Tuesday he would join in a tribute next week for former UCLA basketball Coach John Wooden.

Hope will speak on the same program with Mayor Tom Bradley and as Wooden celebrates his 65th birthday.

Webster tops scoring derby

Stanley Webster of Garey High has taken the lead in the Progress Bulletin prep scoring derby after the first three weeks of football competition.

Webster, a senior halfback, has scored four touchdowns so far in three contests, good for 24 points. Runnerup Leo Burke of Damien, also a running back, has 20 points in three games.

In team statistics, undefeated Damien leads all local schools in point production. The Spartans have tallied 73 points in three outings for a 24.3 average per contest.

On defense, surprising Ontario Christian registered its third straight shutout over the weekend to maintain its distinction as the top defensive squad in the valley. The Knights also rate second in team offense to Damien according to the latest statistics.

Trojan QB is uncertain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The difference between college and pro football offenses is very basic, says University of Southern California football Coach John McKay.

"Pro football offenses are three-pronged attacks and college offenses are four-pronged attacks. In the pros, you can go inside, outside or pass. In college, you can run inside, outside, pass or go to the quarterback option, which they don't do much of in the pros.

"The question in college ball is, do you want to give up that one prong by devising a more pro-type offense."

McKay was trying to explain why he'd rather use Vince Evans, a strong runner, at quarterback when his No. 3-ranked Trojans meet Washington State Saturday.

However, McKay may have no choice but to go again with Rob Hertel, a top passer but not quite the runner that Evans is.

Last Thursday, when USC left for Iowa, McKay still wasn't sure Evans' bruised thumb had healed enough for him to play. It wasn't and he didn't.

McKay said he didn't announce anything before his team left because "I wasn't absolutely sure. We're not trying to hide anything but I'm not gonna tell you something if I don't definitely know."

McKay was asked which one would start against WSU and he replied that Evans might be back. And he might not. In any case, McKay was pleased with the play of Hertel as the Trojans beat Iowa 27-16.

"Against Iowa, Hertel ran the ball extremely well when we asked him. And he threw for a touchdown. We won with him."

He said he watched Evans Monday and "it didn't look like he was much improved so Hertel will undoubtedly start . . . unless I change my mind."

He said Evans couldn't take a center snap well and, to make certain Hertel would be ready, "Rob will work out with the first-team offensive line, to get their timing down. The offensive line is the most coordinated unit you have."

He said injuries might hurt his team this week. At least three starters are definitely out of the Saturday's game. Center Jeff Flood has stretched knee ligaments, tight end Joe Shipp has torn knee ligaments and fullback Dave Farmer has a broken leg. Others are doubtful, such as starting linebacker Kevin Bruce (strained arch) and starting tackle Butch Underwood (bruised knee).

McKay praised the 2-2 Cougars.

"They beat a good Kansas team which Wisconsin found out right afterwards." WSU beat Kansas 18-14 and Kansas ripped Wisconsin 41-7.

"They're the best team we have faced by quite a margin. They have a fine quarterback in (John) Hopkins and they've got the damndest punter I've ever seen. He already has one kick that's listed as 83 yards but I'll swear the thing went 100.

"And Hopkins can really throw the ball. He came in last year against us and threw very well." Hopkins has hit on 44 of 77 passes.

Nothing's going to be easy in SAL

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Considering the fact that the BIGGEST victory margin in the four San Antonio League opening round of games played last week was seven points, it doesn't take a genius to figure out that the league is every bit as competitive as everybody thought it would be.

And, to make things doubly interesting, the schedule-maker has arranged for all four of last week's winners to meet one another this weekend, thus keeping things hopping in the SAL once again.

The four victorious coaches all were quick to point out the SAL season has a long way to go yet before its decided.

Garey's Lawson Bush, who saw his squad defeat Ganesha, is happy to be 1-0 in league but knows it's a tough road ahead.

"We are off to one of Garey's best starts ever in football, but in this league every week is a challenge. I can't see where any one team is vastly superior to any other in the SAL. Even though we beat Ganesha I would not be surprised to see them turn right around and really whip somebody before too long."

Garey's opponent Thursday is Claremont, a 7-0 winner at Montclair.

"This is a real fine league," states Wolfpack Esper Keiser in reinforcing Bush's views. "Heck, some people thought we would beat Montclair by a big score but I knew that was nonsense. Nobody is going to beat anyone by a big margin in the SAL right now. Montclair played us a whale of a football game so you can't tell me they are one of the weakest teams in the league."

Don't try to tell Pomona's Mike Clifton that Chino is a pushover either.

"To be honest, we really underrated Chino," said the Pomona High skipper. "They are a very fine team who played us one tough game. I was also surprised to see Montclair play Claremont so closely and to see Damien and Upland play such a close game. I guess it's the same story once again this year, winning the SAL is going to be a real struggle for some team."

Agreement comes from Damien mentor Dick Larson.

"Upland came out and gave us a real fight of it until we settled down in the fourth quarter to beat 'em 15-14. After winning one like that you'd like to relax but here we go against Pomona this week. I think Clifton has an outstanding team and even though they lost both of their pre-league games, from the films and what I heard they should be 3-0 like us."

Of the four losers last week, two of them have a chance to bounce right back into the title picture with wins this weekend. In fact, no one in the league seems very down right now since all the contests were so closely contested.

One thing which could be a major factor before the SAL season is out is injuries. Already some of the squads have been hit by a rash of them.

Pomona has lost both running back Charles Cole and defensive end Sam Barreras for this week's competition. Cole has tonsilitis while Barreras has a bad knee. Also hobbled but expected to play Friday is Devil fullback Hank Zibell. Zibell suffered a strained arch in his foot against Chino and left the contest, but not before he had scored two touchdowns and had rushed for 90 yards.

Pomona's foe Friday, Damien, will also be short a couple of its key performers.

"Bob Alexander (Spartan fullback) is still out with a bad ankle while our placekicker and wide receiver Rick Davis suffered a knee injury against Upland. We don't really know how serious it is but I think Rick will be back with us before the season's out. However, he is definitely out for the Pomona game."

Larson noted he was fortunate to have replacements for Davis' talents. Junior Brian Sullivan will assume the placekicking duties for the Spartans while senior Steve Gaston is a very capable receiver.

Most of the teams in the SAL seem to have found talented quarterbacks.

Damien has Joe Carroll back this year, and Carroll is a proven passer and ballhandler. Upland has been getting fine play from Bob Dalquest, and last year's starter Jay Morton may also be back in a Highlander uniform this week after being ineligible the first three games.

Chino has gotten some aerial fireworks from junior Chris Pruitt, as has Garey from Milton Banks. Claremont seems to set with Mike Davis at the QB slot, while coach Garry Norvell at Ganesha may have uncovered a gem in strong-armed signal caller Joe Madrigal.

Montclair coach Rich Bare has settled on senior Bill Moore to quarterback the Cavs, although junior Darren Pierce may well see some playing time if the Cavalier offense does not come around.

Clifton is the lone SAL mentor who still has not settled on a full-time QB, and the way things are going the Pomona coach probably won't.

Senior Mark Soto and junior Kevin Johnson shared playing time last week against Chino and both looked impressive at times. So far in three Devil outings the duo has split playing time down the middle.

Ex-teammates to greet Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It'll be like old home week this Sunday in San Diego when the Rams meet the Chargers in a National Football League game, said Ram Coach Chuck Knox Tuesday.

Speaking to newsmen at his regular weekly brunch, Knox said the game "will be more personal" because of the great number of former Ram players now with the Chargers. "It's just one more challenge," said Knox. "All we want to do is go down there and win."

The Chargers, he noted, held the potent Oakland Raiders without a touchdown last week. San Diego lost the game, but it took two George Blanda field goals for the Raiders to win 6-0.

"It's going to be another tough ball game," said Knox. "Obviously, they know more about our philosophy, but we change our style from week to week, too. We scout ourselves. We note our tendencies. If we call the same play on third down on the 45-yard line all the time, we will change."

Knox was concerned about the number of penalties his team collected in a 24-13 victory over Baltimore last Sunday. Los Angeles was penalized nine times for 116 yards and he said the emphasis this week would be simply to play an error-free game.

The Rams will have an extra day of rest for the Charger game because it's only 125 miles to San Diego Stadium. And Knox is happy with the fact that facility has natural grass—"not artificial turf, something we'd have to get used to." The Rams play and work out on grass in Los Angeles.

Mark Jacobs led the way with three goals for the Broncos.

The game was a tuneup for Poly's California Collegiate Athletic Association water polo opener Friday at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. That match is slated for a 3:30 p.m. starting time.

A.L. vs. Walnut tops C-C card

An Hacienda League matchup between Alta Loma and Walnut figures to top this week's card of prep cross country action.

Both the Braves and the Mustangs will go into Thursday's 3:15 p.m. meet at Mt. San Antonio College with victories in their Hacienda openers.

Alta Loma easily bested Ontario 15-50 last week as Joel Hope topped the field with a 11:16 clocking. Walnut outraced Sierra Vista 20-45 with Dave Mendoza copping first with a 10:30.

Both schools figure to turn in top efforts on the MSAC cross country course Thursday in a meet which could be a preview of the Hacienda League finals.

Defending champ San Dimas also showed it will be a factor in the H.L. once again this year with a 24-32 win over Bonita last Saturday. Bearcat Mike Greene captured first with a 10:04 but the Saints ran two-three-four to win the meet.

Over in the San Antonio League, the rich figure to get richer in this week's dual meets.

Upland High was unseated as the top 3-A team in the latest CIF cross country poll as Notre Dame of Sherman Oaks bested the Scots in the Crescenta Valley Invitational on Saturday. The Highlanders still came in second on the 3-A balloting however and figure to have an easy time of it Thursday against Montclair.

Montclair fell to Claremont in opening round SAL action but the Cavaliers' Mike Roza did win individual honors with a 10.26. Roza figures to be hard pressed to duplicate that first place effort against the Scots.

Claremont should not have too much difficulty in besting Garey, and Chino figures to get by Ganesha.

The Pomona-Chino dual meet, which was supposed to be run last week but was postponed due to smog, has been rescheduled for early November.

The Devils will run against Damien Thursday looking to open SAL meets with a victory.

Here is the way the prep cross country schedule looks for Thursday and Friday: San Antonio League (all meets Thursday) — Upland at Montclair, Garey at Claremont, Ganesha at Chino and Damien at Pomona. Hacienda League — Thursday: Alta Loma vs. Walnut at MSAC; Friday: San Dimas at Gladstone, Ontario at Royal Oak and Sierra Vista at Bonita.

All meets are slated to start at 3:15 p.m.

SHOOTING FOR THE TITLE — Don "Big Daddy" Garlits will be at OMS this weekend aiming at his first World Top Fuel Championship. That is the only title that has eluded him.

Garlits and Beck at OMS

ONTARIO, Calif. — Don Garlits, the best-known personality in drag racing history, has won a record 14 major professional championships in a National Hot Rod Association driving career dating back to the '50s.

But none of those titles — not even his four National Championships — hold as much significance for the 43-year-old veteran as a victory in the Winston World Finals at Ontario Motor Speedway.

A triumph on what is considered "the world's quickest drag strip" would give the controversial pro: (1) his first world points championship; (2) a record-setting fourth victory in one season; (3) a record-tying 15th career victory; and (4) a record-breaking third straight win at OMS.

Moreover, the victory would deny arch rival Gary Beck a second consecutive World title and re-establish Garlits as the undisputed king of drag racing's swiftest machines — the top fuel dragsters.

Beck, a fourth year pro from Edmonton, Alberta, Canda, has challenged that superiority with surprising success over the past four seasons and, in fact, carries a 148-point lead over Garlits into the season-ending showdown at Ontario.

But regardless of what Beck does, Garlits can win the title by winning the race. As for the other milestones, such a triumph would break the present record for NHRA championship victories in one season he shares with Beck; would tie him with Ronnie Sox of Burlington, N.C. for most career wins (Sox won nine professional events; six sportsman titles) and would break a tie with Sox for both most victories at OMS and most consecutive victories at OMS.

Actually, the World Championship is the only major title to have eluded the Tampa, Fla., driver who owns most of the sports professional records including performance records of 5.78 seconds elapsed time and 249.30 miles per hour. Both are all-time bests for a quarter mile course from a standing start.

Garlits believes he can better both in the World Finals, however, and, by his own admission, fully intends to break the 250 mile per hour barrier in the OMS competition. He set the ET record there gwo years ago on the way to his first Supernationals title and established the current speed mark earlier this year in racing at Martin, Mich.

The 250 barrier is only the latest to face Garlits. He has surpassed all the others despite the pessimism of engineers who once said that a quarter mile speed of 170 MPH was the ultimate. Garlits was the first man to officially surpass 190 (Sept., 1963, at Connecticut Dragway), 200 (Aug., 1964, at Island, N.Y., Dragway) and 240 (March, 1973, at Gainesville, Fla., Dragway).

This season, he has already won the Winternationals at Pomona, the Molson Grandnational at Montreal, Canada and the U.S. Nationals at Indianapolis, Ind. But Beck, who holds the OMS speed record of 248.61 MPH, has also been in the finals on three occasions and, as a result of Garlits' decision to pass up the recent Fallnationals at Seattle, Wash., owns a slight lead in the race for the $20,000 Winston winner's bonus.

Still, the favorite's role must fall to the man they call "Big Daddy." For all his many accomplishments, perhaps the most astounding is that in 26 NHRA national event appearances in the last five years, he has been in the finals 12 times.

Big engines are out

Auto racing

WINSTON - SALEM, N.C. 8 "What does the public drive, a car with a big engine or a car with a small engine?" asks NASCAR's Bill Gazaway.

"They drive the small engine, that's what, and that's also what racing fans want to see on the track," he said. "That's what stock car racing is all about — fan identification with the cars they see competing. Detroit doesn't sell the big engine to the public, so we have taken it off the track."

Gazaway, NASCAR competition and technical director of the Winston Cup/NASCAR Grand National circuit, has been the mover behind a number of rule changes which have forced NASCAR competitors to exchange 430-cubic-inch engines for power plants of 358-cubic-inches or less.

Gazaway beghan his campaign for the smaller, more economical engines nearly five years ago. "We started thinking about the small block engine at first because the speeds kept increasing," he recalled. "Competition had become so fierce that the only way a driver could win was more and more speed."

As a result, speeds became too great for rubber to handle and the tire companies began throwing up their hands. The drivers, too, began to express concern because it was becoming increasingly dangerous to run on the fastest part of the tracks — the high-speed grooves next to the outer walls.

Gazaway, NASCAR's trackside technical authority since 1968, heard what a number of owners and drivers had to say and acted. But as with most changes, acceptance of the smaller block has not been universal.

"Some of the owners and drivers just don't understand the reasons for the changes. They have even accused me of trying to run them out of business," he said. "Heck, I'm not trying to run anybody out. We just want to be as fair as possible to everyone and give the fans better, more thrilling races.

"Certainly, I realize that the switch is going to be expensive for some of the owners in the short run," Gazaway said. "But in the long run, it's going to mean lower costs for engines and parts and reduced fuel usage.

"Another thing the changes do is put more of a premium on skill. Those guys in the pits are going to have to be better than ever. The changes mean that the mechanics will again have to rely on their ingenuity, because now you can't buy a carburetor and just bolt it on.

"All in all, I think we are succeeding in getting what we want," Gazaway added. "We have equalized the competition enough so that anyone who wants to really make an effort has a solid chance to win a race. We have had many of our races go down to the finish this year, with lots of lead changes, and some exciting battles for the fans to watch."

Snead says putting off

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Before he can even think about playing the likes of Jack Nicklaus or Tom Weiskopf, J.C. Snead says his putting touch must improve in the $117,500 International All-Star golf matches.

Snead scored an impressive 6 and 5 opening victory Tuesday over fellow American George Burns But he wasn't satisified.

"I'm going to have to make some putts if I'm going to beat anybody else. And I'm unhappy I didn't hit the ball very far today," said the nephew of the famed Sam Snead.

The younger Snead took advantage of Burns' jittery start to go 2-up after three holes. He played the 13 holes in 12 pars and a solitary bogey over the par-72, 7,000-yard Muirfield Village layout.

"I don't make many birds. That's the trouble with me," said Snead, who faced Australian Bob Stanton in the second round today.

Stanton ousted young American Mark Hayes 3 and 2 in the first round.

Other second-round matches today paired Tsutomu Irie of Japan against John O'Leary of Ireland, Jerry Heard against fellow American Eddie Pearce and newlywed Tom Kite of the United States against American Forrest Fezler.

Irie upset Ben Crenshaw of the United States 2-up. Stanton ousted young Mark Hayes of the United States 3 and 2, while O'Leary eliminated Leonard Thompson, another American, 2 and 1.

Head carded a three-underpar 69 on the 7,000-yard Muirfield Village Memorial course in downing Australian David Graham 3 and 2. Pearce notched a 2-up triumph over fellow American Joe Inman.

Kite, who was married in Las Vegas, Nev., last week, was a 5 and 3 winner over Kazunari Takahashi of Japan.

Fezler beat Bernard Gallacher of Scotland 1-up Tuesday in a close match that went down to the final hole. Fezler carded a par 4 on the 18th hole while Gallacher, fresh from winning the Dunlop Masters in England, hit his tee shot into the water and wound up with a double bogey 6.

First-round losers pocketed $2,500 checks.

Survivors of the second round this morning will play another round in the afternoon, with the winners going against Nicklaus and Weiskopf, both seeded into Thursday's finals. At stake is a first prize of $25,000.

L.B. State back prays after each TD

LONG BEACH (AP) — His Long Beach State teammates call Herb Lusk the "praying tailback."

While other football players jump and shout and dance to express their joy after scoring a touchdown, Lusk kneels quietly in the end zone and prays.

The 22-year-old son of a Baptist minister has had many chances to pray the past couple of weeks. Lusk, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior, has scored eight touchdowns in Long Beach's last two games, including four in his team's 31-24 victory over Southern Illinois Saturday.

His performance in that game also included 37 carries for 258 yards and, it was announced today, earned him The Associated Press Back of the Week award.

Lusk, from Seaside, Calif., on the Monterey Peninsula, explained why he prays after every touchdown he scores.

"I want to thank God for giving me the ability to do what I do," he said. "I want to kneel down in front of the 10,000 or however many people in the stands and give praises.

"I hope that it might touch somebody. I hope the next week when I'm at school, people will come up and ask me if I really believe in God, so I can tell them how I feel."

Lusk's reaction to being named AP Back of the Week was that he was happy people would have a chance to read how he feels about his religion.

"I'd like to think that maybe I've helped save somebody," he said.

Lusk commented that his four trips to his end zone "pulpit" against Southern Illinois were not quite as easy as he perhaps made them look.

"I've got a lot of bumps and bruises from the game," Lusk remarked. "Those guys hit pretty hard. I got real good blocking from the offensive line, and from my buddy in the backfield, Mark Bailey."

Lusk said he considers the game against Southern Illinois his best yet.

"The thing that makes it so important to me is that I was able to score when we really needed it," he said.

Long Beach was trailing late in the fourth quarter when Lusk broke 49 yards for the winning touchdown.

Lusk now has picked up 713 yards on 124 carries in the 49ers' five games for a 5.7-yard per carry average. He has also scored ten touchdowns to help Long Beach to its 4-1 record.

In winning Back of the Week honors, Lusk beat out:

Running backs Lonnie Perrin of Illinois, Leroy Harris of Arkansas State, Kevin McLee and Glynn Harrison of Georgia, Jerry Eckwood of Arkansas, Jimmy Bailey of Texas-Arlington, Ricky Bell of Southern California, Gerry Goodwin of Navy, Archie Griffin of Ohio State, Jim Wingender of Iowa State, Dwayne Woods of West Virginia, Elbert Williams of Wichita State and David Sloan of Virginia.

Defensive backs Dennis Anderson of Arizona and Bob Young of Miami of Ohio.

Gunny sacks are usually made of coarse sackcloth woven from the strong, shiny fibers of the jute plant.

Practically all jute used to make gunny sacks comes from India. In fact, the word "gunny" comes from the Hindi word "goni," which means "sack."

About four months after planting jute seeds, harvesting begins. At this time, the plants may be 15 feet high, with round stalks as thick as a man's finger and long, slender, saw-toothed leaves.

The stalks are cut, tied in bundles, and soaked in water. When they have become soft enough, the long fibers are separated from the stalks, washed and hung on poles to dry.

Finally, the fibers are pressed into bales and shipped to manufacturers to be made into gunny sacks, ropes, wrappings and many other jute products.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061

Black mayor's demand halts airport project

ATLANTA (AP) — This city's black, first-term mayor has angered white politicians and delayed a major airport expansion project with his unyielding demand that black companies participate in the $400 million contract.

It's part of Mayor Maynard Jackson's demand that black-owned construction companies be included in government construction contracts.

"I think the time has come to stop pussyfooting around," said Jackson, 37, first black mayor of this Southern capital city. "Either government ought to shut up talking a good game or government ought to do something about it."

To back up his demand on the airport contract, Jackson says he is drafting an ordinance that will guarantee black businessmen a share of every city contract.

His approach appears to be more direct and forceful than that of other black mayors in major American cities.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley has pushed a program to make black firms aware of upcoming city contracts, and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young has insisted on a quota of minority employes for firms bidding on city work. Similar efforts have been made in Gary, Ind. by Richard Hatcher.

Jackson, however, moved swiftly and directly this year to reopen architectural and engineering contracts for the airport expansion and insisted that the contract holders recruit black-owned firms to do 20 to 25 per cent of the work.

After 11 weeks of negotiations, the existing contractor, Atlanta Airport Engineering Inc., recruited a black-owned New York firm to share in the engineering contract. And two architectural firms agreed to take in four black-owned firms on a joint venture basis.

"It's an idea whose time has come," Jackson said of the joint ventures. "It is the next logical step in the equal employment opportunity sphere."

He said that resistance to the idea comes from people who believe "rather accurately, that if this catches on and spreads nationally, blacks will achieve a level of economic power unparalleled in the history of the country.

"The irony of the resistance to the idea is that the resistance is often by people who criticize blacks for not being resourceful. Now, here's a chance for blacks not to get a giveaway."

A black voter majority and a strong relationship with a biracial city council make it possible for Jackson to make such a stubborn stand, said state Sen. Julian Bond, a Jackson supporter who briefly sought support for a presidential bid this year.

"Most black mayors do not have the same kind of good relationship with the city council that Jackson has," said Bond who is black. "Although they may want to do the same thing, political realities keep them from that. This along with the black political majority is the major reason for Jackson's strong position."

Jackson collected nearly 60 per cent of the votes two years ago to defeat incumbent Mayor Sam Massell. At that time blacks made up just slightly less than half the registered voters. Today, black voters comprise 51.4 per cent of the voters.

So far, Jackson has not taken a strong position on an annexation controversy, an issue that concerns the black political majority. While annexation of predominantly white surburban areas would increase the city's tax base, it also would dilute black voting strength.

Jackson's critics say he is trying to advance the cause of blacks at the expense of sound government.

Atlanta city councilman Nick G. Lambros, acknowledges that white firms in Georgia for many years have used joint ventures to handle large government jobs. But, he said, he opposes city contracts being awarded solely on the basis of race.

"I think it chases away other bidders or people who might render service to the city by imposing on them a partnership they don't want or need," said Lambros, one of four council members to vote against including minority firms in the airport contracts.

Another council opponent, George Cotsakis, who like Lambros is white, said he thinks an alternative is to have a "good administrator" privately tell the low bidder the city would like to see minorities included in the job.

Cotsakis said he doesn't like the idea of mandating black participation.

And the current procedure with its emphasis on race, he said, is "building up a lot of rednecks and people who don't want to be rednecks."

Names no longer go to FBI

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Department of Motor Vehicles has stopped sending the FBI the names of driver's license applicants who refuse the optional thumbprinting, says a DMV spokesman.

But the spokesman, Lionel J. Holmes, said Monday he hadn't heard of any reaction from the FBI.

He said the new DMV director, Herman Sillas, put a stop to the apparently longstanding practice when he discovered there is no law requiring that it be done.

Holmes said he didn't know if the Federal Bureau of Investigation received the names from DMV headquarters or directly from the 147 offices which issue licenses.

Thumbprinting is only optional, not required, for driver's license applicants.

Sillas, an appointee of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., discovered the practice last month, Holmes said. His decision was discussed at a cabinet meeting a week ago. Then Sillas, in an effort to avoid secrecy in department business, had the minutes of the meeting posted on DMV bulletin boards, he said.

First A-bomb

Grape harvest promises harvest of good eating

Now seems a fitting time to focus on fresh California table grapes. It's the annual harvesting season of the renowned California table grape, bringing once again the fresh promise of distinctive quality.

Red, green and blue-black — all the grape colors are available this fall. Nine of the fourteen major California grape varieties will be appearing in the produce section of supermarkets, and some will be available through the holidays and into the winter season. Actually, crisp California grapes are available in at least one color 12 months of the year.

Fresh California table grapes are probably the most convenient fruit we enjoy. "Packaged" by the bunch, grapes come in bitesize morsels ready to pluck off the stem to eat as is or toss into splendid recipes. There's no need to worry about peeling and chopping. And grapes won't discolor when cut. The tiny seeds in some grape varieties are easy to remove with the tip of a spoon or a strawberry huller.

Fresh California grapes combine with other foods to make interesting and delicious dishes, so take advantage of this fall's harvest in many different ways. The fruit is a good complement to many meat, vegetable and fruit recipes. Grapes make any dish "juicier" and prettier; yet they don't get soggy or lose their shape if cooked.

One classic treatment for fresh California grapes is a cool, pretty molded gelatin salad. Vintner's Citrus Salad is an easy, make-ahead mosaic of red and green grapes suspended in a zippy lemon and orange juice gelatin. It's one of those recipes you'll want to stash away in your "effortless entertaining" file — or one to treat your family on special occasions. Enjoy it this fall and through the holidays.

For more exciting ways to use and serve fresh California grapes this summer, write for your copy of "Grapery." This distinctive new booklet celebrates the fine art of beautifying food with grapes. Included are some 25 recipes alongside vivid color photos illustrating how California grapes can add luster and versatility to any table. To order, send 35 cents in coin to cover postage and handling to: "GRAPERY", P.O. Box 5498, Fresno, California 93755.

VINTNER'S CITRUS SALAD

- 2/3 cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 envelopes (1 tablespoon each) unflavored gelatin
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- 2 cups boiling water
- 1 and 1/3 cups orange juice
- 1½ cups halved California seedless grapes
- 1½ cups halved and seeded California red grapes
- Salad greens
- Lemon and orange slices
- Sour cream or yogurt (optional)

In mixing bowl, blend sugar, salt and gelatin. Stir lemon juice into mixture; let stand 5 minutes to soften. Stir boiling water into mixture until gelatin begins to thicken slightly. Add grapes. Pour into 5½-cup mold. Chill firm.

To serve: unmold on serving dish lined with salad greens. Garnish with lemon and orange slices. Top with a dollop of sour cream or yogurt, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Lunchbox attraction

Salami and Eggs Bunwiches pep-up lunchboxes. Combine chopped salami, chopped cooked eggs and pickle relish to taste. Add a little mayonnaise to moisten for spreading on buns.

Do yourself and your waistline a favor. Cut out empty calories found in many pre-packaged snack foods. Opt instead for a nutritious, protein rich snack of celery sticks and cheddar cheese spears rolled up in your favorite lunchmeat.

Colorful foods add vitamins

Vegetables are truly some of the most colorful of foods — ruby red beets, deep purple eggplant, snow white cauliflower, bright orange carrots and brilliant green broccoli. These dazzling plants are packed with important vitamins and minerals to help keep our bodies running smoothly.

The following vegetable recipes developed by the test kitchens of Blue Bonnet Margarine feature carrots and broccoli. Both vegetables are available throughout the year. These recipes call for rich, buttery margarine. Great for cooking, it is also ideal as a table spread.

Tiny Belgian carrots are heated in a savory margarine mixture, using onion and dill. These golden nuggets supply vitamin A — the nutrient which promotes healthy hair and skin and helps eyes adjust to dim light. Vitamin A is also available in most dark green and deep yellow vegetables, apricots, cantaloupe and margarine.

Tender, crisp broccoli is served with a tangy orange sauce. Cornstarch, melted margarine and orange peel are blended together with orange juice, then cooked over medium heat until thickened. These green spears supply vitamin A and calcium — the nutrient which builds strong bones and teeth. Calcium is one of two important nutrients (the other being iron) found lacking in many American diets. Calcium can also be found in collard, kale and turnip greens, milk, cheese and ice cream.

For more nutritious recipes send for your free copy of the Blue Bonnet Book of Creative Cookery, P.O. Box 2695, Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10017.

GOLDEN DILLED CARROTS

- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill
- ½ teaspoon grated onion
- 1 can (15-ounces) Belgian carrots, drained

Melt margarine in a saucepan over low heat. Add dill, onion and carrots. Cook, uncovered over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until carrots are hot, about 8 minutes. Makes 3 servings.

BROCCOLI WITH ORANGE SAUCE

- 1 bunch broccoli (about 1½ pounds), separated into spears
- ¼ cup margarine
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- ½ cup orange juice

Cook broccoli, covered, in small amount salted boiling water until tender crisp. Drain.

Melt margarine in saucepan. Remove from heat. Stir in cornstarch and orange peel. Gradually stir in orange juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Reduce heat to low and simmer for 1 minutes.

Serve over broccoli. Makes 8 servings.

DEVILED BABY BEEF

Cut 1½ pounds baby beef round steak into four portions. Pan fry in two tablespoons butter, turning once until cooked as desired. Do not overcook. Sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste. Transfer to platter and keep warm. Add one tablespoon butter to pan, then add ¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, and saute several minutes. Stir in ¼ cup catsup. 2 tablespoons dry sherry, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon dry mustard and 1 teaspoon worchestershire sauce. Heat, stirring until hot and bubbly. If desired, pour 2 tablespoons brandy over sauce and flame. Pour over steaks and garnish with parsley

Pot-roast season has come

Autumn is pot-roast time and the beef chuck is pot-roast territory. It is most worthwhile for a shopper to become well acquainted with the chuck area, for this is the site of many economical beef buys — pot-roasts among them.

When falling leaves and a chill wind tell you it's pot-roast time, select a chuck pot-roast when you shop. Look for a label reading beef chuck on the first line and blade roast or 7-bone pot-roast on the second. Now you've taken the first step towards producing a satsifying, family-pleasing dinner.

It's true that pot-roasts do take a bit of time and culinary know-how. However, the time element is minimized since they can cook unattended, and the directions are easy to follow. Braising,that is cooking in moist heat (covered) at a low temperature, is required to make these cuts from the make these cuts from the chuck fork tender.

Great variety is possible when different braising liquids and vegetables and fruit combinations are employed. Budget-conscious cooks look to seasonal produce to provide economical and appealing pot-partners for the beef blade cut.

For example, strips of rutabaga and slices of onion, when braised with the beef during the latter part of the cooking period, contribute to an appetizing pot-roast platter for an autumn dinner. Use the recipe for Golden Harvest Pot-Roast to bring this flavorsome combination to your table. A dash of dill weed adds a flavor bonus.

GOLDEN HARVEST POT-ROAST

- 3 to 4-pound beef blade roast
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons lard or drippings
- ¾ cup water
- 1 medium rutabaga (1½ to 2 pounds), cut in ½-inch strips
- 2 medium-sized onions, cut in ¼-inch slices
- ½ teaspoon dill weed
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons flour

Combine flour, 1½ teaspoons salt and pepper. Dredge pot-roast in seasoned flour and brown in lard or drippings in Dutch oven or large frying-pan. Pour off drippings. Add water, cover tightly and cook slowly 1 hour. Add rutabaga and onion and sprinkle with dill weed and ½ teaspoon salt. Continue cooking slowly 1 hour or until meat and rutabaga are tender. Remove meat and vegetables to hot platter. Measure cooking liquid. Using enough water to total two cups liquid, blend with flour and thicken cooking liquid for gravy.

Q: "Really now, aren't all dog foods about the same?"

A: No. Ingredients differ. Some taste better than others. Not all are completely balanced. Some have varying amounts of vitamins, minerals and protein. That's why you should look for products like Blue Mountain Super Meat Loaf. It's specially formulated for your dog. So he gets the taste he really likes and the protein, vitamins and minerals he really needs.

The dessert can say, 'I'm glad you're here'

When you really think about it, what you serve says a lot about you and your attitude toward your guests. For example, when a close friend drops by unannounced, whatever's in the cookie jar says, "I'm glad you dropped in and I know you'll understand." That's spur of the moment — but planned entertaining should speak a special language.

At the Test Kitchens of the R. T. French Company, in Rochester, New York, a lot of time and effort has gone into some very special recipes for entertaining. A touch of elegance is added to each of the recipes with the use of fine New York State wines from Widmer's Wine Cellars.

Vintage Cheese Cake is the perfect way to end a company dinner or the justright accompaniment for coffee or tea after the theater. Widmer's newest wine, Pink Catawba, adds a subtle flavor to the creamy filling. The crowning glory of this elegant dessert is a topping of burnished gold created with peaches and Pink Catawba wine.

Chafing Dish Glazed Fruit is a quick and clever way to glamorize cake or vanilla ice cream. Colorful and flavorful fruits combine in a shimmery sauce easily created with Naples Valley Red wine and brown sugar. The result is a delicately flavored topping that turns ordinary cake or ice cream into the "piece de resistance" of any meal.

Other glamorous desserts for special entertaining include Naples Valley Parfait, a resplendent creation using ice cream, coconut macaroons, and a luscious sauce made with Naples Valley Red wine; Trifle Niagara wherein English elegance meets the special flavor of Lake Niagara wine; Catawba Cream Cake a glazed party cake made with Pink Catawba wine and for cocktail entertaining, East Indian Cheese Spread a delightfully different spread with raisins, walnuts, and Lake Niagara wine.

All these recipes combine to increase and enhance your entertaining coebulary. Now when you serve that special something to guests, that says, "This is me . . ." you can say it with a touch of elegance that only wine can give.

VINTAGE CHEESE CAKE

Crust:
1½ cups vanilla wafer crumbs (34 wafers)
3 tablespoons sugar
1/3 cup butter or margarine, melted

Filling:
3 packages (8-ounce each) cream cheese, softened at room temperature
¼ cup Widmer's Pink Catawba wine
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
4 eggs

Glaze:
1 can (1-pound) sliced cling peaches
½ cup sugar
4 teaspoons cornstarch
½ cup Widmer's Pink Catawba wine
3 or 4 drops red food color

Combine ingredients for crust; press into bottom of ungreased 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes; cool. Reduce oven temperature to 300 degrees. To make filling, beat together until smooth cream cheese, wine, and salt. Gradually add sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Pour over baked crust. Bake at 300 degrees for 1 hour to 1 hour and 15 minutes, until set; cool. Loosen cake with spatula; remove side of pan. To make glaze, drain peaches, saving ½ cup syrup. Combine sugar and cornstarch in small saucepan. Gradually add the ½ cup syrup and wine. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until glaze comes to a boil and is thickened. Stir in food color; cool. Arrange drained peaches on top of cake; spoon some of the glaze over cake. Chill until serving time. Cut into wedges and serve with remaining glaze for sauce. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

CHAFING DISH GLAZED FRUIT

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup Widmer's Naples Valley Red wine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 can (1-pound, 4-ounce) pineapple chunks, well drained
1 can (11-ounce) mandarin oranges, well drained
½ cup maraschino cherries, cut in half
2 bananas, sliced
½ cup heavy cream, if desired
Sliced pound cake or angel food cake or vanilla ice cream

Melt butter in chafing dish or skillet. Add brown sugar and wine; stir to dissolve sugar. Simmer 10 minutes, stirring frequently until slightly thickened. Add lemon juice and fruit; heat 5 minutes, stirring gently. If desired, stir in cream. Serve over cake or ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

NAPLES VALLEY PARFAIT

½ cup Widmer's Naples Valley Red wine
6 to 8 almond or coconut macaroon cookies, dried at room temperature overnight
1½ pints vanilla ice cream

Combine jelly and wine in small saucepan. Simmer, uncovered, 10 to 15 minutes stirring frequently, until slightly thickened. Cool. Crumble cookies in blender or with rolling pin to make coarse crumbs. Alternate layers of ice cream, cookie crumbs, and wine syrup in parfait glasses, wine glasses, or dessert dishes. Keep in freezer until ready to serve. Makes 6 servings.

TRIFLE NIAGARA

1 package (3¼-ounce) vanilla pudding and pie filling
1 pound cake, about 11 ounces
½ cup raspberry or strawberry preserves
½ cup Widmer's Lake Niagara wine
1 to 2 cups frozen whipped topping, thawed (or sweetened whipped cream)
½ cup slivered almonds

Prepare pudding as directed on package. Cut cake into ½-inch slices; spread with preserves. Line a serving bowl with cake, preserves-side up, using about ½ the cake. Sprinkle with about ½ the wine. Add layers of pudding and remaining cake. Sprinkle with remaining wine. Chill 2 to 3 hours. Just before serving, spread with whipped topping and sprinkle with almonds. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CATAWBA CREAM CAKE

1 package (1-pound, 3-ounce) yellow cake mix
4 eggs
1 cup Widmer's Pink Catawba wine
1 package (3-ounce) cream cheese, softened at room temperature
Pink Glaze (recipe below)

Combine cake mix, eggs, wine, and cream cheese in large mixer bowl. Blend at low speed, then beat at medium speed 2 minutes. Pour into well-greased and floured 10-inch tube or bundt pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes, until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool cake in pan 20 minutes. Remove from pan and cool completely. Drizzle with Pink Glaze. Pink Glaze: Combine 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar, 3 to 4 teaspoons Widmer's Pink Catawba wine, and 2 to 3 drops red food color; stir until smooth.

EAST INDIAN CHEESE SPREAD

1 package (8-ounce) cream cheese, softened at room temperature
1/3 cup Widmer's Lake Niagara wine
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup golden raisins, coarsely chopped
½ cup chopped walnuts
Assorted crackers

Beat together cream cheese, wine, and curry powder until fluffy. Stir in Cheddar cheese, raisins, and walnuts. Serve as a spread with crackers. Makes 2 cups dip.

Harvest of beans underway

MODESTO (AP) — Beans of every size, shape and color are being harvested from 40,000 acres of prime Stanislaus County farmland. Combined, they are the county's leading crop in acreage.

However, poor weather conditions and low prices have teamed up to reduce yields and acreage of the blackeyes, baby limas, large limas, green limas and snap beans that take up most of the county's acreage.

George Andrade, head fieldman for Patterson Frozen Foods near here, says yields are down slightly from last year's 1.5 tons per acre. But Andrade says he hopes tonnage will increase as the harvest progresses.

California is the nation's leading producer of dried beans and snap beans and is in the top six in most other varieties. Stanislaus is the state's leading bean county, first in dried beans, second in green limas and fourth in snap beans.

Bean values hit a peak in 1973 and have declined since then. Gross values in the county dropped from $25.8 million in 1973 to $18.1 million in 1974. Statewide, the value slumped from $93 million to $77.8 million last year.

Elegant desserts a specialty in Italian resturants

Travelers to Italy are sometimes puzzled when they spy Zuppa Inglese listed under desserts on menus. As any tourist possessing an Italian dictionary or phrase book knows, zuppa means soup.

Zuppa Inglese, one of Italy's elegant desserts and a specialty of many fine Italian restaurants in this country, literally translates English soup. In reality, however, it is an irresistable liqueur-soaked cake which probably started out as a variation of English trifle. Of course, if the cook pours the liqueur with a generous hand, a soup spoon might be more appropriate than a dessert fork when the time comes to enjoy this beloved dish. In any case, Zuppa Inglese is scrumptious eating and a fabulous way to finish dinner.

Our version, Zuppa Amaretto, calls for layers of yellow cake or sponge cake to be sprinkled with Amaretto di Saronno, the legendary Italian liqueur that's turning up at more and more parties these days. Other embellishments include a luscious custard, apricot preserves, whipped cream and candied fruit.

The great thing about this dessert is that a hostess can devote just as much time to it as her schedule allows. If she wishes, she can prepare the layers from scratch. If every minute counts, then she can purchase the layers and get creative from there on in. Either way, Zuppa Amaretto is certain to be a success.

Another popular Italian dessert that begins with a Z is zabaglione or zabaione, depending upon which spelling you prefer. It's particularly delectable when made with Amaretto di Saronno and served atop vanilla ice cream.

ZUPPA AMARETTO

2 9-inch yellow cake layers or sponge cake layers
¼ cup cornstarch
½ cup sugar
2 cups milk
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon each vanilla and rum flavoring
½ cup Amaretto di Saronno
1 jar (12 ounces) apricot preserves
2 cups (1 pint) heavy cream
¼ cup Amaretto di Saronno
1 3 cup chopped mixed candied fruit

Split each cake layer into two thin layers. In a saucepan, mix cornstarch and sugar. Gradually stir in milk and beaten eggs. Stir over low heat until pudding bubbles and thickens. Cool and then stir in vanilla and rum flavoring. Cover and chill. Place 1 cake layer on a cake plate or serving platter. Sprinkle with 1-3rd of the Amaretto di Saronno and spread with 1-3rd of the apricot preserves, followed by 1-3rd of the custard. Continue layering, ending with plain fourth cake layer. In a bowl, whip cream and Amaretto di Saronno until stiff. Spread mixture over the top and sides of the cake. Sprinkle outer edge of top with candied fruit. Chill until ready to serve.

HOT AMARETTO ZABAGLIONE SUNDAES

4 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
¼ cup Amaretto di Saronno
1 pint vanilla ice cream

Beat egg yolks and sugar with wire whisk or rotary beater in top part of double boiler until light in color. Place over simmering water and gradually add Amaretto di Saronno, beating constantly. Continue to beat until mixture begins to thicken. Serve hot over vanilla ice cream. Makes 4 servings.

Della Robbia Pie ready for holidays

When the Italians forsake their beloved frutta or formaggi for dolci, they go all out.

At holiday time particularly, the Italians really outdo themselves in achieving spectacular endings to their meals. Not only do their desserts taste fabulous but they're a visual treat as well.

This Della Robbia Holiday Pie takes its inspiration from the beautiful garlands of fruits and flowers that encircle many of Luca and Andrea della Robbia's masterpieces. The almond-vanilla wafer crumb crust is filled with a sweet-tooth-satisfying mixture of vanilla ice cream and chopped mixed candied fruits laced with Amaretto di Saronno, the intriguing Italian liqueur. The luscious result is then crowned with mounds of whipped cream and a wreath of marzipan fruits.

Coincidentally, another artist was responsible for the creation of Amaretto di Saronno. According to romantic legend, Bernardino Luini of the Leonardo da Vinci School, had chosen a poor young widow as his model for his fresco of the blond madonna in the Chapel of the Sanctuary of Santa Maria delle Grazie in the village of Saronno. In appreciation of this honor, the young mother of two expressed her gratitude by preparing a delightful liqueur from the almonds of apricots. Her gift to the artist we enjoy today as Amaretto di Saronno.

DELLA ROBBIA HOLIDAY PIE

1½ cups vanilla wafer crumbs
¼ cup chopped toasted almonds
1/3rd cup melted butter or margarine
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1/3rd cup Amaretto di Saronno
1/3rd cup finely chopped mixed candied fruits
1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream
2 tablespoons Amaretto di Saronno
1 pound marzipan fruits or 2 cups assorted fruits - strawberry halves, green seedless grapes, maraschino cherries, peach slices, pineapple chunks, banana slices or plum slices
Fresh mint leaves or crystallized mint leaves
Candied mimosa and violets

In a bowl, mix crumbs, almonds and butter or margarine. Press mixture firmly into an ungreased 9-inch pie pan. Chill. Soften ice cream and stir in Amaretto di Saronno and fruits. Pour mixture into chilled pie shell. Freeze until hard. In a bowl, mix heavy cream and Amaretto di Saronno and beat until stiff. Pile whipped cream in mounds around the outer edge of pie. Freeze until ready to serve. Decorate pie with marzipan or fruits pressed into whipped cream. Add mint leaves, mimosa and violets, if desired. Serve at once. Makes 1 9-inch pie.

AMARETTO ICE CREAM CAKE

3 8-inch spongecake layers
3 tablespoons Amaretto di Saronno
1 pint coffee ice cream, softened
1 pint chocolate ice cream, softened
2 cups (1 pint) heavy cream
¼ cup Amaretto di Saronno
Chocolate sprinkles

Sprinkle spongecake layers with Amaretto di Saronno. Spread softened coffee ice cream on one cake layer. Top with second cake layer. Then spread with softened chocolate ice cream. Top with third cake layer. Press slightly so the layers will adhere to one another. In a bowl, whip cream and Amaretto di Saronno until stiff. Spread mixture over top and sides of cake. Decorate with chocolate sprinkles. Freeze until ready to serve. Makes 1 8-inch cake.

Army help asked for harvest

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — Wine producers in the Bordeaux region, home of some of France's most famous wines, appealed for army help to harvest what is expected to be one of the great vintages of the century.

Severe hail storms swept thousands of acres in the Medoc region recently, within 24 hours of the start of the harvest, bursting grapes on the vines. The grapes will rot if not collected within 36 hours, chateau owners said.

Officials in Paris said the request was under urgent consideration. The French army has often provided manpower to help farmers save weather-beaten crops.

Between 2,470 and 3,700 acres in Medoc were described as "100 per cent affected" by the hailstorms, which also hit 60 per cent of the vines in parts of the Loire Valley to the north.

A long, dry, hot summer led wine experts to believe the 1975 crops in Bordeaux and other French regions would produce exceptional wines.

Beef is one of the best sources of protein. Eighty per cent of the protein in beef is usable by the body. It is considered a top quality protein because it contains the nine essential amino acids. Pound for pound, in amount and quality, beef protein cannot be matched by any single vegetable, fruit or grain.

Chicken dish saves budget

It seems like budgets and low-cost meals are always the topic of conversation during these inflationary times. But that fact remains that money needs to be managed and appetizing inexpensive meals need to be served to hungry family members.

Whoever said "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" must have been referring to leftover chicken. Coming up with delicious uses for leftovers can be challenging. Chicken In A Nest is a tasty main dish of creamed chicken served in a mashed potato nest. You can use leftover chicken or turkey for this recipe.

This recipe is made with margarine, which adds rich flavor to any dish. It is equally delicious used as a table spread.

Serve Chicken In A Nest with a vegetable in season — usually a good bargain at your local market — and crisp rolls. Your family will look forward to leftovers when you transform them into exciting entrees!

For more budget recipes send for your free copy of the Blue Bonnet Book of Creative Cookery, P.O. Box 2695, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

CHICKEN IN A NEST

- ¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ cups chicken broth
- ½ cup heavy cream
- 3 cups cubed cooked chicken
- 6 Potato Nests (recipe below)

Melt margarine in large saucepan. Add onion and celery; saute over low heat until tender. Stir in flour, salt and pepper and cook several minutes over low heat. Remove from heat; gradually stir in broth and cream. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Add chicken. Cook, stirring until heated through. Serve mixture in Potato Nests.

Potato Nests: Add 1 beaten egg to 3 cups thick mashed potatoes and mix until blended. Drop mixture by spoonfuls onto greased baking sheets, using ½ cup for each nest. Spread each mound into a 3½-inch circle, shaping sides with spoon. Brush with 2 tablespoons melted margarine. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes, or until potatoes are light brown. Makes 6 servings.

BOHEMIAN BEANS

Quick to fix, interesting

¼ cup olive oil
1 Medium-large onion, chopped medium-fine
1 cup parsley sprigs, finely chopped (1/3rd cup)
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 pound and 4-ounce can red kidney beans, undrained
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon coarsely cracked pepper
½ teaspoon dried thyme
½ cup dry red wine

In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil; add onion, parsley and garlic; cook over medium heat, stirring often, until onion browns. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Let bubble gently until flavors blend and sauce thickens — about 15 minutes. Serve over rice. Makes 4 small servings.

White and brown-shell eggs have exactly the same eating and nutritional qualities; a thrifty shopper compares prices and uses the kind that is the best buy.

Inflation fighter

LEFTOVER IDEA

Store leftovers in custard cups or small heat-proof glass bowls. Reheat by placing several on a rack in the electric frying pan. Add a half inch of water to the pan, cover and set temperature at 212 degrees for about 10 minutes. Serve in the same dishes. Savers on energy, dishwashing & waste from small dabs of leftovers.

—M.B., Beloit, Wis.

Rummage finds

This is the season of the great rummage sales. Check them out for good quality items that friends or neighbors will have discarded. Although these are often in good shape, the previous owner may have tired of them and you can get them for a pittance.

—M.S., Grand Island, Neb.

Really repllent

Ant repellents are usually expensive and of limited worth. A cheaper and more effective method of ridding your kitchen of these pests is to sprinkle ordinary soap powder around areas they frequent. This keeps them away for days at a time and can be easily swept up when necessary.

Plum industry expecting its third-largest crop

The start of this year's fresh California plum crop was late due to cool spring weather, but since the season got underway, quantity and quality have been excellent. In fact, the plum supply is expected to be the third largest in the industry's history. There'll be lots of sprightly plums for several more weeks to enjoy in all kinds of mouth-watering ways. The home economists for the California Plum Commodity Committee offer these ideas for serving late California plums:

Late California Plum Varieties

During the next several weeks while plums are still plentiful, look for California's most important late plum variety in your market — the crimson Casselman. The Casselman plum, second only in volume to the popular Santa Rosa, is firm with a deep yellow flesh and purplish-crimson exterior color. It has a delicious rich, tart flavor and is an excellent plum for jams and jellies as well as for desserts and salads.

For a quick dessert using this late California plum variety, try this "Beautiful Cake," an adaptation from a Parisienne patisserie.

Bake your favorite two-layer cake mix in two 8- or 9-inch baking pans according to package direction. Cut out the center of one of the layers, leaving a rim of about 1½ inches. (Reserve center of cake for snacks and other uses.) Spread bottom uncut layer with ¼ cup plum jelly; then melt another ½ cup plum jelly with a little water in a saucepan. Place the rim of cake over the bottom layer; arrange 2 cups sliced plums attractively within the rim and glaze with melted jelly. Frost the outsides and rim of cake with 1½ cups sweetened whipped cream and dust with ½ cup macaroon crumbs.

Poached Plums

Poaching is perhaps the most ideal way to cook fresh California plums. The simple poaching treatment brings out their distinctive flavor, makes them even juicier — yet preserves their vivid color. Plums may be poached in a variety of liquids, such as port wine or orange juice, or in a simple cooked sugar/water syrup. Nice poached plum flavorings include lemon juice, cinnamon, orange peel, crushed stick peppermint, almond extract, cloves, rum or orange-flavored liqueur.

Here's an easy plum cooler using poached fresh plums: Puree cold plain yogurt with poached plums and blend in cold milk and sugar to taste. Pour into mugs and freeze an hour or two until slushy. Serve with spoons.

Plums Romanoff

Instead of using the traditional strawberries, try some of these Romanoff variations with slices of fresh California plums.

— Mix 2 ounces each of marashino liqueur and brandy; add a dash of Cointreau to taste. Fold the liqueurs into one pint of softened vanilla ice cream and spoon over enough sliced, sweetened fresh California plums to serve four.

— Whip one cup of heavy cream and fold into one pint softened vanilla ice cream. Flavor with rum and Cointreau, as desired, and spoon over 1 quart of sliced, sweetened fresh California plums. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

— Mix one 6-ounce can of frozen, undiluted, orange juice concentrate with ½ cup tawny port. Pour over 1 quart of sliced fresh California plums and marinate for several hours. Spoon into eight dessert dishes and pass a bowl of sweetened, whipped cream.

Bite sizes are better

You can kabob meats, poultry, fish and seafood, and various sausages. Have these in bite-sized chunks, or cut to cubes of about one inch for even cooking. For extra taste, marinate for an hour or so before barbecuing. Grill over high setting on gas grill, or at 425 degrees on electric barbecue, until meat is sufficiently browned.

Dumplings tame winter

When harsh November winds blow, it's time to bring out the big kettle and simmer up a batch of hearty soup. For interest and added nutritive value, try Delightful Dumplings with your next pot of soup. Beat 3 eggs with 2 tablespoons melted butter. Mix in 2 tablespoons minced parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup enriched bread crumbs and 1 cup mashed liverwurst. Form into walnut size balls; dust with flour; simmer 15 minutes in the soup. They're good with meat or vegetable soup and clear broth, too.

Chop suey by any other name just as delicious

There are as many stories about chop suey as there are Chinese cookbook writers. However, most agree that the dish, as we've come to know it, is an American adaptation of an old Cantonese standby called Sub Gum. Captivate fall menus with our easy and economical skillet rendition created with chicken.

Slice, dice and stir-fry a delicious medley of crisp vegetables, then add a wonderfully seasoned marinated "light and dark meat" chicken mixture — and in a matter of minutes you have a marvelous entree you'd be proud to serve family and guests.

Our version of Chicken Chop Suey has been adapted to the convenience of American cooks and utilizes that superb product, 15 Minute Chicken Marinade, available at the meat department or in the spice or condiment section of your local supermarket. The only trick is in the boning of the chicken breasts, but it's easy to be your own meat man, if you follow our directions. You'll be amazed — chicken cooks through in 7 to 10 minutes when done this way. Be sure not to overcook the vegetables — they should be crisp-tender.

If desired and your pocketbook lends itself, garnish with whole cashews and serve over fried rice or Chinese noodles. Pass soy sauce if you wish. A raspberry-pineapple gelatin salad along with your choice of rolls, green tea and fortune cookies are all you need to complete the meal.

Chicken Marinade is at home in cuisines the world over — try it in Coq Au Vin, Chicken Cacciatore, Chicken Cordon Bleu, Sweet 'n Sour Chicken and so on. Product versatility is only limited by your imagination!

CHICKEN CHOP SUEY

- 2 whole or 4 half chicken breasts (about 1½ pounds), skinned and boned
- 1 pound chicken thighs, skinned and boned
- 1 package 15-minute chicken marinade
- 1 cup water
- ½ cup chopped green onions
- 2½ cups diagonally sliced celery
- 1 (6-ounce) package frozen pea pods with water chestnuts, thawed
- 1 (1-pound) can bean sprouts, drained
- 1 (4½-ounce) can sliced mushrooms, drained (optional)
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cut chicken into 2x½-inch strips. Thoroughly blend Adolph's 15 Minute Chicken Marinade and water in shallow glass baking dish. Place chicken in marinade; turn to coat evenly. (Do not pierce). Saute onions, celery, pea pods, bean sprouts and mushrooms in oil in large 10 to 12-inch skillet over high heat, stirring about 3 minutes, until crisp-tender. Add chicken and marinade mixture and pepper. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Reduce heat to medium and cook, stirring, about 7 to 8 minutes, until chicken is thoroughly cooked. Do not overcook. Serve over fried rice or Chinese noodles. Pass soy sauce if desired. Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: Directions for boning whole chicken breasts: Use a sharp knife with a 6-inch blade. The thinner and sharper the blade, the better for boning.

1) Place chicken breast, skin side down, on cutting board. With knife, cut just through white gristle at neck end of breast bone (dark bone at center of breast). Bend chicken breast back and press flat with hands to expose breast bone; loosen bone by running tip of index finger around both sides; remove in one or two pieces.

2) Insert tip of knife under long rib bone and cut free from meat. Lifting bone away from breast, cut meat from rib cage, cutting around outer edge of breast up tp shoulder joint and then through joint. (This removes entire rib cage).

3) Working from ends of wishbone, scrape flesh away from each piece of bone.

4) Slip knife underneath white tendons on either side of breast and loosen and pull out. Remove skin. Bones and skin may be used for stock.

CALIFORNIA MARINATED ARTICHOKE HEARTS

New cookie recipe for collections

Cookies, one of America's all-time favorites no matter whether they are large, small, filled or unfilled, sweet or semi-sweet, come in an endless variety.

Adding a new cookie recipe to your collection is something you should do especially if you have a "sweet-tooth" family. However, it's important to have a cookie recipe like Applesauce Oaties as it is filled with raisins, nuts, oats and those delicious tasting semi-sweet real chocolate morsels.

Whether you are planning a fall outing, fixing a school box lunch or just trying to keep the cookie jar filled, try these easy-to-make Applesauce Oaties.

APPLESAUCE OATIES

- 1¾ cups quick oats, uncooked
- 1½ cups unsifted flour
- 1 measuring teaspoon salt
- 1 measuring teaspoon baking powder
- 1 measuring teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ measuring teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ measuring teaspoon baking soda
- ½ cup butter, softened
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg
- ¾ cup applesauce
- 1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In small bowl, combine oats, flour, salt, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and baking soda; set aside. In large bowl, combine butter, brown sugar and granulated sugar; beat until creamy. Beat in egg. Gradually blend in flour mixture alternately with applesauce. Stir in semi-sweet chocolate morsels, raisins and nuts. Drop by level measuring tablespoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets.

Makes 5 doz. 2¼" cookies.

Use skewers for dessert

Want an outdoor dessert that's something different? Keep those skewers handy! Chunks of pineapple, apples, apricots, grapefruit; banana slices and orange sections — any of the lovely fresh summer fruits can be grilled en brochette for an easy, elegant end to a meal, say home economists. Brush with butter and a bit of brown sugar. Grill slowly over low setting (about 300 degrees on an electric barbecue). Provide cinnamon, sugar, and coconut for sprinkling. If you place them on your grill at the start of your meal, they'll be ready when you're ripe for dessert.

At-home Oktoberfest creates warm feelings

It's the time of year to whip up some Gemutlichkeit (warm feeling) among friends and neighbors with a real German Oktoberfest. Although you can't invite thousands of people to enjoy beer and hearty food as they do in Munich, a home fest can fit into after-ballgame entertainment plans. Munich's Oktoberfest began in 1810 to celebrate the marriage of Crown Prince Ludwig of Bavaria and it has been celebrated each year since with 16 wild and wonderful days of parties. You'll need a mixture of sausages and wursts and tasty German cheeses such as Emmenthal, Tilsiter, Handkaese or Limburger, herring and of course, sauerkraut. A simple meal could includ scalloped franks and potatoes, caraway sauerkraut, marinated mushroms and herring salad. Prosit!

SCALLOPED FRANK-POTATOES

- 1½ cups thinly sliced onions
- 4½ cups thinly sliced potatoes
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 7 teaspoons flour
- 1 teaspooon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon paprika
- 2 cups milk
- 1 (can) imported German frankfurters, sliced on a slant
- 2 pounds snipped parsley (optional)
- ⅛ pound imported German Emmenthal, thinly sliced

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In 1 inch boiling water in saucepan, cook onions and potatoes with 2 teaspoons salt, covered for 5 minutes; drain. In double boiler, melt butter, gradually stir in flour, 1 teaspoon, salt, pepper, paprika, milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth. Arrange one third of potatoes and onions in greased 2-quart casserole. Top with half of franks and parsley. Pour on one-third of sauce. Add another one-third of potatoes and onions, rest of franks and parsley, and another third of sauce. Arrange rest of potatoes and onions on top; pour on remaining sauce; top with cheese. Bake 35 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Hot salad relief from cold food

A hot German potato salad fills the bill as people tire of too many quicky, cold meals. One that starts with frozen french fries and chopped onions takes little preparation time. It can be cooked on an outdoor grill, too, and goes well with favorite pork or wiener dishes.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD

- 1 package (16 ounces) frozen crinkle cut french fries
- 6 slices bacon (¼ pound)
- ½ cup fresh frozen chopped onions
- 2 tablespoons bacon dripping
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/3 cup vinegar
- 1/3 cup water
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons flour
- ¾ teaspoon dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ cups thinly sliced celery
- 1/3 cup thinly sliced sour pickle

Prepare french fries as package directs. Cut bacon into 1-inch pieces. Fry until crisp. Remove from pan. Saute onion in drippings until soft. Combine egg, vinegar and water. Mix together sugar, flour, mustard and salt. Stir into egg mixture. Add to skillet. Cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens. Add bacon pieces. Toss with french fries, celery and pickle. Makes 1.5 quarts (6 to 8 servings).

Note: To prepare on an outdoor grill: cook bacon and potatoes in skillet on grill. Remove and keep warm. Make dressing in skillet, then add all remaining ingredients and mix well.

Let guests do the work

Watching foods being prepared is, in itself, a form of entertainment. But why not let family and friends share in the actual cooking? Home economists for barbecues suggest customized kabobs as an excellent means for getting guests involved and catering to their individual tastes. Just set out a variety of fixings and let each person skewer the food of his choice.

Nostalgia for sale

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — They used to sell new cars in the showroom now called Fantasy Junction. When the new cars didn't move as anticipated, Elmer Fliegauf who also owns another dealership down the street decided to go in for selling slightly used nostalgia instead.

Now on his lot he has Cadillacs with swooping fins, a lowslung white T-Bird, a few vintage items like a 1948 Ford Woody and some bright colored sportscars. Most of the cars belong to individuals who bring them in to be sold on consignment.

In one area of the showroom are pinball machines kept in working order to entertain the teenagers.

"Our name is getting around," said Fliegauf, "I have people coming in from all over to look at our cars. I don't think there is anything else like it anywhere nearby."

Fussy fellow

Gen. Winfield Scott (1786-1866), who led an army into Mexico in 1847 during the Mexican War, was known to his troops as old "Fuss and Feathers" because of being a stickler for military procedure. The nickname was used affectionately by Scott's friends.
